CANAL OPENING MEANS CRISIS

BY OBSERVER.

PANAMA, July 21.—It can be safely taken as an axiom that the majority of the people of the United States have no desire to interfere in the affairs of Central America. It is equally true that the majority have no desire to see any European country established there.

The Monroe doctrine as originally enunciated had for its primary purpose the prevention of further extension of European influence or power in this hemisphere. President Monroe considered this necessary for "our peace and safety."

The building of the Panama canal, with all that it means to our national defense, more than ever necessitates the prevention of all European interference in Central America.

The primary problem of our government as far as Central America is concerned has from the beginning been to try to carry out the two wishes of the American people—that is, not to interfere in Central America ourselves and to prevent European interference.

Government's Intervention Excuse.

If the countries concerned had had staple governments which honorably met their just obligations the problem would have been a simple one, for there would have been no excuse for either American or European interference. However, exactly the reverse has been true.

The governments with the exception of that of Costa Rica have been anything but staple. Except in Costa Rica every kind of disorder has been and is still rampant. Property and life have hardly ever been and are not now safe. The governments have been and are yet irresponsible and no respecters of any one.

Money has been borrowed and the governments have regularly defaulted on the interest payments. This was true until recently of even Costa Rica. In other words, every possible excuse, every possible reason for interference has been given.

If we in our anxiety to keep out are willing to have our citizens killed and maltreated, their property destroyed, and our flag and our representatives insulted, that is our affair, to be settled amongst ourselves.

When, however, such treatment is meted out to the citizens, flags and representatives of foreign powers, it is only just they should demand either that we should put an end to the conditions which permit such outrages or else allow them to do so. We cannot justly maintain that we will not end these conditions nor will we permit them to do so.

U. S. Schemes Outlined.

Different administrations in their efforts to solve this difficult problem have tried various schemes. These have been:

1. To encourage Central American unity in the hopes that one big country, instead of five, would offer more resistance to the prevalent anarchy.

2. The establishment of an arbitration court in which all these countries could peacefully settle their differences.

3. "Dollar Diplomacy."

4. To support any fairly strong government already in power, thus preventing the disorders incident to revolution.

5. To obtain the assistance of Mexico so that we would not be accused of interfering merely for our own ends.

For a while after obtaining their freedom from Spain the Central American countries were united. They soon split up, however, into the present states. These divisions are historical and represent differences dating from the Spanish conquest. Since this splitting up a number of attempts have been made to reunite them.

These attempts have represented the ambitions of some president to rule all of Central America rather than any general desire on the part of the countries to unite. Zelaya of Nicaragua and Cabrera of Guatemala were the most bitter rivals. Neither would have submitted to any one other than himself being president of any union. As it was their mutual ambition to absorb Honduras kept that country in an uproar.

Candidate Slain on Orders?

Recently President Araujo of Salvador was considered as a candidate for the presidency of the union, should it be formed. He was brutally assassinated in the plaza of Salvador City, however, and there can be no doubt but that Cabrera of Guatemala ordered the assassination so as to remove a rival.

Aside from the quarrels between the different states and their presidents is the fact that Costa Rica, being a stable, efficient, peaceful government of its own, naturally does not care to be united with the others, who are everything they should not be and nothing they should be. Not only is there everything operating against a unity of the five states, but today there are forces tending to disintegrate all of them except Costa Rica.

Nothing but Cabrera's system of terrorism prevents his assassination and a revolution in Guatemala. In both Salvador and Honduras there is every indication that a revolution is about to take place. In Nicaragua the people along the Caribbean, in what formerly was an independent country known as the Mosquito reserve, long ardently for separation from the rest of the country. They are whites and negroes speaking English and have nothing in common with CLUBWOMEN PLAN CAMPAIGN TO REFORM FEMININE ATTIRE.

St. Paul Women Brand Immodest Tight Garments—Will Appeal to Manufacturers for New Styles.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 3.—Asserting the present styles of women's dress are not fit for "modest gentlewomen," and that women who refuse to wear tight skirts are compelled to do without new garments, the Fourth district of the Federation of Women's Clubs has started a dress reform which it is proposed to make nation wide.

During the coming week the board will write to every manufacturer and buyer of ready made clothing for women and to every manufacturer and publisher of patterns for modification of the present styles.

"Many women, under protest, have been obliged to use the present styles of ready made clothing, but very many have informed us that they have done without new garments rather than buy such as have been offered during the last few months," say the letters.

"We ask for some different styles for modest gentlewomen from those suited to the demi-mondaine."

MILITANTS FIGHT TO CHANT PRAYER FOR THEIR LEADER

Suffragets Scuffle with Ushers at St. Paul's Cathedral; Paraphrase Litany.

SING OF MRS. PANKHURST

Disturbers Repeat Verse Despite Remonstrances of Congregation and Are Ejected.

WOMEN VOTERS OF U. S. TO MEET

LONDON, Aug. 3.—A party of forty well dressed suffragets interrupted the morning service at St. Paul's cathedral today by chanting a prayer in behalf of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst. Ushers ejected the women from the edifice after a scuffle, in which several chairs were upset.

The disturbance took place during the singing of the litany. When the words "Show Thy pity to all prisoners and captives" were reached the women, who had front seats in the center aisle, chanted loudly:

"Save Emmeline Pankhurst.
Spare her, spare her.
Give her light and set her free.
Save her, save her,
Hear us while we pray to Thee."

Chant Despite Ushers' Protests.

Evidently the chant had been rehearsed. It was in the same tune the choir had been singing. When the women began their chant ushers hurried toward them from all parts of the cathedral, while numerous members of the congregation remonstrated with the disturbers, telling them to remember they were in church.

The suffragets, however, repeated their chant three or four times, each time in a louder key. A majority of them finally were led out quietly by the ushers, but a half dozen or so clung to their chairs and fought against ejectment. When all the disturbers were removed from the building the services proceeded.

A squad of police was in attendance at vespers this evening but there was no disturbance.

WOMEN VOTERS TO MEET.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—With a program headed with an address by Miss Jane Addams of Hull house, Chicago, the National Council of Women Voters, representing nearly 4,000,000 enfranchised women, is to hold a three day conference in the national capital next week. Representatives from the ten states where women vote are expected to be present.

The program for the conference was made public today by Dr. Cora Smith King, treasurer of the organization, who is in general charge of the arrangements. Miss Addams is scheduled to make the principal address of the conference.

The subject of the proposed constitutional amendment giving nation wide votes for women will be taken up during the conference.

Miss Emma Smith Devoe of Tacoma, Wash., president of the council, will preside at the business of the conference.

Organization Has Three Purposes.

The organization has the threefold object of educating women voters in the exercise of their citizenship; of securing legislation in equal suffrage states, in "the interests of men and women, of children and the home," and of aiding in the further extension of woman suffrage in the United States.

A feature of the announced program is to be an informal hearing on Aug. 14, before the house rules committee, on the creation of a woman suffrage committee in the house, similar to the one already existing in the senate. A resolution for the creation of such a committee has been pending for some time.

Denver Women Demand Offices.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Denver suffragists, although this is one of the principal suffragist cities, are only accorded one office, that of state superintendent of instruction. They intend to demand more offices for their sex.

"I believe a movement should be started to place women in more offices," Mrs. Helen M. Wixson said. "There are hundreds of positions in the city and state which women have never held, and yet which they are perfectly competent to fill. I, for one, most emphatically do not believe in the restriction of women to educational work. I do not believe there is any position in the statehouse that some woman is not capable of filling.

"I believe that the position of secretary of state is one admirably fitted to a woman's powers."

MARTYR TO FASHION MOBBED.

Boys Make Life Miserable for Pittsburgh Man Who Appears on Streets with Slit Trousers.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—A martyr to fashion, W. Leffingwell Doak was mobbed by a gang of newsboys in Fifth avenue. He was the first wearer of the prophesied slit trouser to be seen in the streets of Pittsburgh. The slit extended from the bottom to within about six inches of the knee. A beautiful vista of bright green hosiery, of the long feminine variety, was disclosed.

CHILDREN HEROES OF THEATER SCARE

Start School Drill March When Frightened Adults Flee at Cry of "Fire."

WALK OUT IN SAFETY.

Two hundred Chicago school children, coached in fire drills, led an equal number of their elders to safety yesterday afternoon during a panic which might have become a tragedy at the Oak theater, 2004 North Western avenue. As it was three persons are said to have been slightly injured.

More than 600 persons were in the theater at 5 o'clock when a door slammed and a glass in it shattered. Some one shouted "fire." In a moment the audience was on its feet, wildly attempting to gain the exits. The school children, who composed the greater part of the audience, fell into line

Some one commanded "hip," "hip," "left," "right," and the parents joined their children in the march. When they reached the street they turned and walked in again on the invitation of the manager, Benjamin Wheeler, who had vainly tried to keep them in.

Children Shamed Elders.

"I've got to hand it to the public schools," said Fred Hart, who saw the exit from the street. "The way those kids marched down the fire escape. Right in line. It made the old folks look ashamed."

John H. Carns, performer in a musical act, jumped on the stage as soon as he heard the audience rise.

"I heard a few kids scream, and then I heard the audience rise with a rush," said Carns.

"I grabbed my banjo and went out on the stage. I strummed out of tune to the orchestra, which was playing full blast. Guess I was playing a different tune. If they had looked around it might have done some good. I know if they'd seen me they would have stopped, because I had only half my makeup on."

Play as Audience Returns.

His partner, "Babe" Carns, joined him and the two were playing when the audience returned.

Inquiry among the drug stores failed to reveal any injuries, but three persons are said to have been slightly hurt. One young man jumped from the glass awning of the theater to the awning of a bakery next door and rolled into the street. He limped away. Two others were stepped on before the children stopped the rush.

SMASH $200 WORTH OF GLASS WHEN STEAK BURNS NEXT DOOR.

Firemen Tackle Wrong Building—Find "Dead Man" Who Later Comes to Life and Demands Explanation.

Three fire companies and a patrol wagon roared up to the Antiseptic laundry at 1000 Grace street at 11:30 last night and began smashing in windows. After breaking $200 worth of glass it was discovered the fire was in a livery stable next door at 1002 Grace street.

The firemen broke into a room in the front of the building. They found a man on the floor.

"Dead," said the company captain. "Put him in the wagon."

Seeking the source of the smoke by nose rather than sight, the firemen located what once had been about three pounds of beefsteak burned to a crisp in a frying pan on a gas stove.

Meanwhile the dead man suddenly came to life in the patrol.

"Where'm I going?" he inquired.

The policemen were too astonished to answer, but when they reached the station Sergeant Quinlan questioned the man, who said he was Steve Ryan. He said he had gone to the livery stable to see a friend who was absent. He began cooking a steak he had purchased, but fell asleep.

MISTAKES LEWIS FOR WAITER; WOMAN ASKS WHAT "TO TAKE."

"Not Me, I'm Married," Senator Tells Ballot Petitioner in Washington Cafe.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois was standing in the doorway of the Continental hotel café yesterday waiting for the page to bring him his hat, when he was approached by one of the suffragists who had been presenting petitions to the senate.

"I want you to seat me over yonder in the corner by the window," the woman said to the senator.

"With pleasure, madam," Col. Lewis replied, realizing that a new honor had been thrust upon him.

The senator led the way through the crowded dining room to the consternation of the head waiter, and seated the suffragist as she had directed.

"Now what do you advise me to take?" she inquired before the senator could effect a retreat.

"Well, madam," he replied, "under ordinary circumstances I would advise you to take me, but as I am married, that may embarrass both you and the law. The head waiter will recommend the food."

Senator Lewis had been mistaken for the head waiter.

Later the senator was called to the senate lobby to receive a delegation of New England women who had picked him out for custodian of their petition. The spokesman, an elderly woman, peered over her spectacles at Lewis and then exclaimed:

"Why, you don't look as foolish as the papers make you out."

"I am deeply grateful to hear you say so, madam," he of the tawny whiskers replied.

"And you are younger and not so short as I thought you were."

"Madam, you do not know how very short at times I am," the senator responded.

"My dear man, my purse is slender but it is yours," the suffragist said as she held it out together with the petition.

"Goodness gracious, we shall all be arraigned for lobbying," Lewis exclaimed as he took the petition and waved aside the purse.

CHILD STARTS FOR GYPSY CAMP AND HAS NOT BEEN SEEN SINCE

Anna Nawlany, 5 Years Old, of East Chicago, Ind., Believed to Have Been Kidnaped by Roving Band.

The police of the South Chicago station have been asked to watch for a band of gypsies who are believed to have kidnaped Anna Nawlany, 5 years old, of East Chicago, Ind.

The child went to the gypsy camp to attend an entertainment and failed to return home. The gypsies left East Chicago yesterday and are said to be headed toward South Chicago.

Nawlany, convinced that his daughter had been stolen by a member of the band, notified the police of South Chicago. The child when last seen wore a white and red striped dress and wore a red ribbon in her hair. She was barefooted.

HERE'S CHICAGO RIVAL OF JOB.

"I'm Lucky," He Says Over Loss of Wift, Money, and Furniture; "Might Have Taken House."

George Grostrand, employed at the Wisconsin steel mills in South Chicago, is spending his time off looking for a few of his belongings, including his furniture, $200, seventy chickens, and his wife. All were at the house at 8835 Exchange avenue when he went to work Saturday afternoon. None were there when he came back.

Grostrand, shocked by the raid on his house, did not realize the full extent of the catastrophe until he went to the chicken coop and saw what had happened there. Then he went to the police station, half a block away.

"It's lucky I live so close to you people," he said. "They might have carried my house away if I lived outside this block."

CALL OUT MILITIA TO END RIOT; 4 DIE

Officials of Yuba County, California, Slain in Hop Field Strike Fight.

SIX PERSONS WOUNDED.

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 3.—Five companies of militia left here tonight for Wheatland, Yuba county, thirty miles away, where 400 striking hop pickers started a riot today when their demands for higher pay were refused.

E. T. Manwell, district attorney of Yuba county, a deputy sheriff and two strikers were killed in a pistol battle with the rioters, and the sheriff, constable, and six other persons, including two women, injured.

Adjutant General Forbes, who started at once for Wheatland, was empowered by the governor to declare martial law in the district.

Demand Increase in Wages.

According to reports reaching here from Wheatland, the hop pickers held a meeting at noon today and formulated demands for increased wages. All were employés of the Durst ranch, which lies partly within Wheatland township.

Durst and Constable Anderson attended the meeting. When Durst refused their demand the men became abusive. Anderson sought to place a leader under arrest. He was disarmed and beaten, but escaped and telephoned Sheriff George H. Voss of Yuba county for help.

Voss gathered a posse and hastened to Wheatland by automobile from Marysville, the county seat. Manwell accompanied him. When the machines reached Wheatland, Voss and four deputies approached the rioters, who had gathered near the Durst ranch house. Voss sought to parley with them. Abusive language was hurled at him and he seized one man and started toward the motor cars.

The prisoner's friends leaped at the sheriff and beat him into unconsciousness.

Fall at First Volley.

The deputies made a charge and a volley of shots was exchanged. Manwell, standing by the automobiles, and S. Reardon, a deputy sheriff, were instantly killed, as were two hop pickers. Nels Nelson, a wealthy farmer; Constable Anderson, two women, and three men bystanders were wounded.

Several shots, it is reported, were fired into Voss' body as he lay unconscious on the ground.

The driver of the sheriff's automobile was the only man in the car to escape the bullets. He jumped in the machine and fled.

After the firing stopped the survivors of the posse were permitted to gather the dead and injured and take them away. They hastened to Marysville in the second machine.

Owners Penned in House.

Reports tonight say the Durst brothers, owners of the ranch, their mother, and two children are surrounded in the home and the rioters had threatened to kill any one who came out. Armed with shotguns, the strikers are patroling the roads on both sides of the Durst ranch.

One Industrial Worker of the World taken into custody in the town said the ranch employés were striking for better sanitary conditions in camp and in the field and also for fresh water service twice a day.

GALE TIPS BOATS; CROWDS WITNESS THIRTY RESCUES

Sudden Lake Wind Bowls Over Craft and Life Savers Have Busy Time.

LAUNCH CRASHES INTO WALL.

Ten Men on Disabled Vessel Three Miles Out Are Reached by Capt. Carland's Crew.

HEAT DRIVES THOUSANDS TO SHORE

Thousands of persons thronged the lake front yesterday and dabbled in the water in search of relief from the sweltering heat that reached 95 degrees early in the afternoon.

Relief came sharply at 4 p. m., when the breeze shifted suddenly into the northeast, and a gale that brought a swift drop in temperature also brought havoc for the hordes of motor boats, rowboats, canoes, and sailing craft that had put far out to sea to escape the heat. From the shore the throng of spectators watched a number of startling rescues.

Thirty Rescues Made.

Thirty too venturesome sailors were rescued by the life saving crew working in the teeth of a gale, and a high sea that made the rescue work hazardous. Their work continued on into the night.

Several hundred persons witnessed the thrilling rescue of two men in a launch off the Lincoln park sea wall last night. The men were Edward Djork of 904 Roscoe street, and Albert West, 116 Schiller street. Their launch broke down when a mile from shore. The waves were running high and they could not steer the craft.

A man on shore realized the danger and telephoned the life saving station. Capt. Carland and a crew of life savers went to the rescue. The top of the imperiled launch had been broken and was hanging over the side. The men were clinging to the other side to keep the top from overturning the craft.

When the life saving launch pulled alongside both men were exhausted. The boat was half filled with water. Owing to the wind and high waves it was twenty minutes before the live savers could get near enough to throw ropes to the two men, without causing a collision between the launches.

Boat Crushed Against Wall

When the two men were taken from the boat, it broke from the life saver's launch and was carried to the "sea wall," a short distance away. It was hurled against the wall and the bow crushed. It finally was dragged to the beach.

Earlier in the day Capt. Carland and his crew rescued ten men in a launch owned by Daniel Crowne, disabled three miles out in the lake. The peril of the men in Crowne's launch was seen by the man in the watch tower of the life saving station. He gave the alarm and the life boat went to the rescue. When they arrived the ten men were bailing water from the boat and clinging to the sides to keep from being thrown out by the waves.

Shortly after the men in Crowne's launch were rescued the "lookout" in the tower sighted the launch "Ella S." in trouble, two miles out in the lake. Capt. Carland and a crew again started out. Five men were in the boat. They were John Marchette, 848 Taylor street, the owner; Veto Carbone, Otto Carbone, Herman Schmidt, and George Riggs.

Life savers at the Jackson park station rescued the occupants of two disabled launches during the gale last night.

Holds Up Companion.

William Swanson of 7127 Drexel avenue and Elmer Svenson of 6047 Monroe avenue, who were rescued by the Jackson park life savers, had a narrow escape from drowning when their launch capsized after being disabled. Swanson could not swim, but he was held up by Svenson until the arrival of aid. Ralph Ware and his brother, Carl, of 5402 Cornell avenue assisted in the rescue. Swanson was unconscious when taken ashore and was not revived for four hours.

Later the life saving crew rescued two persons in the Florence S., which was disabled a mile out in the lake.

One of the Evanston Yacht club fleet, the Teaser, was overturned, and Nat Sheridan and Howard Stone were pulled from the water by means of lines cast from the end of the pier.

The bathing beach attendants say the crowds were greater than ever before. Everywhere there was difficulty in making the bathers leave the water to give late comers a chance at the suits. Long lines stood for hours in the blazing sun waiting for a chance to get in the water.

"Invisible Hose" Shocks.

The day brought out a few more startling styles in bathing apparel. One that shocked the police was that of an unidentified young woman at Diversey beach. Their first intimation of trouble was the sight of a dense mass of men surging together on the beach and cheering. Pushing through the press the policemen saw the girl embarrassed but still game. Her stockings, such as they were, were white, but so gauzy of texture they appeared flesh colored and were generally believed entirely absent. The girl was led to the bathing pavilion and ordered to wear heavier apparel.

Dr. Rosalie Ladova, who was arrested last Sunday when she appeared at the Jackson park beach in bloomers, will circulate a petition requesting the city council to regulate the bathing costumes on the Chicago beaches. She says the petition will demand women be allowed to bathe at beaches without wearing skirts.

Resolutions indorsing Dr. Ladova's costume were adopted at a meeting of the Sixth Ward Political Equality league at the Del Prado hotel on Friday.

A sign forbidding women to appear on the Jackson park beach without skirts on their suits was posted on Saturday.

Bather Is Sunstruck.

Albert Miller, 1622 Park avenue, lay down on the Diversey beach after coming out of the water. He was unconscious when his friend and roommate, Walter Vallems, found him there half an hour later. The Lincoln park police took him to the Alexian Brothers' hospital. It is believed he was sunstruck.

A man who stopped every automobile on Stockton road, Lincoln park, and presented the occupants with letters written in German, was believed to be mentally unbalanced, due to the heat, and was arrested.

The letter said he had a machine which could talk seven different languages. He wanted $10,000,000 and agreed to give 45 per cent profits. The missive was signed Herman Lange, 1013 Madison street, Arcadia hotel. Capt. Shaw of the Lincoln park police considered him harmless and told him to go home.

Edward Gamble, 1212 Elmwood avenue, Evanston, banker, was slightly injured when overcome by the heat he fell against a saloon window at 25 West Quincy street. He received lacerations on his left hand and arm. He was taken to the Iroquois Memorial hospital, and left the hospital unassisted.

Boy Drowns in Lake Calumet.

Raymond Schwartz, 7709 Chauncey avenue, was drowned while swimming in Lake Calumet near the foot of East One Hundred and Fifteenth place. He is believed to have been seized with cramps. Raymond Schneider, 19 years old, 1738 Irving Park boulevard, a companion, made futile attempts to save the victim.

The two youths had gone out in the lake in a rowboat. When they were about 300 yards from the shore young Schwartz left the boat to swim. Schneider had rowed about 200 feet away when Schwartz called out that he was ill. Schneider immediately rowed in his direction, but the victim went down before he could reach him.

Albert Miller of 1622 Park avenue was overcome by the heat while on the shore at Diversey beach. He fell into shallow water, but was pulled out by Lincoln Park Policeman Joseph Brocker.

A thousand bathers at Manhattan beach abandoned their swimming long enough to watch the baptising of six new members of Mispah mission by W. W. Pieton, leader of the flock. The six were led into the water up to their necks and ducked, making the trip in their regular street costumes and participating, still drenched, in a short service on shore.

ISADORA DUNCAN NEAR DEATH; AUTO CRASHES INTO GATES.

Classic Dancer and Brother Shaken Up in Accident at Mondragon, France, Grade Crossing.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Aug. 3.—Isadora Duncan, the classic dancer, and her brother, had a narrow escape from death today in an automobile accident between Orange and Chambery. She was on her way to Orange to attend the performances given by the Comedie Francaise at the Antique theater.

The chauffeur failed to notice that the gates at a grade crossing at Mondragon were closed, and the car dashed into them at full speed. The gates were smashed, the car damaged, but the occupants were not injured.

Isadora Duncan lost two of her three children recently when the automobile in which they were driving in Paris fell into the Seine. The chauffeur lost control of the car.

WOMEN PLAN PROTEST MEETING AGAINST TELEPHONE MERGER

Directors of Cook County Party to Convene Monday as First Gun in Fight to Halt Absorption.

Directors of the Woman's party of Cook county will meet on Tuesday to discuss the Chicago Telephone company. According to Mrs. Charlotte Rhodus, president of the party, resolutions will be passed at the meeting protesting against the Bell system's plan to buy up the Automatic company's holdings.

"We understand the Bell company intends to buy out the Automatic and have exclusive telephone rights in the city," said Mrs. Rhodus yesterday. "We will protest against the proposition unless the Chicago Telephone company agrees to adopt the improvements of the Automatic company and reduce rates.

"The telephone rates are already exorbitant. If one company gets exclusive rights rates will be higher unless a specific contract is made with the city."

SEEK NEW HOLSTEIN SUSPECT.

Morgan Park Authorities Secure Clew Through Maid's Conversation Heard Over Phone.

"Bob" White, a negro character of Morgan Park, is being sought in connection with the murder of Benjamin Holstein, the schoolboy slain in that suburb on Monday, as a result of statements made by Aileene Childers, a negress maid in the home of E. C. Sturges, at 2420 Fairfax avenue, Morgan Park.

Evidence of alleged knowledge of the murder possessed by the maid was given last night by Mr. Sturges. He said he had overheard Aileene speaking with another woman over the telephone, and that the latter had warned her to "keep her mouth shut and don't talk to reporters."

Following the receipt of this information Trustee Jenner went to the Sturges home. He says the woman admitted the telephone conversation and gave information implicating "Bob" White.

FUNERAL MUSIC AT WEDDING.

Gene Greene Has Memorial to First Wife Before Marriage to Schoolgirl.

"Such a beautiful sentiment," said friends of Gene Greene, a Chicago vaudeville performer, last night when they learned the circumstances of his secret marriage of last Tuesday.

Greene's first wife died last February, and he insisted on a funeral march when he entered the church at Rensselaer, Ind., with his second bride. With that touching memorial completed, the ceremony, performed at the Presbyterian church of the Indiana town, proceeded. The closing organ number was in ragtime, according to a Rensselaer newspaper.

Greene's new wife is a girl of 18, formerly Miss Harriet Kliessendorff, who told the clergyman she was a school girl. The trip to Rensselaer was by automobile.

DITCHES AUTO BUS; SAVES BABY'S LIFE

Chauffeur Avoids Child, but Twenty-eight Passengers Have Narrow Escape.

ONLY DRIVER INJURED.

Two Visitors Racing for Train at Station Collide with Chicago Taxicab.

Twenty-eight persons from South Chicago, returning from an outing at Cedar Lake, Ind., had a thrilling escape from serious injury yesterday when the big auto bus in which they were riding rolled into a ditch at Hammond, Ind. The chauffeur, Martin Roy, who lives at 3021 Indiana avenue, was badly hurt, and probably will lose the sight of his left eye.

The accident was risked by Roy in avoiding a 4 year old Mary Bankowhowas, who toddled into the street just in front of the big vehicle. He took the slim chance of getting past a culvert at one side for the sake of saving the child's life, but the outer wheels passed the edge and the bus fell. It rolled on its side and threw its occupants in a heap, but did not roll further.

The chauffeur is supposed to have struck his face against the steering wheel. He was carried to St. Margaret's hospital, but as soon as he was bandaged asked to come to Chicago to have his eye examined by specialists. None of the passengers were hurt enough to necessitate a trip to the hospital.

Woman and Girl Hurt.

A speeding automobile careened into the ditch along Lincoln avenue, near Niles Center, last night when the deep ruts snapped the steering gear. The women and children passengers had to be taken to Ravenswood hospital.

H. S. Wright and his wife of 4348 North Clark street, Mr. and Mrs. Ben T. Olsen of 1454 Reed place, and Olsen's two children were in the car. The men were unhurt. Mrs. Olsen received a broken arm and her daughter, Bernice, a fractured leg. Mrs. Wright received injuries to her head which may prove serious.

The engine in the car of P. J. Poole, 7206 St. Lawrence avenue, "died" just as the car had cleared the Illinois Central tracks at Seventy-second street. Had the accident happened a second earlier, Poole, his wife, and Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Smith, 720 West Seventy-second street, probably would have been killed, for a train whirled past, striking the rear of the car and tossing it around, but not overturning it.

Auto Hits Telegraph Pole.

Philip J. Baier of 1112 Lawrence avenue, driving his automobile at Roscoe and Halsted streets, saw a street car approaching, and threw on his brakes fast. The brakes caught, but the car skidded so rapidly it burst a tire and swerved over the curb and into a telegraph pole. Baier was unhurt, but two of his four passengers—Thomas Garrity of 825 Roscoe street and Alvin Hanson of 3225 Oak place—were taken to Alexian Brothers' hospital, the former with a compound fracture of the leg and numerous contusions.

John Reinert, 3108 Southport avenue, crossing the street near his residence, was run down by an auto truck of the Kostakos company, 116 West Michigan street, and badly shaken up. The driver was not arrested.

Eddy Inquest Today.

The coroner's inquest into the death of Bert S. Eddy, who was killed in an automobile accident at Stony Island avenue and the Midway Saturday night, will be held today. Eddy was hurled against a Jackson Park car by the automobile which he was trying to crank.

Three persons were in the machine at the time of the accident. They were Miss Agnes MacLarty, 4047 Lowe avenue; Miss L. Jatson, 5865 Magnolia avenue; and E. E. Arrison, 6337 Winthrop avenue, who was driving the car. The four had been riding in Eddy's car when the engine "died." Eddy climbed out to start it, but forgot to put the gears in neutral position. Just as he turned the crank the machine leaped forward and crushed him against the street car.

Denies Wife Story.

He was hurried to the Washington Park hospital, but died in a few minutes. The women went to the hospital in the machine. It was reported one of the women told the hospital authorities she was the wife of Eddy, but this was denied by Miss MacLarty last night. Miss MacLarty denied she or Miss Jatson fled after the accident. Eddy lived at 7452 Malvern avenue, and was formerly works manager of the M. Rumely company, at Laporte, Ind.

AUTO ACCIDENTS OF DAY.

NEW YORK—Osgood Peil, a real estate broker, and his chauffeur were killed, two others were badly injured in an automobile accident.

WATERBURY, Conn.—One policeman was killed, a police commissioner probably fatally hurt, and three others injured when a police automobile upset.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va.—J. L. Cook, his wife, and their child were seriously injured when their automobile went over an embankment.

MR. and MRS. W. FRED RODGER

SEEKS CHICAGO DETECTIVES WHO BULLIED SICK WOMAN.

Prosecutor at Holland, Mich., Issues Warrants for Carlin and Flannigan in Schartenberg Case.

Holland, Mich., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Prosecuting Attorney Esterhouse has issued warrants for the arrest of James Carlin and Thomas Flannigan, Chicago detectives, who are alleged to have forcibly taken Charles Schartenberg, a Chicago newspaper man, back to Chicago. The charges are kidnaping and taking by force and conspiracy to falsely imprison.

Schartenberg, with his baby, wife, and nurse came across the lake to Macatawa Park when the detectives were detailed to apprehend him as a witness.

The detectives, it is alleged, induced Deputy Sheriff Harrington to arrest Schartenberg on a charge of being a fugitive from justice.

In Chicago Schartenberg was released by habeas corpus and went voluntarily before the grand jury to give his testimony. He then returned to Macatawa Park and instituted proceedings against the detectives.

The men will be tried in the Ottawa Circuit court providing the necessary extradition permission from the governor of Illinois and the governor of Michigan can be obtained.

Police Get Three "Shooting Craps" in Street and Fourteen at Poker Game.

Seventeen men were arrested on charges of gambling last night when the police of the Maxwell street station broke up a street game at Newberry avenue and Maxwell street, where three men were "shooting craps," and shortly afterward raided a poker game at the house of John Kralten, at 1081 Maxwell street, where fourteen men were arrested.

RETURN FROM HONEYMOON; FIND DOLLS ON FRONT FLOOR.

Old Shoes, Cluster of Rags, and Placards Also Greet Couple at "The Newlyweds' House."

How would you like to leave town for three weeks on a happy honeymoon? Fine? But if, when you returned, you should go to your new home and find the front porch decorated with strings of old shoes, clusters of rags, and ancient and unclad dolls—well, that would fluster you a bit, wouldn't it?

That is what happened to Mr. and Mrs. W. Fred Rodger of Maywood. Following a wedding trip to New York, they returned Saturday to 619 South Eighth avenue. There were a number of friends awaiting them. As they approached their house they were greeted with the sight of the old shoes, rags and dolls. There were also a number of placards tacked on the porch and the front lawn. These bore such inscriptions as, "The Newlyweds' House," "Honeymoon Over—We're Broke," and "Blessed Be the Tie That Binds."

"They've even put things in the top branches of the trees," said Mr. Rodger. "However, we don't mind—all newly married people are at the mercy of their friends."

Before her marriage Mrs. Rodger was Miss Bernice Garner of Maywood. Mr. Rodger is connected with a Chicago insurance concern.

AIRMEN RESCUERS GET DUCKINGS

Aeroyachtsman Harold F. McCormick and His Navigator Go Into Lake Twice.

NOT IN FLYING CRAFT.

Aid in Bringing Motorboat Watchman and Canoeists to Shore.

Harold F. McCormick and his air chauffeur, Charles C. Witmer, had two duckings apiece in Lake Michigan yesterday, although the aeroyacht Edith was not taken from the Lake Forest hangar. In addition Mr. McCormick and his pilot assisted in rescuing the former's cousin, Chauncey, and Walker Wolf of Chicago from an overturned canoe.

Called to Rescue Watchman.

Wind and waves were too strong for the Edith, and all hands were called out to rescue a watchman in the McCormick motor boat, which was riding the heavy surf and shipping water outside the breakwater. McCormick, Witmer, and two others were upset while trying to reach the power craft in a rowboat. The water was but four feet deep, and they were in no danger. McCormick and Witmer received their second immersion when they tried single handed rescues.

The lone mariner on the motorboat finally was notified that a life preserver would be thrown him. This he declined, and, doffing his clothes, swam ashore. His arrival on the beach, however, necessitated some tactful "rescue" work, because of the presence of several women.

Bathers Tipped Out of Canoe.

Chauncey McCormick and Wolf were canoeing and bathing when first overturned. Later they ventured farther out and were in some danger, when Harold F. McCormick and Skypilot Witmer effected a rescue in a rowboat.

PIRATES GET YACHT CHEESE

Speedy Craft Victim of Night Beach Mystery.

POLICE OPEN WIDE SEARCH.

Mabel Taliaferro, Actress, Starts for Cruise and Makes Discovery.

The sailboat Cheese, speediest twenty-one footer on the north shore, has vanished. Mystery surrounds its disappearance from Clarendon beach early yesterday morning. Mystery veiled its sudden capsizing Thursday night when the Cheese itself and seven passengers narrowly escaped a grave near the Lawrence avenue intake.

A band of lake pirates is believed to be responsible for the sudden disappearance of the boat.

Mean Advantage Taken.

A mean advantage was taken of the Cheese by those who stole it. The boat was in a disabled condition—a veritable lake invalid—with two of its starboard ribs in a plaster paris cast. Not only this, but the center board had an asthmatic wheeze and the binnacle light was out of commission.

The Cheese's prowess in showing its stern to other lake craft is believed to lie in the air chambers, which Skipper "Bill" Cochran, the chief owner, says it has.

Through its speed, the Cheese, the registered name of which is the Petrel, has attracted the attention of lake men and possible pirates.

Belief that pirates had confiscated the boat led Skipper Cochran to report to the police. Descriptions of the Cheese were sent by the police to all towns along the lake.

But the Cheese Is Missing!

Discovery of the vanishing of the Cheese was made in the early morning. A party ciceroned by Skipper Cochran started for a day on the lake. Among the guests was the actress, Mabel Taliaferro, now the bride of Thomas J. Carrigan, leading man for the Polyscope moving picture concern. Carrigan lives at the Hotel Navarro, Evanston and Sunnyside avenues, where the group of Cheese owners live.

When the party reached Clarendon beach the Cheese was missing from the sandy shore, its usual berth.

CHURCHES UNITE TO ROUSE WOMEN

ALLIED LEAGUES TO HELP

Hope to Bring Out 250,000 Ballots; Liquor Association Denounced.

The church organizations of Chicago are uniting for instruction of woman voters. They plan thus to counteract the woman votes which the United Societies has said it will poll at the next election. E. J. Davis of the Anti-Saloon league announced the project last night.

"There are 1,002 churches in Chicago, with 250,000 members," he said. "One-half of that number are voters, and the majority of them are women. Church women are strong for law and order and decency. Their vote will be against the liquor interests. Preparations now are being made for the instruction of this large body of women voters.

"Through the church pulpits in this great crusade by the ballot against the liquor interests we hope to get out that quarter of a million voters in Chicago who fail to register now. Our organization will secure the names of all voters in precincts located about certain churches.

Church to Back Precinct Work.

The votes of these men and women will be solicited from the pulpit. Workers from the church organizations will be sent out to talk to them. The various voting precincts will be assigned to various churches. The woman's clubs, the ladies' aid societies, the woman's clubs, the ladies' aid societies, the women instructed in the proper use of the ballot. One hundred and forty-six instructors will be sent out to these organizations from the Anti-Saloon league, which also will maintain another school for the instruction of more instructors.

"We intend to corral that 10 per cent of the church membership which doesn't vote. The Swedish Good Templars will be in the movement. The instruction will be carried into the 500 Bible classes in the city. Miss C. Louise Lewis, head of the social service department of the western division of the Epworth league, will start the organization among the various local leagues, which average forty members each. The Young People's Civic league has been interested in the project and is expected to poll 40,000 votes."

Union Controls 50,000 in State.

Miss Epha Marshall, state corresponding secretary of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Illinois, has communicated with the league. She says her organization controls from 30,000 to 50,000 votes throughout the state and the members of the organization have been instructed in equal suffrage for years. The W. C. T. U. organization will be made up of one committeewoman from each Chicago ward. Other organizations intend to provide watchers for the polling places on election day.

The W. C. T. U. also is furthering suffrage instruction among the foreign born women of Chicago. A department for this work has been organized by Miss Susane A. Hable of 3407 West Harrison street.

Ministers Denounce "Wets."

"Wets" were denounced for proclaiming friendship for woman suffrage and the Merchants and Dealers' association was charged with willful deception in its assertions that it is not a liquor organization in the evening by the Rev. J. K. Shields, chairman of the headquarters committee and former state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league. He addressed a congregation in the Western Avenue Methodist Episcopal church.

"If the local option men in the recent legislature had been as solid against woman suffrage as the 'wets,' it would have been folly to have even introduced the bill," said the Rev. S. H. Wirsching, superintendent of the northern district of the Anti-Saloon league, in the morning at Lyons Congregational church.

Arthur Burrage Farwell, president of the Law and Order league, who spoke in the South Park Presbyterian church, read a letter from the United Societies of Chicago, in which the friends of the United Societies were advised to defeat the suffrage bill.

GAELIC FESTIVAL DRAWS BIG CROWD

FEIS OF TARA RENEWED.

Dances, Games, and Educational Contests Replica of Fete of Olden Days.

The second annual Chicago Feis, organized by the Gaelic League of Ireland in conjunction with the Chicago Gaelic society, was held before an audience of 10,000 yesterday in Comiskey park at Thirty-fifth street and Shields avenue.

Gov. E. F. Dunne presided and delivered the initial address. He explained that the Feis is held annually to bring about the restoration of Irish language, literature, poetry, games, customs, and nationhood. He declared that while he was not able to speak the Gaelic language, he was entirely in sympathy with the idea.

"I know of no page of history," he said, "a student will find so interesting as the page which recounts the story of the Irish people in their struggle to preserve their traditions, language, and customs."

Make Addresses in Gaelic.

Michael O'Gallagher and Daniel Sheehan next spoke in the Gaelic tongue. Judge John P. McGoorty declared it was when the triennial conferences on the hill of Tara began to be held irregularly that the Irish nation began to lose its hold as a nation.

Following the speaking, competitions were held in Gaelic folk dances, instrumental renditions of Irish national songs, Gaelic recitations, singing, story telling and conversation. Essays in Gaelic were read by Anna V. O'Connell, Lena A. O'Connell, and Lillie M. O'Connell of Kerry, Ireland.

The dances included the jig and reel, the hornpipe, the blackbird, the four hand reel, the Scottish sword dance, the eight hand jig, and the eight hand reel.

Alice Dunne Dances.

Alice Dunne, daughter of the governor, danced the highland fling with Babe Wheeler. Margaret Moloney, Eileen Moloney, and Nettie McPherson. One of the features of the dancing contest was the sword dance by Babe Wheeler, Margaret Moloney, Eileen Moloney, Nettie McPherson, and John Sim A baby quartet of dancers, Laurentine Spiro, Josie Gleeson, Hannah Dalton, and Regina Jakats, brought much applause.

A Gaelic football game, played between the Shannon Rovers and the Erin Hopes, was won by the former, 5 to 4.

NERO AWARDS BUTCHER PRIZE

Thumbs Down When Patrickus Sullivanus Wields His Blade.

COWS AND SHEEP MARTYRS.

Populus Catches Escaped Pig at Union's Picnic.

Five martyrs were offered up for sacrifice yesterday before 5,000 spectators, all of whom had "thumbs down." They were butchered to make a Chicago holiday. Three martyrs were sheep and two were cows. There also was a greased pig in evidence. The pig hasn't been given over to the gladiators yet, but probably will be converted into pork chops, etc., some time this afternoon.

The sacrifices were made at a picnic for the Cattle and Sheep Butchers' union in World's Fair park at Sixty-seventh street and Stony Island avenue. The arena was a twenty by twenty foot platform, with a number of meat hooks for architectural adornment.

The Emperor Nero was present in the person of Dennis Lane, president of the union. He did not bring along his fiddle, having instead a stop watch to take the time of the contest by the gladiators.

Nero's Favor to Speediest Man.

"Friends, Americans, countrymen," he announced, "lend me your kind attention. We have come here to kill these martyrs, not to praise them. And the man that does it in the speediest time will win the prize put up for the occasion."

Forthwith, the three sheep were brought to the platform. They did not behave like lambs being led to the slaughter, managing to tango on more than one bunion during the procedure.

Patrickus Sullivanus, champion sheep dresser of the empire, then took his place on the platform, while Nero and a city policeman held stopwatches. At a given signal Patrickus neatly jabbed the first martyr in the jugular vein, and within two minutes and ten seconds the martyr was completely dressed, or undressed, and laid out in mutton chops. His feat was loudly applauded by the multitude, among whom were many women and children.

Lo, the Great Patrickus!

Patrickus was followed by Mauricius Murphi of the w. k. Murphi family. Mauricius slaughtered and dressed the next martyr in one minute and fifty-six seconds. Because of points relative to the artistic side of the dressing, his score and the score of Patrickus were declared a draw. Louisius Bowmanus came in second with a record of 2:20.

Philippus Murphi and Fredericus Kastendiekus were the slayers of the cow martyrs. These went over the Great Divide via the less esthetic but more effective, sledge hammer route, meeting their deaths bravely and stoically without a single "moo" of protest. Philippus, who is the world's champion cattle dresser, won, reducing his cow to sirloin and porterhouse units in 3:56.

The greased pig did not conduct himself like a true martyr, and after a chase which led all over the park and many squeals he was caught by two spectators, who will divide him in half sometime today.

Former Ald. Peter E. Wendling of the Twenty-ninth ward acted as judge of the contests. Dr. B. D. Satek, a veterinarian for the board of health, was there as official inspector for the city. Inspector Murphy of the United States department of agriculture assisted Nero as timekeeper.

Then the populace left the amphitheater for the less exciting pastimes of dancing and knocking down stuffed dolls with baseballs.

You can easily find out what it means to buy diamonds direct from the importer. If you can save nearly one-half, or buy a diamond twice as large for the same amount of money, it is worth taking the time to investigate, make comparisons, and use good judgment before you purchase. For instance: one-half carat diamond rings are sold by wholesale jewelers to the retail jewelers. Wholesale jewelers have to pay diamond importers a commission and their traveling men's expenses, and salary must be added. This, you know, is a large item, and, as retail jewelers seldom pay cash, interest must be charged to them for three to nine months' credit. The retail jewelers' forty per cent profit added to the wholesale price makes a cost of $35 to the public. We import these one-half carat Diamonds direct to this establishment and sell them to the public for $20.

OFFERS $100 REWARD FOR ARREST OF REJECTED SUITOR.

Miss Ethel A. Staley Says William McLaurin Tried to Woo Her and Then Left with $900 Diamond Ring.

Miss Ethel A. Staley of McKeesport, Pa., on Tuesday rejected the proffered heart and hand of William McLaurin, who posed as a wealthy commission man and graduate of West Point. Saturday night, it is charged, McLaurin disappeared with a $900 diamond ring owned by Miss Staley. Both were guests of the Hotel Hayes, 1131 East Sixty-fourth street.

Last night Miss Staley went to the Woodlawn station and reported the matter, asking that McLaurin be arrested. She offered the police a reward of $100 for the capture of her vanished suitor and the recovery of the ring, a keepsake given her by her mother, now dead.

Miss Staley said she was introduced to McLaurin in McKeesport two years ago. When she came to Chicago three weeks ago she again met McLaurin. The latter registered at the same hotel and three days ago is said to have made a proposal of marriage, which Miss Staley said she rejected.

Miss Staley, according to detectives, told them that she had had a love affair years before. This experience caused her to reject his offer of marriage. Despite her refusal to wed she says McLaurin insisted on paying attentions to her, and Saturday night took her to a restaurant at Sixty-third street and Cottage Grove avenue.

While in the restaurant Miss Staley told the police McLaurin took the ring which was set with two diamonds and a ruby from her finger and placed it on his own hand. He then suggested that they return to the hotel, and while talking to McLaurin later on, Miss Staley says she was informed that a money order from her father awaited her in a nearby telegraph office, and she forgot about the ring and hurried away, leaving McLaurin. Later she remembered that McLaurin had not returned the ring. She learned he had removed his baggage and left the place. When she could obtain no trace of him yesterday, Miss Staley reported the case to the police.

FATHER CHAINS BOY TO STOVE FOR FLEEING FROM SCHOOL.

Youngster Tied Up Three Days and Kept on One Meal Daily Released by the Police.

Abraham Salabosky, 9 years old, of 1217 South Morgan street, who had been chained to a leg of the gitchen stove at his home since Thursday morning as a punishment for running away from school, was liberated by the police yesterday and a short time later his father, Jacob Salabosky, was arrested on a charge of cruelty to children.

Young Salabosky, the police were told, ran away from a Jewish school, and when he refused to return his father, before going to work on Thursday morning, gave his son a spanking and then chained him to the stove with a five foot chain and padlock.

As a further punishment, the boy was given but one meal a day and Mrs. Salabosky was threatened with similar punishment by her husband if she fed their son or released him.

Neighbors, hearing the cries of the boy after his father had gone to work, notified the police.

They broke down the door and released the boy by lifting up the stove.

MAN SHOT ON STREET CAR

Protests Against Assailant Stepping on His Foot.

HIT TWICE; LIKELY TO DIE.

Gun User Leaps Over Body and Escapes Pursuers.

A man was shot down on a crowded street car at Larrabee and West Division streets yesterday afternoon. He probably will die. Passengers were thrown into a panic. Women and children ducked under the seats to escape bullets. Men fought their way through the packed aisles, or climbed over the seats to reach the rear exit.

The man was shot because he objected to another man stepping on his foot. The victim is Joseph Marley of 300 Beethoven street. He was wounded twice—below the heart and in the left hand. His brother James was a witness.

Elbows Way Into Car.

The stranger, a young man dressed in a blue suit with white socks and tan shoes and a straw hat, elbowed his way through the center aisle where women hung to straps. He appeared intoxicated.

He slammed open the front vestibule door. The car was coming to a stop. The Marley brothers were about to get off. The stranger lurched and his heel came down heavily on Marley's toe.

"Where do you think you're going?" Marley asked. The stranger snatched a revolver from his pocket and fired three shots by way of reply.

Leaps Over Victim and Escapes.

Then he leaped over the fallen man, through the open door and landed on his feet. A crowd pursued him, but he escaped.

Marley was hurried into a nearby drug store and the police were called. They took him to the Alexian Brothers' hospital.

CORONER WILL INVESTIGATE CAUSE OF DEATH OF I. W. DUMM

Former Resident of Chateau Apartments Found Unconscious from Injuries in Furnished Room.

Dr. Frederick Torrence, senior interne of the bridewell hospital, who examined the man, said last night he found Dumm had been drinking and he believed from his investigation the man incurred his injuries by falling about his room.

Dumm formerly was a fruit dealer. He left his room in the Chateau apartment about a week ago and failed to return.

HIS FIRST 'LONG PANTS' STOLEN

Boy on Return from Swim Finds Youth Sharing Locker Has Taken Coveted Apparel.

Harold Gundstrom, 15 years old, of 4141 North Kedzie avenue, went to the North Shore bathing beach at Wilson avenue and the lake Saturday wearing for the first time his first pair of "long pants." He took a swim, sharing a locker with Fred Smith, 19 years old. Smith walked off wearing Gundstrom's suit. He was arrested yesterday.

"Those look like my new pants," said the boy as he discerned Smith walking on the street. "And that's the man who took them," he added, recognizing Smith.

Smith is a milkman.

Car Passenger Robbed.

Brunt Seymour of 3825 Calumet avenue yesterday reported he had been robbed of $15 while riding on a crowded State street car at Thirty-ninth street. Three men took the money from his inside coat pocket, then jumped off the car.

DAD DAHLGREN'S DUPLICITY DIMS SON'S COWBOY GLORIES.

Evanston Boy, Lured Back from Arizona Ranch, Finds Parent and Cell Ready to Dampen His Ardor.

Evanston's Jail is housing a Balked but Relentless Ambition. The Ambition, whose Name is Victor Dahlgren, yearns to be a Cowboy and to Rope 'Em and Hogtie 'Em on Arizona's Plains. Victor's Ambition is Bourdless, because he was Once known as the Model Bellhop at the Avenue hotel, yet is not Satisfied. Victor's Father cannot understand Ambition, hence Son's Captivity.

Two months ago Victor, who is 16, saw no Future in Bellhopping, and, taking $90, departed for Arizona. He laid his Ambition before the Management of an Arizona Ranch and secured a Cowboy Try-out by Keeping the Company Store. The Next Step was to be the Lariat, the "Chaps" and the High Heeled Boots.

About this time Father learned of Victor's Whereabouts and Wrote the Management to Discourage his Ambition. So the Ranch Boss artfully gave Victor a Fortnight's Respite from Cowboying with Pay and advised a visit Home. Victor, being Guileless, despite Life on the Plains, bit. When he sighted Evanston he found a Father unappreciative of his Rise in Life.

"I will not Desert my Chosen Profession," quoth Victor.

"Think it Over, Son," advised Mr. Dahlgren, as he deposited the boy with the Cops for Safe Keeping.

Moral—The North Shore is Wild Enough for Anyone.

DUPREY BELIEVED SELF-SLAIN OR AFFLICTED WITH DEMENTIA.

Search for Man Who Killed Photographer Whom He Accused of Attacking Daughter Fails.

E. J. Duprey, who shot and killed Henry Gronimus, a photographer, whom he accused of having attacked his daughter, is still at large, although he is being sought by the Chicago police and detectives in this and other cities.

Duprey's wife is aiding the police. She thinks he will come home in a day or so. Then she will gladly surrender him, so firm is her belief in his right to shoot Gronimus, and that a jury will agree with her.

A clew that led to Saginaw, Mich., where the hunted man once lived, petered out with the arrest of the wrong Duprey by the police of that city. Chicago avenue policemen who know the man think he has killed himself. The detective bureau is inclined to believe he is wandering about the country in a half demented condition.

FIRE HERO'S WIDOW FOUND DEAD

Mrs. Bertha McCullom Believed Heart Stroke Victim—Husband Killed in Building Blaze.

Mrs. Bertha McCullom of 4148 West Twentieth street, widow of a former fire captain, was last night found dead at her residence. She had been ill for some time and a neighbor who entered the house found Mrs. McCullom dead. Dr. A. W. Haessner of 4022 West Twenty-second street, who was called, said death was probably due to heart disease. Mrs. McCullom was the widow of James McCullom, who was killed in the destruction by fire of a building on the west side.

WIFE DIES AFTER OPERATION; HUSBAND ACCUSES MIDWIFE.

Mrs. Mathilda Mhnke of 1918 Addison Street Arrested After Death of Mrs. John Sutter.

Mrs. Mathilda Mhnke, a midwife living at 1918 Addison street, was arrested yesterday in connection with the death of Mrs. Josephine Sutter of 1802 North Kimball avenue. An illegal operation, the police were informed, had been performed several days ago by Mrs. Mhnke. Her arrest was made on complaint of John Sutter, husband of Mrs. Sutter.

When Mrs. Sutter's condition became serious Dr. R. C. Reinsche of 3445 West North avenue was called to attend her and he made a vain attempt to save her life.

Following the death of his wife, Sutter complained to the police that Mrs. Mhnke had performed the operation.

U.S. TO USE NO ARMS ON MEXICAN SOIL

Administration Now Unit in Opposition of Intervention by Force.

ASK EMBARGO BE LIFTED.

Constitutionalists Become Active on Huerta's Noninterference Ultimatum.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—After two weeks of incessant agitation, the one certainty of the Mexican situation is that there will be no armed intervention by the United States. The Wilson administration now is a unit of opposition to any step in that direction.

President Wilson is willing and eager to help Mexico help itself. It is expected that in a few days he will offer the good offices of the United States toward the settlement of the republic's internal dissensions. The president hopes that factions will accept the offer, but if they do not, there will be no intervention.

If an election is held and a stable government established, it will be recognized, but if no election is permitted and Huerta remains in power, he will not be recognized by the American government.

Huerta Edict Beclouds Issue.

Official Washington read with keen interest the declaration of Aurelíano Urrutia, the Mexican minister of interior, that Provisional President Huerta would not resign and, moreover, would brook no interference on the part of foreigners in his administration.

This announcement of his determination has beclouded the situation somewhat and has spurred the Constitutionalists to further activity to obtain the repeal of the embargo on arms. They claim that if they do not get arms the revolution will be a protracted struggle. With munitions of war, they say, they can quickly bring matters to a crisis.

Spokesman for Constitutionalists.

Gen. Eduardo Hay, who has been selected by the Constitutionalists as their spokesman, is now in Washington and will present this view to the senate foreign relations committee during the present week.

Having taken part in many battles, Hay is familiar with the military situation in Mexico and is prepared to answer all questions as to the aims and aspirations of the revolutionists.

Hay first came into prominence during the Madero revolution, when, as a young engineer of Scotch-Mexican parentage, educated at Notre Dame university, he took up arms against the Diaz government. He distinguished himself in many of the early battles, especially at Casas Grandes, Chihuahua, where he led a famous charge in which he was wounded several times and lost his left eye. He was taken prisoner by the Diaz troops, but made his escape from a federal hospital under sensational circumstances.

He was one of Madero's chief officers and later was elected to the Mexican congress, being chosen speaker of the chamber of deputies for a short term.

Pin Faith on Hay.

The Constitutionalists are pinning much faith in the argument Hay will make before the foreign relations committee, as he speaks English well and is as conversant with the liberal movement in Mexico as any of their number.

He came to Washington recently from Sonora, where he assisted Gen. Obregon in his successful campaign against Gen. Ojeda.

Secretary Bryan was at his desk in the state department today, but reported no advices from Mexico. He said he would remain here tomorrow at least, and was not certain when he would resume his lecture engagements.

BRITO FIGHTS FOR RELEASE.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 3.—An application for a writ of habeas corpus seeking the release of Emmanuel Castillo Brito, provisional governor of the Mexican state of Campeche, was signed today by Federal Judge Foster. The hearing is set for tomorrow morning.

Brito was arrested yesterday on advices from the United States attorney general's office, acting on a request from the present government of Mexico. Brito was charged with murder and robbery alleged to have been committed in Mexico.

J. L. Mott, an employé of the department of justice, and Ernesto Fernandez y Arteaga, representative here of the Constitutionalist leader Gen. Carranza, who were arrested Friday night by local detectives charged with attempting to blackmail Brito, are still in the parish prison.

G. Raymond Matthews, special agent of the department of justice, who was arrested with Mott and Arteaga on the same charge, has been paroled until tomorrow.

FEDERALS WIN TWO BATTLES.

Laredo, Tex., Aug. 3.—Constitutionalists were defeated by Mexican government troops in two battles during last week, according to official report made today to Gen. Joaquin Tellez, federal commander-in-chief at Nueva Laredo.

Gen. Maas reported the routing of 500 state troops who attacked San Buena Ventura, near Monclova, Friday. Thirty-seven of the attacking party were killed and many wounded.

Earlier in the week 300 Constitutionalists attacked the village of Santiago, but were driven back to the mountains by the arrival of Gen. Casso Lopez with two columns of troops. Lieut. Moya of the federals was killed.

HOSPITAL PHYSICIANS BLAME MAN'S DEATH ON OPERATION.

Assert Fall During Slide Down Pillar to Escape Did Not Cause Demise of Patient.

John Poliusch of Milwaukee, Wis., who escaped from the Jefferson Park hospital on Friday night and died two hours after sliding down a pillar from the second floor of the institution, is believed to have come to his death as the result of an operation which had been performed on Friday afternoon.

At first officials at the hospital refused to give out his name, asserting his death was not one which the coroner should investigate.

Poliusch came from Milwaukee some time ago and went to the hospital to have the operation performed. His sister visited him and because of his condition the last sacrament was administered by a priest.

Poliusch became delirious and struggled with two nurses, and after breaking away from them, leaped out to a porch on the second floor and slid down a pillar toward the ground. He fell when six feet from the yard. Physicians said his death was caused by the operation, which had not been successful.

The death of Poliusch was called to the attention of Lieut. Patrick McWeeny of the Lake street station, and he said an investigation would be started this morning.

ZONE PEACE HANGS ON INTERVENTION

the Spanish speaking Indians who make up the balance of the country.

In the Spanish speaking portion the liberal city of Leon and the conservative city of Granada would fly at each other's throats were it not for the presence in the country of armed American marines.

In 1907 Mr. Elihu Root practically compelled the five Central American states through their representatives in Washington to sign a "convention for the establishment of a Central American court of justice." By this convention these countries agreed "to constitute and maintain a permanent tribunal," called "the Central American Court of Justice, to which they bind themselves to submit all controversies or questions which may arise among them, of whatsoever nature, and no matter what their origin may be, in case the respective departments of foreign affairs should not have been able to reach an understanding."

The convention goes on to provide for the settlement by this court of every kind of dispute which can be conceived of.

The Central Americans entered into this agreement because they had to. They did not expect, nor in most cases intend, that it should settle their differences. Time has shown them to have been correct in their judgment. The United States could force the court on Central America, but unless they saw that its proceedings were regular, and then enforced its findings with the physical force of the United States, its findings were bound to be void. Men of the type of Cabrera are not going to be bound by treaties or promises.

Sole Case Was "Framed."

There has been but one important case before this court. The judges came, each instructed as to how he should find. Naturally the case was a farce. Even nature rebelled at the falsity of the whole thing and destroyed by means of an earthquake the peace palace at Cartago, Costa Rica, built by Andrew Carnegie.

The inability of these governments to keep any agreement is shown by the fate of the Corinto compact of 1902. By this the different presidents agreed to help each other to remain in power. Within a short time they were plotting each other's overthrow as usual. Costa Rica must be excepted, as she keeps clear of the tangles of Central American politics.

Mr. Knox's "dollar diplomacy," as applied to Central America, meant loaning them money to settle their outstanding debts, thus removing the excuse for European intervention. The loan was to be under American supervision to insure honest administration and to remove the chief incentive for revolution, i. e., the gaining of control of the government funds.

Dollar Diplomacy Flat Failure.

This was the plan applied to Nicaragua. What was the result? There was a revolution against the party in power. The United States, to maintain order, had to send in a small expeditionary force, which fought a small campaign. The result has been that the Nicaraguans claim that the United States interfered to hold in power a president and a party whom they did not want, and that this action was not for the best good of the country and the general support of American interests as a whole, but merely for the best interests of the American bank.

In other words, they consider that one American interest was powerful enough to bring about armed intervention in its favor. This is the view taken throughout Central America and has created a fear of American investments not held before.

In Guatemala the people feared this policy would simply mean that the country would be saddled with another debt from which Cabrera and whatever American bank might be concerned would reap the profit, while the country paid the bills without receiving any benefit.

While Central Americans thought that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Root did not always understand them, they knew that their actions were governed by a desire to be just and to better conditions. Their feeling toward Mr. Taft and Mr. Knox was one of deep suspicion. They considered them capable of anything to advance the power of special American interests. As a result "dollar diplomacy" has been a failure as far as Central America is concerned.

Guatemala Held Bad Example.

Guatemala is the best example of the failure of the policy of supporting a government in power with the idea that any staple government is better than constant revolution.

Cabrera, having had an excellent example in the expulsion of Zelaya from Nicaragua of what the power of the United States was capable of, has always endeavored to deceive and appease American public opinion. There is no disorder in Guatemala because no one dares cause any under the present system of terrorism.

To that extent Cabrera's government may be called a staple one. As such it has received the support of the United States. As a consequence the people of Guatemala feel that the boast of the American people of helping the downtrodden and of always wishing to see justice done is the emptiest this world ever has heard.

Are they not living under a tyranny as vile as the earth has ever seen? Are they individually not only in danger of but actually losing their liberty, their property, their wives and daughters, and their lives at the whim of a despot and his officials? Has the United States done anything to remedy this condition? No! It supports Cabrera and lands troops in Nicaragua to support an American bank.

Our efforts to get Mexico to help us in the policing of Central America came to nothing. It is true she nominally helped us to compel the five states to sign their arbitration treaty. As a rule, however, Porfirio Diaz maintained that Mexico's interests did not extend south of Guatemala. However, he had a certain fear of Cabrera, so therefore helped his rival, Zelaya, thereby working against us.

When we forced Zelaya to leave Nicaragua he went to Mexico and was welcomed by Diaz. Diaz sent Mr. Creel to Washington to explain that Zelaya's presence meant nothing. However, we insisted on his leaving Mexico. His continued presence there could only mean one thing in Central American eyes, viz., his support by Mexico.

The truth of the matter is that it is useless to expect any of these states to help us. The problem is ours and we must face it.

The error in all our efforts to straighten out Central America has been that none of them touch the root of the trouble which is that the people of these countries with the single exception of Costa Rica are incapable of setting up and maintaining just governments.

The better class, which means at the same time the educated class, is generally in the minority. In addition they have not in their ideas of government progressed much beyond the feudal state. If their numbers permitted them to establish a government it would be a feudal one with no consideration for the mass of the people and plenty of privilege for themselves. This would be sure to bring about disorder.

Can't Expect Just Governments.

The mass of the people in most of these countries are ignorant, uneducated Indians, but conscious of the power of their numbers. It is impossible to expect them to establish a just government.

This state of affairs is taken advantage of by the politicos, men of some education, often of considerable ability, who know how to gain a following.

These men want the disturbed conditions, which exist at present, as it permits them to gain power which they always use in the most unscrupulous manner to fill their own pockets.

They naturally detest and fear the United States and do everything they can to spread this dislike among the people.

So far our application of the Monroe doctrine has meant that we have refused to punish these creatures ourselves, we have refused to let Europe punish them, and we have by our protection enabled them to inflict themselves and their barbarous methods on the people of Central America, who, handicapped by the heritage of centuries of Spanish misrule, need every possible chance and encouragement.

Would Welcome Intervention.

The people of Central America who really want good government, and naturally there is a considerable number, are not at bottom hostile to the United States, nor would they bitterly oppose intervention. In fact, many of them would welcome it. They want it to be impersonal, however, to bring good government and an end to present conditions, not to be in support of some American interest, while at the same time leaving conditions practically as they are. In other words, they want intervention of the type which put Cuba and Puerto Rico on their feet, not that of Nicaragua.

The people of the United States do not want to intervene in Central America. This, however, does not alter the fact that conditions as they are cannot go on indefinitely. They must be made an end to.

The opening of the Panama canal, with its consequent opening to the world of much of Central America which is now far from the main lines of commerce, means the hastening of that end. The people of the United States can take their choice. They must straighten out Central America or let some European power do so. There are no other roads open.

NEW LAKE SPORT THRILLS BEACHES

Daring Rider Speeds Over the Waves in Water Chariot Behind Motor Boat.

CATAPAULT INTO WAVES

Credits Diversion to South America and May Introduce It at Big Carnival Here.

A new water sport was introduced yesterday in Chicago. It is said to be more thrilling than any other ever seen on the lakes. The daring performer speeds over the waves in a raftlike contraption called a skimmer.

Twenty thousand persons lining the north shore beaches paused in their swimming or arose from their sand parties to witness the spectacle.

To the big gallery of fans at Wilson beach was given the first thrill. The motorboat Gee Whiz drew up near the life rafts, and a frame skimmer two by six feet was hooked on with a fifty foot tow rope. On the skimmer climbed Walter Walker of 4743 Winthrop avenue. The motor boat chugged ahead, easily pulling its tow. Walker stood erect on the skimmer and held a pair of lines attached to the forward corners.

Raft Shoots Over Lake.

As more power was turned on by William Bromley in the Gee Whiz the trailing raft shot over the water, guided by the "chariot driver." With every turn of the motor boat the skimmer swerved, but Walker leaned to make it balance and swayed over the waves. The ride continued north as far as the Saddle and Cycle club pier and then a perilous turn was taken. The Gee Whiz, at a speed of eight miles an hour, whirled around in a semi circle, but Walker on the skimmer manipulated his balance so as to keep the tow line taut and the raft right side up, taking the sharp curve at high speed.

The motor boat then pursued a southerly course, passing Clarendon beach at a 25 knot clip, while bathers watched fascinated. The trip extended almost to Lincoln park and then the route led back to Wilson beach where dangerous maeuvers were undertaken.

Catapulted Into Water.

Whirling north in front of the Press club beach off Lakeside place, the Gee Whiz gave a sudden jerky turn and the chariot driver was catapulted into the water. Women on the shore screamed as Walker went under the water, but he soon came up and started toward the shore with full strong overarm strokes.

On the beach Walker told of the ride.

"It's the greatest ever," he said. "Just like riding in a chariot behind fast horses, except it is much faster, for the Gee Whiz made as high as twenty-five knots an hour. It's easy to ride the skimmer, I have found out today, but there is a lot to learn about balancing.

"The sport is common in South America. That is where I first saw it some months ago. So when I came home I built a skimmer and the first test marks it a success.

"I would not recommend the sport for women, but for strong young men it's wonderful. I shall practice more and perhaps enter the big water carnival off Grant park."

GERARD ASKS TAX ON EXPATRIATES

Envoy to Germany Says Citizens Living Abroad Should Help Embassies.

WANTS CONGRESS TO ACT.

Ambassador Puts American Diplomatic Service on Par with Third Rate Nation.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

BERLIN, Aug. 3.—James W. Gerard, the new ambassador to Germany, is so disappointed at the state of the American diplomatic service, due, he says, to the entirely inadequate salaries paid to the envoys, that he intends to have a bill introduced in congress providing that Americans residing abroad should be forced to contribute to the upkeep of the embassies and legations. He would require expatriates to pay a fee of $10 for registration after they have lived a year in a foreign country, the embassies to retain the fees up to $50,000 and the surplus to be sent to the state department for the maintenance of other embassies and legations.

Failure to comply with the provisions of the bill would imply abandonment of American citizenship. Ambassador Gerard believes this will also serve to keep a check on Americans who might go abroad to escape paying income tax.

Won't Be "Farmer" Diplomat.

Talk that the American embassy here under the Wilson administration is to be conducted as democratically and as unpretentiously as a farmer's home, that the new ambassador would call on the kaiser in a gray sack suit, if not in his shirt sleeves, and that only lemonade would be served at the embassy dinners was set at rest by Mr. Gerard.

After looking over the field and failing to find a suitable house for the embassy, realizing that he would have to dip into his own pockets—"dive" into them, as he expressed it—to establish an embassy in the semblance of those of a third rate power, Ambassador Gerard said he was discouraged and disappointed, and questioned his own wisdom in having accepted the post.

He frankly announced he was going to play the diplomatic game as nearly as possible like the representatives of other powers, as it is expected here to be played, and not as many in America unfamiliar with the situation believe it ought to be played.

Will Adopt Court Uniform.

"Yes," he said, "I shall even wear the diplomatic uniform. It's a rule of the court, and I'm not going to commence by offending the prejudices of the people I am sent to, although my legs are not built for knee breeches and silk stockings. It is all very well to talk about democracy at home, but we can't impose our views upon people who don't understand them. To try to do so simply belittles our country and makes ourselves ridiculous.

"An ambassador is supposed to get things for his country and to do things for his people, and promote friendly relations. He can't do this if he is looked on as a fool or if the United States maintains a representation on the scale of a third rate power."

In a brown suit and straw hat Mr. Gerard had quite an air of Jeffersonian simplicity, but he gave a severe jolt to this idea of economy which people in America always say ought to be the basis on which to conduct the diplomatic service.

"If we can't maintain embassies and legations as we should," he went on, "the diplomatic service ought to be abolished. It is painful, after seeing other embassies, to find that we maintain a representation less than some of the third rate powers. This talk of a poor man as an ambassador in present conditions is absurd."

THIRTEEN KILLED IN RIOT CAUSED BY RAZING MOSQUE.

East Indian Mob and Police Battle in Cawnpore — Street Improvements Doom Religious Edifice.

CALCUTTA, Aug. 3.—The demolition of a portion of a mosque at Cawnpore for street improvements, which had caused indignation meetings to be held in many parts of India and Burmah, led to serious rioting at Cawnpore today. A procession of natives carrying black flags visited the mosque and began replacing the bricks of the partly demolished edifice. An attempt to disperse the gathering resulted in a conflict with the police, who fired a volley into the crowd, killing thirteen persons and wounding thirty. One policeman was shot and forty others were injured.

MOVE AGAINST CASTRO TROOPS.

Venezuelan Federals Win Two Victories in Early Campaign, According to Government.

CARACAS, Aug. 3.—The expeditionary army mobilized to invade the states where rebel forces are operating left Caracas today.

The government announced that the federal forces had achieved two new victories in the state of Tachira. At Orena, Col. Neto is reported to have defeated Gen. Figueroa, and at Espinazo Caballo, Gen. Bello is said to have been victorious over Gen. Penuela.

Thomas W. Voetter, consul at La Guaira, has been ordered by Secretary Bryan to come to Caracas and take charge of the American legation, the duties of which aren now being performed by a clerk, Cyrus N. Clark, vice consul, who will remain in charge of the office at LGuaira.

CANTON FEARFUL OF MUTINY; SIEGE OF CITY IS EXPECTED.

Chinese Metropolis Faces Serious Situation—Federal Army Under Gen. Lung Marching Southward.

HONG KONG, Aug. 3.—The situation in Canton remains serious. The electric lights are cut off at midnight, and the people are fearful of a mutiny. Trains, junks and other vessels leaving the city are packed with refugees. A siege of Canton is expected with the arrival there of Gen. Lung Chi-Kuang, commander of the government forces in the province of Kwang-Si, who is moving southward on the city with his army.

Soldiers are patrolling the streets of Canton, as the police are unreliable. Seventy traitorous soldiers were shot on Friday. A reward of $60,000 has been offered for the head of Gov. Chan of Canton.

Men with guns from British and French warships are guarding the foreign quarter, where valuables worth millions of dollars are stored. The international fleet lying off the city has been augmented by the arrival of American, German, Japanese and French men of war. Soldiers have been sent from Hong Kong to Canton and three naval vessels here are ready to start for that point at a moment's notice with stores and additional troops.

PLAN TO RAISE FUND PLEDGED TO IRISH NATIONALIST PARTY.

Officers of Irish League of America Cable John Redmond Balance of $100,000 Will Be Forthcoming.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 3.—Pledges that the balance of the fund of $100,000 promised last year toward the support of the Irish Nationalist party by the United Irish league of America would be sent as soon as possible, were cabled to John Redmond at the close of a meeting of the national executive committee of the league held here today.

The sum of $53,552, President M. J. Ryan of Philadelphia said, has already been sent, and $4,700 remains on hand. Individual members of the committee promised that they would see that immediate steps were taken to raise the balance of $41,748 remaining.

Cables were received from Mr. Redmond declaring that the Irish parliament would open June 7, 1914, and conveying his condolences on the death of John O'Callaghan of this city, secretary of the league.

ROME BANDITS SHOOT AUTOISTS.

Chevalier Parisi, Brother, and Two Children Hit by Five Masked Men.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ROME, Aug. 3.—Five masked men attacked the automobile of Chevalier Parisi, in which the chevalier, his brother, Signora Cuccia, and two children were driving, a short distance outside of Rome today.

The chauffeur put on top speed and the bandits fired after the automobile, seriously wounding Chevalier Parisi and the others slightly.

The attack has caused a sensation in Rome, where the chevalier is well known. He is the most prominent banker in the city.

SLIT SKIRTS? NOT FOR MRS. GOULD

Skirtless Bathing Suits Unknown Among Her Set, Says Society Woman.

SHE TALKS IN CHICAGO.

Asserts False Reports Are Given of Mode Among Well Bred Easterners.

Women who display themselves in slit skirts and skirtless bathing suits are not "ladies," according to Mrs. Edwin Gould of Fifth avenue and Ardsley on Hudson, New York. At least such things are not done in her set, asserts Mrs. Gould.

With her husband, second son of the late Jay Gould and a factor in the western railroad situation; her son, Frank Miller Gould, II.; and her mother, Mrs. George Shrady, Mrs. Gould is spending a couple of days seeing the sights of Chicago after a six weeks tour of the west in the private car Dixie. The party leaves tomorrow for New York.

Wears Simple Gown.

Mrs. Gould, who is regarded as one of the best dressed women of New York, yesterday wore a gown which by its simplicity emphasized her attack on the freak creations of the year.

"Most of these garish costumes are born in the belief fostered by the newspapers that they are the mode among well bred eastern women," she said. "They are not."

"Do 'real people' back east wear slit skirts?" she was asked.

"My friends certainly do not," she replied positively. "Ladies do not. Indeed, nice people are not apt to go to extremes in fashion or to do immodest things."

"Do the women of your set encourage the one piece bathing suit?"

"I really never have seen one. I do not believe Newport women ever wear the kind of costumes described in the newspapers as the rule in the west. I believe much of that description is newspaper talk.

Back from "Dandy Trip."

"I am familiar with and love the west and its people and society. We have had a dandy trip through a wonderful country, first to visit my oldest son, Edwin Gould Jr., at his camp near Field in the Canadian Rockies, and then back into the glacier national park in Montana. That is the one in which Louis Hill is so much interested. The mountains are magnificent.

"This afternoon we took a long auto trip about the city, lunched at the Glenview Golf club, although we do not play golf on Sunday, and tonight we dine with James E. Switzer at the Saddle and Cycle club. We enjoyed our afternoon ride so much that we delayed it and are late."

Mr. Gould said conditions in the west were "satisfactory," but he did not go into details.

SQUELCH MASHERS BY STARE

Policewomen Tell Sex How to Subdue Would Be Admirers.

EYE BETTER THAN HATPIN.

Whistles and Clubs Not Needed; Just Look Him Over and He Goes.

Squelch the masher with a look. You don't need a whistle like the Boston women; hat pins do not make good weapons, and a club should be used only in a tight squeeze.

This is the opinion of two of Chicago's policewomen, both long in the business of protecting woman.

"I haven't had any trouble with men on the beach this year—even those who did not know I was a policeman," said Officer Mary Boyd, who is in charge of the Thirty-ninth street bathing beach. "All you have to do when a man speaks to you insultingly is to look at him. He turns and runs."

Has a Billy—for Dogs.

"Don't you think it would be wise for women who are out late to carry a cane?" she was asked.

Mrs. Boyd fumbled in her handbag. "I've got a billy somewhere," she said. "But I only use it for dogs. I'm afraid of them. Men are scared to death of me. It isn't here. I must have left it home."

"I really think, though, that women who have to be out late might carry a little billy. There might be use for it. A hatpin is no good. It either scratches or makes a deep wound."

"Look a man over from hat to shoes and from shoes to hat and he will vanish," was the advice of Miss Emma Neukom, for several years watcher for the Travelers' Protective association at the Union passenger station. "I've been all over the world and I've never needed any weapons. The worst insult I was ever subjected to was on Michigan avenue. A man insisted on speaking to me. I raised my hand as if to slap him and he walked away.

Scares Them with Greek.

"A woman can make a man feel so cheap that he would like to crawl into a coal hole. There are other methods, too. If I start talking Greek or French to him he runs away. There's something specially murderous about Greek. But a look's the best. And I don't think I have a very ferocious look at that.

"The policewomen can rid the city of mashers better than the men. Men don't want to arrest men for what they think are little things. Policemen are inclined to believe that it's the fault of the girl nine times out of ten. I can tell whether the girl's to blame just by looking at her. I hope they let me get after them."

Mrs. Mary Owens, who has been connected with the police department for many years, said she thought girls might carry canes to advantage in certain parts of town.

INCENDIARY FIRE CAUSES INQUIRY

Damage of $50,000 Done After Explosion in Vilas Plant at 1101 West Lake Street.

HOTEL GUESTS ALARMED.

Blaze in North Clark Street Drives Girls and Couple from the Astor.

Fire believed to have been of incendiary origin yesterday destroyed one of the buildings of the A. H. Vilas company, manufacturers of picture frames and moldings, at 1101 West Lake street, caused a damage of $50,000, and for a time threatened to spread to the main building of the firm, a six story structure. The burned building is in North Curtis street, and is one of the three buildings owned by the firm.

William Werner, driver for Battalion Chief John Evans, was cut by falling glass while delivering a mesage to Evans in the burning building.

Asks an Investigation.

The burned building was a mass of flames when the first detail of firemen arrived. Battalion Chief Evans said that he would ask an investigation by the fire attorney's office today. He said the cause could not be determined but that it apparently was of incendiary origin.

A slight explosion occurred shortly after the fire started but the firemen were unable to determine its cause or location. The flames attacked the tunnel connecting the main building with the burned structure, but the firemen prevented a spread.

Hotel Guests Alarmed.

Guests of the Hotel Sherman and the Hotel Astor were alarmed and several buildings were threatened by flames in a three story brick structure at 182-184 North Clark street late yesterday. Hundreds of persons were attracted to the scene. The loss was small.

Smoke that rolled over the tops of the hotels caused uneasiness among guess and many went to windows.

Miss Mary Oscuha, Miss Anna Miller, Miss Frances Thompson, and Mrs. Mary Nixon, employés of the Hotel Astor, who occupy rooms on the third floor, fled down the smoke filled sairways carrying their belongings to the streets.

A. J. Campbell and wife of Rockford, Ill., who occupied a room on the fourth floor, were forced to leave their room when the smoke poured through the window.

The fire originated in the second floor at 182-184 North Clark street, occupied by L. E. Larson & Co., stencil manufacturers.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE.

The Chicago Tribune.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

FOUNDED JUNE 10, 1847.

ENTERED AS SECOND CLASS MATTER JUNE 8, 1906, AT THE POSTOFFICE AT CHICAGO, ILL., UNDER ACT OF MARCH 3, 1879.

All unsolicited articles, manuscripts, letters, and pictures sent to "The Tribune" are sent at the owner's risk, and The Tribune company expressly repudiates any liability or responsibility for their safe custody or return.

SWORN CIRCULATION.

Net paid circulation of "The Chicago Tribune," as reported under oath to the United States government under section 4677½ of the postal laws and regulations, being the average from Oct. 1, 1912, to March 31, 1913:

Daily 245,449

Sunday 363,119

The above figures are exclusive of all papers which have been wasted, spoiled, returned, duplicated; delivered as complimentary, in exchange, as samples; which were missed or lost, or were late in arriving at their destination, or that remain unsold. They also are exclusive of papers paid for, but on which money so paid has been refunded.

MONDAY, AUGUST 4, 1913.

MONOPOLISTIC JAMES.

His Hirsuteness, Aurorian James, betrays a grasping and parsimonious mind, an inordinate craving for all the apple, pare and core. Senator Lewis is the Democratic senate whip (alas that such a barnyard instrument should be able to confer a dignity upon our Solomon), and he is full of honors as a pomegranate of seeds. He sits in high places and is observed afar. The ways of publicity are open to him, and he may walk them when he will; reporters attend him and staff photographers spring up like grasshoppers under his feet.

Thus situate in abundance and full of grace, why should the Aurorian One sweep up the crumbs and put them in his pocket for fear they will fall where the humble striver may get them? We pause to inquire, observing with pain that Mr. Lewis proposes the nation do something handsome for fathers.

This is simple theft of the Hon. Thomas Riley Marshall's stuff.

TWO GERMAN COMPLAINTS.

The tax of 15 per cent on German books hitherto admitted free is one of those little items which are slipping through under cover of the sensational free sugar and free wool features of Democratic revision. It is a cause of prompt resentment in Germany and should be a cause of chagrin at home. Like the tax on plastic art, it is a tax on civilization, and should not be adopted unless a very clear case can be made out for it. That case, moreover, can only be based on the non-Democratic theory of protection.

Another complaint now being "made in Germany" is that "only" $25,000 has been subscribed in the United States to the $250,000,000 increase in Germany's military expenditures. This brings tears to the eyes. German-Americans actually refuse to help Germany arm herself against the world, perhaps against the United States!

German-Americans happen to be Americans first and German-Americans afterwards. They pay their share, a large share, to the maintenance of the institutions of their country, which is America, not Germany, and to complain because they do not also help out the imperial German military establishment is to betray an unfortunate lack of humor.

ADVANCING PARCEL POST.

As soon as Postmaster Burleson, acting under the administrative clauses of the parcel post act, announced the changes recently commented upon in these columns, a violent opposition appeared. The changes were substantial benefits to the patrons of the post, such as a reduction of the rate within the two principal zones, the increase of the weight limit, the decrease of the insurance rate, and the permission to use ordinary stamps.

Opposition took the form of charges that the secretary was usurping the authority of congress, the most plausible form it could take, inasmuch as the secretary has made a strong showing to justify the steps taken. But this plausible form of attack should not deceive the press and the public. The interests whose profits are encroached upon by the parcel post are influential and it would be remarkable if they did not fight hard in their defense.

What is important is that the parcel post should find its friends awake. The post is proving its public value and it most certainly will extend its scope of usefulness. It has come to stay and to grow. But its advance will be retarded as much as possible by its competitors. The public interest demands its legitimate extension and improvement, and Secretary Burleson should be given support in his forward policy.

COMING BACK.

The "something of a stir" which was caused in the best Texan circles by the report that the Hon. Joseph W. Bailey was about to announce his candidacy for governor has no strict geographical delimitation, but spreads and agitates far and wide.

Mr. Bailey, who after many resignations retired from the United States senate, was supposed to be the most pastoral and pleased of men, touched by melancholy, possibly, towards night when he sat in the open and watched the stars and considered how swiftly and inevitably the earth, ungoverned in its folly, was to drop with a sad sough out of its ordered courses and into the abyss.

This melancholy would but heighten the otherwise cheerful pleasures of the Texas Atlas who, after much unthanked exertion, had taken away his hands and let the thing roll off his shoulders. But Mr. Bailey, going along the unthreatened path of his uneventful life and seeing only the corporation flora, well irrigated, and harmless financial fauna, has been set upon cruelly by his untamed desires and borne to the ground. Thus beset he has cried out that he'll go back on the job if they'll let him up.

This surrender of beatitude to exigency would make a stir anywhere. Mr. Bailey's consolation is that few notables succeed in self-effacement. Raisuli is loose again in Morocco although urged by many nations to remain in his slippers; Abdul Hamid hears the vox pop calling him; Castro is trying to find a knot hole that will let him back into Venezuela, and the only potentate who is having any success in contentment is Mulai Hafid, who is hanging around Monte Carlo with his harem.

THE FEARLESS FALL GUY.

Mr. Arthur Brisbane, the fearless publicist, and Mr. Maclay Hoyne, the fearless prosecutor, are both in the Hearst service, Mr. Brisbane professionally and Mr. Hoyne, we will say, politically, and both fearlessly.

From June 22, 1900, to June 21, 1910, Max Annenberg, circulation manager of THE TRIBUNE, indicted for assault for resisting an attack by gamblers, also was in the Hearst service. From June 21, 1910, Mr. Annenberg has been circulation manager of THE TRIBUNE.

Of Mr. Annenberg Mr. Hoyne says that he is:

"A malefactor of murderous inclinations. . . . A gunman and a slugger. . . ."

Mr. Hoyne likewise describes him as the "notorious Annenberg," and refers to "his proclivities for violence."

Of Mr. Annenberg Mr. Brisbane, in an affidavit submitted before Judge Windes July 20, 1910, said:

"Affiant further states that Annenberg's principal value to the Chicago American was his knowledge of the value of different pieces of news, his capacity to advise the editors in charge concerning matters of special interest to the public; that, while he has a certain reliance on his own judgment as to the value of news, this affiant considers the news judgment of Max Annenberg better and more valuable than his own. This affiant further states that, in addition, Annenberg possesses an unusual personal knowledge and magnetism—a capacity for dealing with disorganized, undisciplined newsboys and newsdealers rarely equaled. His work [for the Chicago American] was wholly individual, personal, intellectual."

Further Mr. Brisbane sayeth that Mr. Annenberg's great ability had been developed in the employ of William R. Hearst and under the William R. Hearst system of journalism." Further and further he sayeth, all to the point of Annenberg's exceptional character and intellectual ability, until finally he further sayeth not.

Now Mr. Hoyne is of Hearst hearstly even as Mr. Brisbane, and why should two such eminent gentlemen in one service, albeit their efforts have different directions, come to such marvelously divergent views of one man?

The explanation is simple. The affidavit Mr. Brisbane submitted was in connection with a bill for an injunction to prevent Mr. Annenberg from leaving the employment of William R. Hearst and entering the employment of THE TRIBUNE.

The declaration of Mr. Hoyne is against Mr. Annenberg in THE TRIBUNE employment, the injunction craved by William R. Hearst having been denied. The Annenberg of Mr. Brisbane's characterization is in the Hearst service; the Annenberg of Mr. Hoyne's indictment is in THE TRIBUNE service.

Thus do great and fearless minds yield to the coy touch of circumstance, and thus does a man of exceptional intellectual ability in one employment become a notorious gunman and slugger in another, and thus is the case of W. R. Hearst vs. M. Annenberg and The Tribune company, No. 299,294, Circuit court of Cook county, transferred to the state's attorney's office. Mr. Hoyne is the fearless fall guy.

Mr. Hoyne's fearlessness is such that he may decide to dispense with court and jury, have Annenberg in judgment before him, find him guilty of disturbing the early Sabbath peace of gamblers, guilty of protecting himself and the men with him, and sentence him to the Hearst service for life.

A GOOD PRECEDENT.

Secretary McAdoo's decision to make deposits for crop moving with the western banks instead of in New York may be resented in the latter center, but it is both just and sensible, and Mr. McAdoo is to be congratulated on setting so good a precedent.

If the crops are to be moved from west to east, the entirely reliable banking facilities of the great harvest region should be utilized directly.

The still more important innovation, that of accepting prime commercial paper, is but an anticipation of pending currency legislation, which action the secretary's broad powers seem to justify fully.

The announcement is timely, practical, and beneficial.

"ILLINOIS state treasury shy of cash." Already?

IN view of recent accidents it would seem to be a good idea to throw a little more light on the Chicago river.

IT is peculiarly unfortunate—which we think is much better English than "it peculiarly is unfortunate"—that so much publicity has been given to the story concerning the eggs that were kept three years in cold storage without impairing their usefulness. It will tend still further to weaken the confidence of the ultimate consumer in the integrity of the eggs he eats.

ACCEPTING the estimate that the taxable property of Cook county amounts to $3,000,000,000, and possibly a little more, we venture to express the hope that the gentle reader hereof has his share.

HOW GOOD the drinking water of Chicago tastes when you come back from your summer vacation!

EDWARD PAYSON WESTON took a long walk, but it was worth the trouble. He discovered Minneapolis.

THE usually correct New York Sun characterizes the Mulhall disclosures as a "bursted" bladder.

OFFICIOUS local policemen arrested a woman one day last week for "butting her head against the wall of a house." She hadn't inflicted the slightest damage upon the house, either.

TO MAKE A VACATION SAFE.

As the bulletins of the health departments come to hand it is noted that each carries a talk on summer outings. The valuable Winnipeg bulletin states the reason for a summer outing tersely and clearly in saying that it puts new life and energy into people. That this result may not be too expensive, it advises, to the end that the rocks may be avoided, the best procedure is to get vaccinated against typhoid.

The army method of vaccinating requires three weeks. Three injections are given and three weeks are to intervene between the first and third injection. The Wisconsin board of health injects twice. If its method is used the time required is less than two weeks.

If a person has been vaccinated he can take chances with the water supply. Otherwise he is not fair with himself if he drinks water about which he knows nothing.

Polluted water is doubly dangerous in that it only infects a small percentage of those who drink it. If every drinker got sick the water would cease to be dangerous.

If the water is not known to be right, except that the country be an unsettled wilderness, it should be heated or chlorinated. Boiling is not necessary. The typhoid germ is killed by heat sixty degrees below the boiling temperature.

The Winnipeg bulletin gives the same advice as to milk, except that it does not advise chlorinating it.

Advice that should be followed, but that seldom is, is to stop at no hotel where you do not know about the kitchen and the kitchen methods.

Some people are not willing to accept any room to which they are sent by the room clerk. They have the bell boy take two or three keys. They select the room after inspection. They judge about how hot each will be and how noisy, and then make a selection.

The Winnipeg suggestion is that this procedure be carried a step further—that the kitchen be inspected. The bedroom may be desirable and the kitchen be bad enough to more than offset it.

If the kitchen is unscreened, or dirty, or crowded, or overhot, the food will come to the table unfit, however high grade the table science may be.

My experience in the health department taught me that there was no suggestion of a relation between the table service and the kitchen service. Clean tablecloths do not mean clean kitchens—never forget that.

Dr. Douglas knows what he is talking about. For years he has heard of people who went from Winnipeg in good health and came back from their vacations sick.

He has stood at the focusing point, has heard these stories by the score, and he knows.

DANGER NOT GREAT.

A.B. writes: "Is it dangerous for a woman of 47 to give birth to a child for the first time in her life?"

REPLY.

In a good hospital under good medical care the danger is not great. It would be less than the average danger of the average woman under average city conditions.

DANGER NOT GREAT.

S. writes: "Can a permanent cure reasonably be expected in a case of a syphilitic who, without present manifestations of the disease and in apparent robust health, six years after the suspension of standard treatment and supposed cure, shows a positive Wasserman in reaction, indicating, as I understand it, that the spirilla are lodged deeply in the tissues of the body? Would the resumption of standard treatment reasonably insure against the progress of the disease? Is a person in the above condition in danger of locomotor ataxia, paralysis, or paresis?"

REPLY.

1. Yes. Keep under observation for a while. Try another Wasserman after the weather gets cooler.
2. Yes.
3. The danger is not great. If you follow orders you need not worry.

GO TO YOUR PHYSICIAN.

R. writes: "A man who had syphilis nineteen years ago contemplates getting married. Would there be any danger to the wife, or to the offspring, if any? If so, what remedy do you advise? Where can it be purchased? What would it cost?"

REPLY.

Go to your physician. Tell him how much treatment you took and how. Have some Wassermans made and follow his advice. The danger to his wife and progeny probably is not great. There is more danger that you will break down. An opinion of these dangers should be based upon the knowledge of the facts.

LIFE AND DEATH EVIDENT.

Reader writes: "Your reply to M. R. G. in regard to his fear of being buried while in a comatose state leads me to ask you these questions: Some one dear to me was buried a few days after dying of stoppage of the bowels. Have you ever known of an aged person sick with stoppage of the bowels to fall into a comatose state which would pass for death with a doctor? Would not an undertaker notice life if he started to embalm? Under what conditions does a comatose state occur?"

REPLY.

1. No. In a fairly large autopsy experience I have never known of any case in which it was difficult to tell whether the person was alive or not. The few cases on record are regarded as medical curiosities and anomalies.
2. Yes.
3. The only one of importance is a nervous condition called catalepsy.

ECZEMA AND CARBUNCLE.

S. E. writes: "Please tell the causes of eczema and carbuncle."

REPLY.

Eczema may be due to any one of several causes—improperly balanced diet, improper balance between food and exercise, neglect of skin cleanliness, nervous state.

Carbuncle is due to infection of the deep layers of the skin with pus germs. Sometimes diabetes is a contributing cause.

NOT SERIOUS OPERATION.

Worried One writes: "I have for a long time been thinking of getting circumcised. Kindly let me know if it is a serious operation. How long will it take to heal up?"

REPLY.

1. It is not a serious operation. In Jewish babies, it is regarded as a procedure with practically no health hasard.
2. Five to ten days.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright: 1913: By the Brentwood Company.]

COWES during the next eight or ten days will be not only the headquarters of English society and the center of fashion but likewise the seat of government of the vast British empire.

King George, with Queen Mary, is living on his yacht, the Victoria and Albert, anchored off Cowes, and it is on board that superb boat that he is transacting all his multifarious business in connection with the affairs of state, signing the hundreds of papers submitted to him each day by the cabinet minster in attendance, and even holding meetings of the privy council on the yacht, whence all the decrees and official documents are dated.

What distinguishes the race week at Cowes from all others is its exclusiveness, and the absence not merely of the general public but likewise of all those hangers-on who may be described as the fringe of society.

The Royal Yacht squadron, the premier yacht club of the world in point of seniority and importance, blackballs most unmercifully candidates who in its eyes do not possess the birth and breeding requisite to render them congenial associates, and as one blackball is sufficient to exclude a candidate the ballot is an extremely trying ordeal.

The Royal Yacht squadron has "pilled" candidates even when they have been sponsored by the sovereign himself. Edward VII. failed in all his attempts to secure the election of Sir Thomas Lipton.

It is, moreover, extremely chary about according the privileges of the clubs temporarily to strangers, even when they arrive there on fine yachts flying the flags of the principal foreign yachting organizations.

Now, to be at Cowes during race week and to be excluded from the club, especially from the club grounds, which constitute the center of all social activity and fashion throughout the regatta period, is to expose oneself to the humiliation of virtual ostracism.

People thus discriminated against are "out of everything," and, so to speak, invite attention to the fact if they are foolish enough to persist in remaining. Few care to expose themselves to this treatment, and most prefer to stay away on some pretext or other.

One of the features of the week will be the annual dinner of the Royal Yacht squadron at the club, under the presidency of its admiral in chief, the king, assisted by the commodore and working president of the club, the Marquis of Ormonde, a familiar figure on this side of the Atlantic.

Alfonso XIII., who is at Cowes on board his steam yacht with his consort; Prince Henry of Prussia, and several other members of royalty will be among the guests, though not Prince Paul of Servia, who has returned to Belgrade, much affronted by the marked manner in which he has been ignored during the last season by the king, the queen, and the entire royal family.

When he first came to England he was most kindly received by the king and queen, who were disposed to be friendly towards him in view of the fact that he was to be a fellow student of their son, the Prince of Wales, at Oxford.

However, he got into the hands of a fast set in London, of people of whom neither the king nor the queen could approve, and went the pace.

Indiscretions that might have been treated with more indulgence if perpetrated by scions of royal houses whose royalty was more firmly established than that of Servia were resented in his case, and, as English society in the long run always takes its cue from the sovereigns, Prince Paul ended by finding London no longer congenial and took his departure before the end of the season.

The Royal Yacht squadron is the only yachting club the members of which have the privilege of flying the white ensign of English men of war, a right denied to honorary members, and of making use of the royal buoys and wharves.

It has a number of other important royal prerogatives, bestowed upon it in turn by George IV., William IV., Queen Victoria, and King Edward.

Founded in 1812, as indicated by its seal, it held the first of its annual dinners in 1815, the Waterloo year, at the Thatched House tavern in St. James street, London, with Lord Grantham in the chair.

For some years afterwards the dinners, meetings, and elections took place at the Medina hotel, in East Cowes, then at the Gloucester Hotel, West Cowes, until 1856, when, thanks to the then Marquis of Conyngham, commodore of the squadron, it acquired the old castle at Cowes, which has ever since been its headquarters.

One of the rules of the Royal Yacht squadron which keeps lots of people from becoming members is that which requires candidates for election to be practical yachtsmen, possessed of diplomas as sailing masters and capable of navigating their own boats.

King Edward endeavored to have this regulation amended so as to admit the election of men who, while not yachtsmen in the technical sense of the word, have nevertheless, by their ownership of yachts and by the devotion of large sums of money to the construction of racing raft, contributed in an important and effective manner to this branch of sport.

However, the club has never been willing to give way in the matter, and availed itself of this pretext to blackball last year, in a particularly overwhelming fashion, a duke of stormy antecedents who is a frequent visitor to America and whose name it is needless to mention.

From a reader I receive an inquiry as to the origin of the Scotch Highland garb which will be worn for the next two months not only by many Englishmen but likewise by a number of Americans sojourning north of the Tweed for the sake of the shooting.

The earliest distinct allusion to the picturesque Highland garb, with its kilt, sporan, etc., is to be found in the Norwegian saga of Magnus Bareleg, in which it is related that that monarch, on his return from his great expedition through the Hebrides, was found to have adopted and then introduced into Norway the dress, even then described as ancient, worn by the Highlanders of the western isles.

It consisted of a mantle and kirtle, the "broacan" and "fallium," or plaid and kilt, the legs being uncovered.

From his adoption of this Scottish Highland garb, with its bare legs, King Magnus received from his Norwegian subjects the nickname of "Bareleg."

The seals of King Alexander I. in 1107, of David I. in 1124, and of Malcolm IV. in 1153 all represent these rulers of Scotland in what is now known as Highland garb.

Georgy IV. was the first of the English sovereigns since the days of the union to don the kilt. This was on the occasion of his state visit to Edinburgh, when Sir Walter Scott took a leading part in welcoming him.

William IV. never wore it. But Queen Victoria, who was passionately fond of Scotland, insisted, from the time when she established her Highland home at Balmoral, that the prince consort and the other members of her family should wear nothing but Highland dress when in Scotland.

CREATION OF THE WORLD DECIPHERED FROM TABLET.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—A newly discovered tablet, brought to this country from Babylonia, and now in the museum of the University of Pennsylvania, gives what is believed to be the first story of the creation as well as an account of the civilization of the world in 2500 B. C.

According to this story, which was written centuries before the Christian era, the world was created by a woman goddess. She was a brunette, because the account says that her hair was black and that finally when the world became so wicked that it had to be destroyed the male gods became angry at the female goddess and put an end to everything with a flood.

The only thing saved at that time was a man who collected his family and animals and these he placed in an ark. In fact, there are numerous parallels between this story and that of the Book of Genesis.

Thirty-seven years ago George Smith, English scholar and explorer, brought back from Babylonia the cylinders which gave at that time what was thought to be the first account of the origin of mankind and much of his early history. The parallel versions that were discovered between the Babylonian tablet and the story as it appears in Genesis developed a new school of theological criticism.

But the Smith tablets dated back only to the reign of Ashurbanipal in the seventh century B. C. On the other hand, this tablet, which has just been deciphered by Dr. Arno Poebel in the university museum here, dates back to 2500 B. C. and it is reasonably certain that it can be no later than the reign of Hammurabi about 2100 B. C.

This new account of the creation and the flood throws light on the early ideas of the Babylonians and the Sumerians. It is the most primitive story yet found.

Like the missing laws of Hammurabi, which were found a fortnight ago at the university by Dr. Poebel, the new story of the creation and the flood was found in going over an immense collection taken from the ruins of the temples of Babylonia. This tablet, which is broken, was originally about seven inches square. It is composed of three columns on each side, but the top of each side is missing.

From the tablet it is learned that "the wickedness of man caused determination by the gods that the world should be destroyed. The goddesses did not want this to take place, but the men overruled them in this instance and the male gods sent the flood."

Ziugidda was saved because he was a pious man. One of the goddesses told him to build the ark, and he collected his family and the animals and stayed there until after the deluge had subsided.

Although in Genesis God is represented as deliberately saving Noah, in this tablet the respite of mankind is through the agency of one of the goddesses, who informed him of his impending doom and enabled mankind to avoid disappearing from the face of the earth.

Like the first chapter of Genesis, the story begins with the origin of the heavens and the earth. It is a curious feature of Babylonian mythology that the gods are represented as existing before there was a heaven or an earth.

In the story it appears that Nintu, a goddess, created mankind, and she is now found lamenting the fact that the male gods are bent upon the destruction of man. She speaks of the human beings as "my creations." Mention is made of other gods that they shall build the chief cities, that they shall build cities clean and preserve in a certain spot the holy places for the temple where the gods are to be worshiped.

The missing words at this point make it difficult here to supply all the ideas, but it is apparent that Nintu provided men with their existence and with their spiritual aspirations that they might commune with the gods and in the temples where they may learn "the sublime commandments and precepts she made perfect therein."

It appears that Anu and Enlil were the chief gods of power, although they were among seven of equal rank, the first being the god of heaven and the last being the god of the earth. Nintu was not only the creator of mankind but the patron goddess for the preservation of the human race.

As in the narrative in Genesis, the gods are represented as coming down from heaven to earth and working with their hands. The first two cities are named after Anu and Enlil, and the rest are called after the other five gods. These were Numidad, Bad-nigar, Larak, who gave to Pabilharsag, then Shippar, who in turn gave to Samas, the sun god, and the last to Shurrupak.

After the names of the cities had been called the priests were assigned to them, and thereafter that the people might live, the canals, the rivers, and the streams were created, and the country watered so that the grain might grow and the people were enabled to cultivate their lands.

At the top of the third column of the tablet we come upon these scattered words, "The —— place"—"The people"—"rainstorm"—"Their —— they made." Indicating that the wrath of the gods was kindled against man for some impiousness, and the narrative continues substantially as follows:

"At that time Ninatura wailed like a woman in travail. The Holy Ishtar wailed on account of the people." Enki, who was the god of wisdom whom the two great regent gods consulted on all occasions and who seems to have been sort of an Ulysses, held counsel with Anu, Enki, and Ninatura over the proposed destruction of mankind.

"At that time Ziugidda was king and high priest of Shappurak (meaning the city of the last day of the flood), and he made obeisance to the gods and prayed and prostrated himself in humility daily. He was in personal contact with them by means of dreams and conjured them daily by the means of the heaven and the earth."

Next comes a complicated piece of poetry full of parallelism with the Hebrew psalms, but the meaning of it all is that Enki desired to save her human creatures and ordered Ziugidda to stand by a wall and listen, and she told him "by our command a rainstorm will be sent to destroy the seed of mankind. This is the decision of the assembly of the gods."

Then comes a description of the "wind storms which possess great power, the rain storms which were terrible, and after seven days Ziugidda was saved in a great boat, and then the sun god came forth and told him that he was safe."

Then Ziugidda was taken to an island in the Persian gulf, where he lived in sort of a paradise for the rest of his days.

The university has instructed its expedition now at Constantinople to try to discover some of the missing parts of the tablet either at Nippur or at Constantinople, and every effort will be made to complete the story.

WOMAN'S CITIZENSHIP AND VOTE.

Chicago, July 30.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A woman marries a Canadian, who has not been naturalized. Later she leaves him for good reason, and to hide from him and prevent his finding her and taking away the money she is earning, changes her name. Several years later, through a relative, he serves her with divorce papers, which she accepts and does not make any defense, as she is guilty of the charge, desertion. He receives the divorce and she keeps on using the name she adopted, which has become more her own than the one which is legally hers. All her business is done under it, and her circle of friends think it is her own. The questions are: Did she regain her American citizenship with the divorce? Can she vote if she should ever care to do so, under her assumed name, which she has been using for ten years? SUBSCRIBER.

The marriage of an American woman to a Canadian does not cause her to lose her American citizenship so long as she lives in the United States. In view of this fact, the woman in question has a right to vote.

RIGHTS UNDER A CERTAIN WILL.

Chicago, July 21.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—If a husband dies leaving personal property and real estate and the will leaves one-third of all his possessions to his wife, balance to be divided between the children, does that give the wife one-third of the real estate outright, or only a dower (a one-third interest for life) in the real estate? Should there be no will what would be the result? L. C. S.

A will such as you describe gives the wife an absolute right to one-third of all her husband's possessions, both real and personal, and not a dower in his real estate.

Where the husband dies leaving no will and having children living, the wife takes one-third of his personal property and dower in his real estate.

VIOLATING BUILDING LINE.

Chicago, July 17.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—About five years ago I built a home in a purely residential district on the north shore, keeping in line with all the other residences, which set back about twenty-five feet from the front sidewalk. There being no building restrictions on the street the house next to mine was sold and torn down and a twenty-four apartment building is being erected on my line and extending within three feet of the front sidewalk. This has made my home depreciate in value to the extent of about $3,000. Can any legal steps be taken in the matter by which I could recover damages from the owner of the apartment building? A DAILY READER.

You cannot recover damages from the owner of the apartment building unless there is a legally established building line. This can be determined by having an attorney examine the title to the property.

MARRIED BY A JUSTICE.

Chicago, July 22.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Has a justice of the peace the authority to celebrate marriages within the city of Chicago after their jurisdiction has been entirely abolished since 1906? M. F.

This matter has not been decided by the higher court. One judge in Chicago has decided that such marriages are illegal. We advise against having such marriages performed.

PURCHASE BY A MINOR.

Chicago, July 17.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I bought a motorcycle with a certain sum of money down and weekly payments. I have paid no more except what was paid down, for since buying it I was injured on it, so that I cannot ride it any more. In case he does take it back should he refund the money, all or in part? Can I sell it in the event that he doesn't take it back? I am a minor. Can he hold me to any agreement, as we signed no articles of agreement? H. R. S.

In view of the fact that you are a minor you can not be forced to make further payments on the motorcycle. The seller should take it back and return your money, only retaining enough to compensate him for the use of the machine which you have had.

LIABILITY AFTER EXPIRATION OF LEASE.

Chicago, July 18.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Having signed a lease which expired a year ago last May and property being sold to present owner whose lease had expired, could present owner hold tenant for more than a month's notice if tenant had no lease with him and wished to move to more pleasant surroundings? V. M. G.

A tenant who stays in possession after the termination of the written lease and pays rent which is accepted by the landlord becomes a tenant for another term. The fact that the property is sold does not change this tenancy, and this tenancy cannot be terminated by a thirty day notice if you wish to leave before the expiration of the term, obtain the consent of the landlord or arrange with another tenant satisfactory to him.

FAIL AGAIN TO END COPPER TROUBLES

Two Meetings at Calumet, Mich., Without Result; Ferris Tries Hand.

WOMEN PARADE STREETS.

Troops Pass Quiet Day; Federal Mediator Coming to Chicago on Rail Difficulties.

Calumet, Mich., Aug. 3.—Conferences between Western Federation of Miners officials and officers of the Michigan State Federation of Labor today complicated the situation in the copper miners' strike.

Two sessions were held and it was reported that one of the visitors, F. F. Ingram, of Detroit, was present as the representative of Gov. Ferris in a fresh effort by the state executive to bring into harmony the warring industrial elements of this district. None of the men would discuss what happened in the meetings.

Of the numerous surprises, the one that gained the widest credence had it that the State federation men were endeavoring to find a way to get the miners back to work on advantageous terms as to increased wages and shorter hours, and at the same time obtain a practical recognition of the union principle from the mine owners.

In public utterances, however, the labor leaders gave no hint that any such movement was contemplated.

Women Parade the Streets.

A big union meeting and a parade occupied the time of the strikers today. Women color bearers were conspicuous during the march, and a big delegation of daughters of miners headed the procession, followed by their mothers carrying or wheeling in go-carts the younger members of the families.

British Agitator in New York.

New York, Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Tom Mann, the noted English labor agitator and the chief exponent in Great Britain of the syndicalist doctrines practiced in this country by the International Workmen of the World, spoke for an hour and a quarter this afternoon to 1,500 cheering International Workmen of the World followers and others in the New Star Casino. It was his first speech in New York in thirty years.

Mann arrived in Boston from England on Thursday, and got here on Friday. He will make a tour of the United States under the direction of the Syndicalist newspaper, Justice of Pittsburgh. The tour will last a month or more.

Mann came here with a message, and when he delivered it the audience came to its feet—yelling for all it was worth.

Make Rabid I. W. W. Speech.

"Solidarity," he said, "is what will save you workers. By banding together and educating yourselves alone shall you inherit the earth. We don't preach violence. We don't court violence, but if it comes, we don't shun it. But violence is only incidental. In our fight it is something that cannot be helped.

"Strike as often as you must. Band yourselves together and let nothing thrust you apart. Ignore the ballot box. That way disunion lies. You may control the government, and your leaders once in power and in reach of wealth would desert you, but if you stick together always, strike and inflict every blow you can at your aggressors, and lift one another up, you will be invincible. Who controls the government will not matter then. The government will come to you."

Comes Here on Rail Troubles.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Commissioner Chambers of the new federal board of mediation left for Chicago tonight to attempt to bring about peace between the employés of the Chicago Belt Line and the Western Indiana railway and its employers. The commissioner will confer with the contending parties will remain there so long as there is any prospect of settling the difficulty by mediation.

Mr. Chambers will go from Chicago to St. Louis to act as mediator in the disputes between employés and the management of the St. Louis and Southwestern and the Cotton Belt roads.

The commissioner has offered mediation to the employés and management of the Central Vermont railway in a wage dispute, but the latter has not accepted.

Assistant Commissioner Hangar also left Washington tonight for San Francisco, where trouble is brewing between conductors and trainmen and the Southern Pacific railway.

PUTS BAR ON IMPURE MEATS

Secretary Houston Says Imports Must Conform to Standards.

RESULT OF TARIFF CHANGE.

Inspectors Sent Abroad to Report on Conditions of Production.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—All diseased and otherwise impure meats are to be barred from entry into the United States, according to a statement issued today by Secretary of Agriculture Houston. Admission will be accorded only those meats produced under conditions of supervision such as are enforced by the department of agriculture in domestic packing houses.

The secretary recently dispatched A. D. Melvin, chief of the bureau of animal industry, and Dr. Edward C. Joss to South America and Australia to investigate and report upon the production of meats for exportation to this country. The removal of the tariff from meats and the increasing insufficiency of the domestic supply cause the department to anticipate large importations.

The move was misconstrued, however, hundreds of farmers writing the secretary that he ought to encourage domestic production instead of assisting foreign shippers to compete with the American producers.

Houston Explains New Regulation.

"The primary object of sending these inspectors abroad is neither to encourage nor to discourage the export of meat to the United States but to make certain the department of agriculture understands fully the conditions under which meat offered for entry into the United States is produced, slaughtered, packed, and shipped," says Secretary Houston. "The data gained by these inspectors will be directly useful to the government in seeing that meat offered for admission to the country conforms not only to the meat inspection act, but also to the food and drugs act which has recently been held to have jurisdiction in interstate commerce over meat and meat food products.

"Armed with this information the department can coöperate effectively with the secretary of the treasury in keeping out of the United States all meat produced from diseased cattle; all meats slaughtered in insanitary establishments or improperly refrigerated, packed and shipped, and all meat products prepared under conditions that would not be permitted in the federally inspected establishments of the United States.

Holds Inspection Is Necessary.

"This foreign inspection of meat has become very necessary irrespective of changes in the tariff on meat, for the reason that since 1906 the total domestic production of cattle has been 30 per cent below the actual demand. In other words this means that the production of cattle has fallen off while the population has been increasing.

"The department is trying to meet this domestic situation by carrying on extensive campaigns for the eradication of the tick, which more than anything else has prevented the southern states from supplying the normal yield of meat stock. Similar campaigns are being waged against tuberculosis, foot and mouth diseases, scabies, and other plagues which are reducing the cattle output of other sections.

"The dairy division, through field workers and demonstrators, is carrying on an extensive propaganda to induce farmers to replace scrub cattle with good meat breeds and to convince farmers of the importance of not selling their good cows for slaughter."

CHICAGO CONCERNS PENALIZED UNDER PURE FOOD LAW CASES.

Secretary of Agriculture Reports Results of Federal Prosecutions—Six Firms Guilty of Violating Act.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—The secretary of agriculture announced today the results of additional prosecutions for violation of the food and drug act. The Chicago cases were:

Spielmann Bros. pleaded guilty to the adulteration and misbranding of vinegar and were fined $300 and costs.

The Scudder Syrup company was fined 50 and costs for shipping short measure sirup.

The Sethness company pleaded guilty to adulteration of concentrated peach flavor, strawberry oil, pineapple oil, and banana oil, and was fined $100 and costs.

The Hudson Manufacturing company was fined $150 and costs for adulteration and misbranding of vanilla extract.

The Francis Cropper company consented to condemnation of a shipment of imitation brandy, but was allowed to retain the product under $100 bond guaranteeing labeling in accordance with the law.

The government condemned and destroyed as unfit for food twenty-five packages of tomato paste in possession of Emilio Longhi, doing business as the Italian and Greek Products company, 1518 South Wabash avenue, Chicago, alleging that the product had been shipped by the Kansas Canning company, Kansas, Ill.

WAMSLEY FOUND NOT GUILTY.

Vienna Man Accused of Murdering His Father-in-Law Freed by Jury After 24 Hours' Deliberation.

Vienna, Ill., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—J. Edward Wamsley today was found not guilty of murdering his father-in-law, Dan C. Robertson, last September. Robertson had been shot in his own barn and the barn and body burned. The jury was out twenty-four hours. Attorney Thomas H. Sheridan was state's attorney here when Wamsley was indicted, but, believing in his innocence, he resigned and defended the accused man. The mystery surrounding the iron box, half filled with melted metal, found in the ruins remains unsolvable.

GOLF TOURNEYS SHOW NEW STARS

Fraser Hale and Miss Pearce Qualify as Players of the First Rank.

TWO EVENTS THIS WEEK.

Invitation Affair at Exmoor and City Title Contest at Jackson Park Carded.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

The two golf tournaments of last week, the invitation event at the Glen View club and the Chicago women's championship at the Skokie Country club, put Fraser Hale and Miss Ernestine Pearce in the ranks of the first flighters.

The 20 year old Skokie player who won the Glen View tournament and also won the thirty-six hole medal play event for the North Branch trophy has been coming along steadily. While the Glen View event was his first big success, it must not be overlooked that he has had a harder row to hoe than the brilliant coterie of youngsters who preceded him and who have made Chicago noted as a golfing center.

Hale in Fast Company.

In his teens, Hale has had to meet such players as Warren Wood, Charles Evans Jr., Donald and Kenneth Edwards, Mason Phelps, D. E. Sawyer, and several others. Bit by bit he has acquired the experience necessary for tournament play, and, judged from his work of last week and in the western amateur championship, in which he carried Warren Wood to the thirty-ninth hole, he is not far from the top of the local pinnacle.

Hale may not be strong enough to win the national amateur championship, but should he compete at Garden City next month he will be a strong addition to the western contingent.

Miss Pearce, the new city champion, is one of the best players Chicago has produced, and if she can improve her short game she is quite capable of winning the western women's title.

Two Tourneys This Week.

Two tournaments will occupy the local stage this week, the invitation tournament at Exmoor and the Chicago city championship at Jackson park. Last year the Exmoor Country club renewed its tournament after a lapse of several years, but it was hurriedly gotten up, being played just ahead of the national amateur championship at the Chicago Golf club, when many of the stars were anxious to get all the practice possible over the Chicago course.

Carl Devol of Riverside won the first flight, defeating H. R. Loudon of the home club in the final. This year the club has made extensive preparations, and a big field is expected out for the opening play on Thursday. The qualifying round will be at eighteen holes, five flights of sixteen each qualifying for the first match play round in the afternoon. If the field is a big one the players will have to move fast in order to finish before dark. The second and third rounds will be played on Friday, and the finals on Saturday. Several minor events are carded.

City Event at Jackson Park.

The annual tournament for the Chicago championship will start at Jackson park tomorrow morning with the qualifying round at eighteen holes. Over 150 players are expected to take part, and it will take all day for the sifting process.

The first sixteen will compete for the Post cup and the other sixteens for the Jackson Park, Midway, and Directors' cups. Ralph Scott, who won the title last year, has joined the professional ranks, and there is likely to be a hot fight for his vacated honor, even if some of the Jackson park stars did shoot around the 90 mark in the western amateur championship.

The Wisconsin state championship will start at Kenosha tomorrow, and it looks as if Ned Allis would capture the title for the third time, as he is the leading player in the Badger state.

An open tournament for women will be staged at the Windsor Golf club tomorrow.

VERRILL LEADS CYCLE RIDERS; CHICAGO TEAM BEATS ST. LOUIS.

Coast Boy Wins Final Heats in Two Races at Riverview, Giving Local Squad Meet.

Kenneth Verrill, the California boy riding with the Chicago motorcycle team, was the star at Riverview last night. Verrill won the final heats in both the league championship and "unknown distance" races, the feature events of the program. As a result of Verrill's success in the league contest Chicago won the meet from St. Louis, 8 points to 3.

The appearance in the races of Charley Glenn of Cleveland lent additional interest to the competition. Glenn jumped into the fray and rode for St. Louis in place of Wiley Gibson, who was still indisposed. Glenn and his teammates arrived yesterday from Cleveland and will ride against Chicago Wednesday night. Glenn won the second heat of the championship race last night, but in the final he finished third behind Verrill and Caffarella. Glenn and Caffarella will meet in a match race at two or three miles Wednesday night. Summaries:

First heat, league championship, 2 miles—Won by Verrill, Chicago; Caro, St. Louis, second; Harmer, Chicago, third; Savalak, St. Louis, fourth. Time, 1:34.

Second heat—Won by Glenn, St. Louis; Caffarella, Chicago, second; Meyers, Chicago, third. Time, 1:32 4-5.

Final heat, 5 miles—Won by Verrill, Chicago; Caffarella, Chicago, second; Glenn, St. Louis, third; Savalak, Chicago, fourth. Time, 3:48 2-5.

Derby race, 3 miles—Won by Meyers, Chicago; Caro, St. Louis, second; Harmer, Chicago, third. Time, 2:26.

First heat, "unknown distance" race, 2 1-3 miles—Won by Harmer; Verrill, second; Savalak, third. Time, 1:51.

Second heat, 1 2-3 miles—Won by Caffarella; Glenn, second; Meyers, third. Time, 1:19 3-5.

Final heat, 5 1-3 miles—Won by Verrill; Caffarella, second; Harmer, third; Glenn fourth. Time, 4:13 2-5.

CHAMPION NET TEAMS HERE FOR TRIALS AT ONWENTSIA.

Victors in Tourney Which Starts Tomorrow Will Meet M'Loughlin and Bundy for National Title.

Champion tennis doubles teams from all sections of the country will gather at Lake Forest to prepare for the semi-final and final rounds of the elimination tourney to select challengers to meet Maurice E. McLoughlin and Thomas C. Bundy of San Francisco for the national title.

The semi-final round will be played tomorrow and the final match on Wednesday. The winning team will go to Newport to meet the title holders on Aug. 18. The players will practice this morning and afternoon.

Gustav F. Touchard and W. M. Washburn, eastern champions, will arrive this morning and are expected to practice in the afternoon. Touchard played in Chicago two years ago, when he carried off the honors with Raymond Little as a partner.

The south will be represented by Robert Shelton and J. B. Adoue. Both players took part in the western tourney last week. Clarence Griffin and John Strachan will represent the Pacific coast.

R. H. Burdick and Heath Byford, western champions, will be the hope of the local enthusiasts. The ease with which this team won the western title entitles the pair to a deal of respect. The smashing game of Burdick and Byford's generalship make the team a dangerous one.

Thomas C. Bunday is expected in the city today. He will remain tomorrow to see the semi-final round, and then will go east to practice with McLoughlin, who is returning from the Dover cup triumphs in England.

Tennis Prize to Miss Boyle.

Miss Hazel Boyle captured first honors in the girls' tennis tourney at Ogden park by defeating Miss Eulalie Evans in the final yesterday morning, 6—2, 4—6, 6—3. The victor was awarded a gold medal, while her opponent received a silver medal. The bronze prize for third place went to Miss Florence Burke. The tourney was open to girls of from 12 to 20 years old. Twenty-four competed.

Acting President of Federal League.

JAMES A. GILMORE

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 3.—John T. Powers, president of the Federal league, was granted a leave of absence until the third Saturday in September by the board of directors of the organization, who ended a conference here today. In announcing the action the directors said that it was because Mr. Powers had been overworked.

James A. Gilmore, president of the Chicago club, will act as league president during Mr. Powers' absence, and will be assisted by Secretary Floyd Rickert. Rickert, it is asserted, will be a strong candidate to succeed Mr. Powers next year.

George Kaiserling, a pitcher sold by Indianapolis American association team to San Francisco, will report to the local Federal league club tomorrow.

EDWARDS BOOSTS ELGIN RACE

Returns from Galveston Meet with Promises of Entries.

MULFORD TO BRING PEUGEOT

"Ten O'Clock Club" Founder Expects Half Dozen Blanks This Week.

F. E. Edwards, chairman of the entry committee of the Chicago Automobile club, who attended the Galveston beach meet in search of entries for the Elgin road races, returned to Chicago yesterday, accompanied by Starter Fred J. Wagner.

Edwards did not bring back with him any actual entries, but the missionary work he did at the Texas meet should result in several of the stars filling out Elgin blanks.

"Ralph Mulford is hoping to come to Elgin with the French Peugeot which won the 500 mile race at Indianapolis," said Edwards last night. "He is waiting to find out if he can get some parts from France before making a definite decision. At any rate he will drive a Mason the first day. Armour Ferguson, the New Yorker who owns the other Peugeot, will give us a definite answer this week. He is inclined to come on.

"Another good prospect is George Dewitt, who used to be on the Buick racing team. Dewitt now has a fast little car which he calls the Gila Monster which he wants to start in the Chicago Automobile club trophy race the first day. Alex Sloan, manager of the Case team, will give me a definite answer Tuesday night. He is figuring on entering at least two Case cars and maybe three, with Disbrow and Bill Endicott as drivers.

"I am satisfied that we have aroused the racing world to the magnitude of Elgin, and I expect to have at least a half dozen new entries before the end of the week. Wagner, who goes to New York at once, feels confident that he will be able to wire back the entries of at least two Italian Isottas and the full Mercer team, De Palma, Bragg, and Wishart."

INDIANA MOTORISTS END TRIP TO COAST IN LOS ANGELES.

Hoosier Cars Spend Thirty-three Days on Road Without Losing Any Starters—Party Returns by Train.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—The most successful automobile tour ever run was brought to a close here today when the Indiana automobile manufacturers rolled into Los Angeles with their eighteen Indiana made cars, including two heavy trucks, only yards apart.

Every car that left the Indiana capital thirty-three days ago, with but one exception, ended the trip on schedule time, and all are fit to return home over the same road.

The exception is the car driven by A. L. Westgard, who is traveling in the interest of the National Highway association, and who left the party in San Francisco, going north to Portland.

The cars which made the start and finish are as follows:

The record is a remarkable one considering the roads, including the famous mountain passes, prairies, and the great American desert.

Premier pilot car, two Marions, two Haynes, Pathfinder G. and J. truck, McFarlan, two Appersons, Empire, Pilot, Marmon, and Brown truck.

Today's run from Santa Barbara was over the mountain and down the pretty San Bernardino valley, and was made in fast time, all the tourists being anxious to end the long grind.

Near Ventura the crews of the Marion roadster, the Empire, and a Henderson car were near an overturned automobile driven by J. W. Brown of Bardsville, Cal. With him were his wife and six children. While going at a thirty-five mile clip his car hit a soft spot in the road, skidded, and turned turtle. The mother sustained several broken ribs, was cut about the head and body and internal injuries are feared. None of the children were hurt, although it was necessary to lift the overturned automobile before two of them could be released from the gear in which they were caught. Mrs. Brown was hurried to a Ventura hospital.

The party will be in this city until Wednesday, being entertained by the local auto club and the chamber of commerce, with a side trip to the Catalina islands. On Wednesday the tourists will board a special train for Indianapolis, spending one day in the Grand canyon.

START "200" CLUB AT DETROIT.

Twelve Motorists Meet Test for Membership in Organization Founded by E. C. Patterson of Chicago.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 3.—Out of a field of sixteen motorists, members of the Wolverine Automobile club of this city, twelve won memberships to the "200" club started by E. C. Patterson of Chicago when they completed 200 miles today without stopping their motors. The run was the first held outside of Chicago, and was declared a great success by the local autoists.

C. A. Pfeffer, C. E. Curry, L. N. Taylor, and A. F. Mais are the starters who failed to complete the run with perfect scores. The tourists traveled in a drizzling rain from Detroit to Lansing, returning to the city via Grand Ledge. Gould Allen was the only entrant who failed to start.

The new members of the club are A. F. Gregory, Fred Riddell, C. A. Boyd, F. T. E. Stephenson, C. A. Woodruff, A. P. Chambs, C. C. Cross, Sam Marks, E. J. Gouldie, R. N. Seale, and H. J. Flint.

PACKEY DECLARES HE'S NOT WELTER

Plans New Ring Campaign, but Will Take On Only Lightweight Boxers.

KLINE SEEKS TROUBLE.

Wants Bouts with Big Fellows, and Does Not Bar Sam Langford or Jeanette.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Packey McFarland returned from a week's cruise on the lake Saturday, and announced yesterday that he would start active training at Lewis' gymnasium in preparation for a number of pending matches. The south sider will box six rounds with Willie Schaeffer at Senator Clark's farm in Wisconsin on Aug. 16. This exhibition will be the feature event of a day's athletic program.

Packey asserted there was no chance for him to jump into the welterweight division. When asked about the matches which Tom McCarey was trying to arrange for him with welters, Packey asserted he was not a welterweight, and that he would box in the lightweight division for the present.

McFarland went to Joliet yesterday to visit friends, but said he would be back about the middle of the week to start training. Willie Schaeffer will act as Packey's sparring partner during his campaign.

Joe Simpson, who looks after the interests of Frank Kline, is anxious to match his fighter with any of the heavyweights. The manager is willing to wager $500 to $1,000 on the result of a match, to be held in private or before the club offering the best inducements. Kline does not draw the color line, and would like nothing better than to secure a match with Sam Langford or Joe Jeanette.

Kline is a big, likely looking fellow. He is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 225 pounds. He has beaten Jack Heinan and Mike Walsh, and is credited with draws against Tony Caponi and Marty Cutler. Simpson is known in fight circles as boxing instructor of the Crown A. C., and did the matchmaking for the East Chicago A. C. when that organization was staging fights. He makes his headquarters now at O'Connell's gymnasium.

Owing to the illness of Larney Lichtenstein, Joe Thomas, trainer of Charley White, will look after Steve Ketchel in the latter's twelve round bout with Sammy Trot at Winnipeg on Aug. 15. Lichtenstein is in a hospital, where he will undergo an operation for appendicitis. Ketchel left for the battle ground on Thursday.

Local fight fans are taking a keen interest in the show at Aurora Wednesday night. In the main bout "Special Delivery" Hirsch will box six rounds with Frankie Snyder, and in the semi-windup "Young" Izzo will step the same distance with Paddy Walsh. Two Aurora bantams will be the principals in the opening contest.

In a letter received from Charley White, the local featherweight, who is pitching hay on a farm near Muskegon, Charley states that he is taking on weight, and believes the outdoor exercise will do him a lot of good. White is anxious to put on about five more pounds in order that he may successfully meet the top notchers in the lightweight division.

Nate Lewis, who looks after the interests of George "Knockout" Brown, yesterday asserted the match between Brown and Jack Dillon at Terre Haute on Labor day had been closed. Lewis said there was a slight hitch over the terms, but this was overcome by a compromise between the fighters and club officials.

In a private bout held yesterday before a suburban club, George Kempler won a six round decision over Barney Miller. They fought at 115 pounds.

Nate Lewis, manager of Charley White, last night closed two matches for his fighter. On Aug. 13 White will box ten rounds to a decision with Frankie Whitney at Atlanta. The weight will be 133 pounds at 6 o'clock. White's opponent on Labor day will be Johnny Griffiths. This will be a twelve round no-decision contest and will be staged at the ball park in Canton, O. The weight will be 133 pounds three hours before the mill.

Accompanied by Manager Ray Bronson, Milburn Saylor, Indiana's crack lightweight, has hiked for Saskatoon, Canada, where on Aug. 7 he hooks up with Mickey McIntyre, the 142 pound boxer who has won a name for himself in recent bouts in the northwest. Saylor and McIntyre will travel the twelve round route to a decision.

DELAYS NAMING BOXING BODY.

Wisconsin Governor Will Not Appoint State Commission Until After the Legislature Adjourns.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Gov. McGovern today said he did not intend to appoint the members of the new state boxing commission until after the legislature adjourned. He said he would look over the field well before making the appointments, because he wanted to name a commission which would be strong enough to keep the sport up to a decent standard and not allow it to descend to prize fighting.

Walter H. Liginger of Milwaukee, former president of the Amateur Athletic union and of the Milwaukee Athletic club, is being urged by Assemblyman A. J. Hedding of Milwaukee, author of the bill for appointment as one of the commissioners. Dr. A. H. Frew of Milwaukee also has been suggested by friends as one of the commissioners.

It is expected that two of the three commissioners will be Milwaukee men and the third a Kenosha or Racine man. Manning Vaughan, a sporting writer of Milwaukee, is Assemblyman Hedding's choice for secretary of the commission. The members of the commission serve without pay. The secretary will receive a salary of $1,500 a year.

CLABBY AND HICKS FIGHT 'DRAW'

Overtime Bout at Butte So Tame Referee Threatens to Call It "No Contest."

Butte, Mont., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—At the end of thirteen rounds the scheduled twelve round bout between Jimmy Clabby of Hammond, Ind., and Freddie Hicks of Detroit was called a draw by Referee John H. McIntosh, following a conference with the state boxing commissioners present. The referee was inclined to call the bout a "no contest."

The bout was so tame and the fighting so indifferent that the referee in the sixth round stopped the fighters and warned them "either to fight or get out of the ring." The boys "roomed together" throughout the contest and were hissed continually. The crowd kept yelling, "Call it no contest."

Frank Hoe Shades Turner.

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Frank Hoe today bested "Kid" Turner of this city in a six round bout at McLean, Ky.

BIRTHDAY GREETINGS.

Jacob Beckley, one of the best known ball players the game ever produced, was born in Hannibal, Mo., Aug. 4, 1867. He started as a professional in 1886 with Leavenworth, Kas., and in the spring of 1887 was sold to the Lincoln (Neb.) club. After finishing the season there he played through the winter of 1887 at Stockton, Cal., where he made a record. In 1888 he was secured by St. Louis, and in June of that year was sold to Pittsburgh. Beckley remained with the Pirates until 1896, when he was sold to the New York Giants. In 1897 he was traded by the Giants to Cincinnati, and remained there until 1903, when he was sold to the St. Louis Nationals. Jake played with the Cardinals until 1907, when Kansas City bought his release. After a season or two with Kansas City he returned to Hannibal as manager and first baseman of the Central association team. At present Jake is an umpire in the Federal league.

O'MAHONEY HURLERS TAKE LEAD

Break Tie for First Place in Chicago League by Defeating Brian Borus, 18 to 9.

First place in the Chicago Hurling league belongs to the O'Mahoneys. Battling desperately yesterday at Gaelic park, South California avenue and West Forty-seventh street, the Brian Borus were beaten, 18 to 9, and the tie for first place broken.

At the end of the first period the Brian Borus led, 9 to 0, and a victory seemed almost impossible for the O'Mahoneys. To the spectacular work of John Fielding the winners owe the game. They came from behind in the second half and scored eighteen points, while their rivals failed to count.

The O'Connells and Sarsfields fought a close game of football after the hurling battle, the former winning, 4 to 2. The winners held the lead throughout, the score being 3 to 1 at the end of the first half.

Yacht Today, Property of Dr. G. H. Dennis, Sinks at Mackinac Island After Explosion on Board.

Mackinac Island, Mich., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—The yacht Today, owned by Dr. G. H. Dennis of Chicago, burned at the dock here yesterday following an explosion of a gasoline tank on board. They hurriedly returned to the dock and managed to escape uninjured. The boat was towed out to the bay and sunk.

STARS NAMED FOR TROT RACE TODAY

Cheeny, Uncle Biff, and Cascade to Meet for First Time at Kalamazoo.

EVENT BETTING FEATURE.

Evelyn W. Latest of Grand Circuit Nags to Be Attacked by Prevailing Fever.

BY HENRY TEN EYCK WHITE.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Although the 2:07 trot here tomorrow is not the feature of the day in the matter of money offered, it will be one of heavy wagering, as Cheeny, 2:04¾; Uncle Biff, 2:06¾, and Cascade, 2:06¾, will come together for the first time.

The rest of the field probably will include Jean Arion from the Murphy stable; Peweé, driven by Geers; Baron Penn, bought today by "Lon" McDonald, and others.

In the $3,000 purse for 2:08 pacers, Iowa Todd, which won a heat at Grand Rapids in 2:05½; Frank Bogash, Wiley Custer, Cabel, Director Jay, and Dillard S. look best, although eight or more probably will start.

Sickness among the grand circuit horses does not abate. The latest nag of prominence to succumb to the prevailing fever is the pacer Evelyn W., 2:00½, which came down with indigestion right after her Grand Rapids race. She is better, but is not likely to start here. Several of the Geers horses are ailing, among them The Assessor and Bertha Carey. The entire stable was so much out of form last week that Geers did not win a heat, and on one occasion was distanced.

NEAR-RIOT MARKS DIXON GAME

Player Circles Sacks Twice on Homer, but Misses Base Each Time—Umpire Loses Job.

Dixon, Ill., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—The Dixon-Sterling game today almost ended in a riot. In the seventh inning Ned Whitebread of Dixon drove the ball into the river for a home run. Sterling claimed he failed to touch third, and before the ball was recovered Whitebread again ran around the bases. Then Umpire Hogan called him out, claiming he had missed second base on his second round. Hogan was taken out, and Woodyatt umpired the rest of the game. Dixon lost, 7 to 1. Score:

Fans Mob Umpire Freeman.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—"Buck" Freeman, the old American league player, and now an umpire in the Tri-State, had a close call yesterday at the close of the Wilmington-Allentown double header. Two thousand fans, who took exception to his decisions, tried to attack him, and but for eight sturdy cops they would have succeeded. Hundreds of bottles and other missiles filled the air, and several spectators were struck and seriously cut. Freeman escaped.

TROJANS BATTER INFANT CREW, 12-5

Hurlers Bombarded for Three Homers, Five Triples, and Two Doubles.

SWATS NET FIFTY SACKS.

Schulte, Williams, and Stengel Connect for Circuit; Lavender Goes Route.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

In an engagement featured by heavy cannonading on both sides and by several umpirical tangles, the Cubs walked away yesterday with the first of the four game series against the denizens of the "burrow" of Brooklyn by a score of 12 to 5.

The bombarding of pitchers was quite equally divided, but the Trojans were much more fortunate in their method of combining swats. Three home runs were made, two of them by the Cubs, in addition to several near home runs, some of which ought to have been circuit trips. Five three baggers were chalked down, three by the Dodgers. A pair of doubles looked lost in the shuffle, but raised the grand total for slamming the ball to an even fifty bases.

The Trojans had a little the better of the stick argument in that they rang up fifteen safeties for a total of twenty-seven bags, against fourteen hits with a total of twenty-three bases for the Dodgers. The lone Cub error cut no figure, while one of the two charged to the enemy cost like the dickens.

Schulte's Homer a Present?

Two of the several close decisions raised a holler from the Dodger camp and made considerable difference in the count, although not enough to affect the actual result. "Ump" Brennan was charged with giving Schulte a home run on a two base hit, and also with getting his wires crossed so as to forbid Pitcher Wagner a base on balls, an oversight which Bill made up for the next time Wagner came to bat.

Schulte's long wallop in the fifth sailed far out into right center, hit either inside or outside the pavilion barrier, and rebounded into the playing field. Brennan ruled that the ball cleared the screen and lit inside the stand, while the enemy's outfielders and manager maintained it struck the empty overflow seats outside the screen. "Ump" Eason, when appealed to by his partner, backed him up. Schulte probably would have scored from second any way on Zimmerman's sizzler through Smith.

Scorer Can't Help Umpire.

Wagner and his manager both maintained stoutly that "Ump" Brennan had miscounted the balls and strikes on Wagner in the seventh inning. They were so positive about it that the arbitrator walked back to the press camp and appealed to the official scorer, who was telling the head telegraph operator about a swell place to eat, so could not help Brennan out of the dilemma. Bill stuck to the count on his indicator and Wagner eventually struck out. That made a difference of at least one run, and perhaps more. It was followed by Bridwell's wild throw which gave Scheer a life; Cutshaw's single, and a pass to Stengel, which filled the bases, only to have them left in that condition on Wheat's fly.

Stengel and Cy Williams made undisputed home runs. Stengel hit high up on the score board in right field and rebounded into the lot. Williams hit his four baser straight over center field to the clubhouse in the seventh and scooted around the path, driving Saier home ahead of him long before the ball got back.

Long Hits Come Often.

Tommy Leach made the circuit without stopping in the second inning, but got credit for only a triple, because he made the last lap on a wild heave from Wheat. Cutshaw ought to have made a home run in the ninth, but was stopped on third as a matter of discretion because it was not worth taking a chance with the Dodgers nine runs behind. Tom Needham hit two home runs and reached third on the first one, but stopped at second on the other. Both of Needham's long blows came with runners on base, and the second one cleaned up with the bags chockful.

James Sanford Lavender stood the gaff for the whole nine innings and always was on a good margin. The Cubs assaulted Pat Ragon so ferociously in the beginning that they counted five runs off him in two innings. Manager Dahlen took pity on Pat and let Wagner, a recruit, finish the game. The only time the Dodgers were within distance was in the fourth, when they got to Lavender for four hits, which, with a wild pitch, gave them three runs and ought to have made more.

The Leach-Evers incident became a thing of history in the fifth inning when Leach smashed into the stand in deep right center going after Stengel's long fly and nearly fractured a pair of ribs. Tommy rebounded from the bump almost as far as the ball did, staggered a few steps until he could pick up the sphere and throw it to Evers, then collapsed. The manager ran to the wounded gardener's assistance, and in full view of the crowd patted him on the shoulder in congratulatory manner for the risk he had taken of breaking his back to save the game, which then was comparatively close. Leach found nothing broken, and, after recovering his lost wind, stuck to the fray.

Lavender Only Hitless Cub.

Leach wound up with three safe hits, a single, double, and triple. Cy Williams ran him an even race with two singles and a home run. Needham, Evers, and Saier made two hits apiece, Tom's being of the long distance variety. Everybody got at least one except Lavender, who was content to lower his record for striking out. He whiffed only once in four times at bat.

Cutshaw of the visitors made three clean hits, including a three bagger, which really was a home run. Fisher also delivered three safeties, one of which was good for three corners. He tried for four and was nailed at the plate. Stengel made two for a total of seven bags, and Smith and Miller also came across with a pair of safe ones.

The Cubs made their first pair of runs in the opener on singles by Leach and Evers, Schulte's sacrificial bunt, Zimmerman's sacrificial fly, and a single by Saier. In the second they got to Ragon for three runs—on a single by Williams and triples by Needham and Leach with the help of Wheat's wild return to third.

Wagner took hold in the third and stopped the Cubs for a couple of rounds, while the Dodgers landed on Lavender for a home run and three singles in the fourth. These, helped out by a wild pitch, counted three runs. A fourth tally would have come in on a passed ball if Smith, who was on third, had not had his back turned to the play when the ball slipped past Needham.

Scoring Bee in Sixth.

Schulte's home run added one to the Cub count in the fifth, then in the sixth Wagner had his troubles. Saier and Williams doubled. Bridwell bunted in front of the plate and Miller threw to third, forcing Saier, but Smith muffed the throw. Needham picked this psychological moment for slamming the ball into left center far enough to score three Cubs and reach second himself. Some slam. Williams' home run followed a base on balls to Saier in the seventh.

The Dodgers raised their count by two runs in the ninth on Cutshaw's triple, a pass to Wheat, and a single by Smith.

THROWS OUT DODGER PROTEST.

Lynch O. K.'s Game Won by Reds on July 11—Ruling on Wild Pitch Starts Dispute.

New York, Aug. 3.—President Lynch of the National league in a decision announced today, held that the result of the protested Brooklyn-Cincinnati game of July 11, which Cincinnati won, 5 to 3, stands as played. Brooklyn protested because of a decision by Umpire Quigley, who allowed Player Moran only one base on a wild pitch, on which misplay Moran had advanced from first to third. The evidence submitted by Umpire Quigley and Capt. Hoblitzel, according to President Lynch's decision, showed that on the first day of the Brooklyn-Cincinnati series, Manager Dahlen had made a ground rule allowing only one base on a pitched ball which hit the grand stand. As both clubs agreed to this rule, President Lynch held that the protest of the Brooklyn club had no force.

CUB SYDELIGHTS.

Brooklyn again today, tomorrow, and Wednesday.

By virtue of yesterday's triumph, while Pittsburgh was standing still, the Cubs squeezed back into third place.

Tomorrow will be Mike Hechinger day at the Cubs' park. The north side friends of the Chicago boy, who started with the Cubs this year and now is with Brooklyn, want to give him a token of their great esteem, so Manager Dahlen has promised to use Mike behind the bat.

Fisher came within a fraction of an inch of making a home run in the second. He hit a drive to left center, and it shot through Williams, who tore across after it. Leach retrieved the pill and fired it to Bridwell, who made a swell relay, nipping Fisher just as he slid to the pan.

After the mixup over balls and strikes on Wagner in the seventh Brennan kept his eye on his indicator, when not otherwise engaged. When Wagner next came to bat in the eighth Brennan called a fourth ball on what looked like a groover, but everybody laughed and did not kick.

Schulte made a pretty running catch of Smith's line drive near the stand in the eighth. Wheat pinched a nice, promising looking wallop from Schulte's bat in the third inning. These were the brightest spots in the picture.

Umpire Brennan got off on the wrong foot and never did get over it. He started in by announcing that batteries "for Chicago, Lavender and Reulbach," etc. He did not guess what the fans were laughing about until some of the players wised him up, then he informed the people that T. Needham would backstop.

Smith was on third, with two out, and Wagner at bat in the fourth. He made a large bluff at stealing home, then turned and hustled back to third. The pitched ball got away from Needham and rolled so far that Smith could have scored easily, but he was going and looking the wrong way when it happened.

PHILLIES WIN BY FAST START.

Bunched Swats in First Three Rounds Give Quakers Verdict Over Cardinals, 5 to 3.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 3.—Philadelphia bunched hits for enough runs in the first three innings to win from St. Louis this afternoon, 5 to 3. Paskert's triple and a single by Knabe started the scoring. Successive singles by Doolan, Killifer, and Brennan counted one more in the second. In the third Knabe singled and was sacrificed to second. Gather's two base muff of Magee's pop tallied the second baseman. Magee scored when Luderus singled. Geyer pitched fair ball for six and two-thirds innings, but yielded one run. Score:

WHITE SOX MEET SENATORS TODAY

Single Victory Over Yanks Makes Hose Happy; Think Luck Has Turned.

CAL PLANNING BIG DEAL?

Rumor in Camp That New Trade May Be Completed Before Team Returns Home.

BY SAM WELLER.

New York, Aug. 3.—[Special.]—With half of the eastern invasion completed and a record of one victory and six defeats, the White Sox took passage on a fast train for Washington this afternoon at 5 o'clock, taking advantage of the open date to make the jump and have a night's rest before opening a four days' combat with Clark Griffith's sturdy Senators tomorrow.

The squad was due to reach the capital city at 11 o'clock, and all athletes were glad of the chance to avoid a night on the sleeping car. In spite of the distorted record, the Sox were in splendid spirits because they finally had broken the losing spell. Although they will meet two strong teams in the remaining games of the journey, the Sox look for success simply because all believe that the "breaks" can't go against them as consistently for another long spell as they have since they left home.

White Sox Offense Weak.

Manager Callahan has done some thinking about the national game in the last week and has made an exhaustive study of the playing material he has on his hands. This has brought about a conviction that the Sox are woefully weak in offensive playing, and will be until a couple of hard hitters are procured, or two or three of the men already on hand show a decided improvement.

The new lineup of the team, put in operation yesterday in the final game against the Yanks, was arranged by the manager after many hours of pondering, and with the one idea of getting more driving power. Indications are Cal thinks he has sacrificed some of the defensive strength, but he is willing to sacrifice still more if by doing so more runs will be scored.

Unless Joe Berger proves an absolute failure as a batter he is likely to be the second baseman from now until the Sox finish playing the Cubs in October.

Rath Can't Swat 'Em.

Morris Rath was a successful second sacker as far as the fielding end of the game went, and he got along acceptably in the offensive end when he was getting a lot of bases on balls. But Rath hasn't been getting those free passes to first base as he was last season, and the reason is that all the pitchers in the American league have learned that he can't hit a ball hard.

Every time Rath goes to bat, the outfielders move in about twenty yards. The left fielder plays only a little short distance behind short stop. With this defense set for Rath, the pitcher simply lays the ball over the plate and makes him hit it. Rath has been hitting it, but not once yet has he drove it over the heads of the outfielders. If he could do that just about two times he would chase them back where they formerly played and then Morris would get many base hits on those little pokes out over the infield that now are easy fly balls to the gardeners.

Callahan kept Rath on the job until he was convinced he couldn't chase the second line of defense back. Knowing the pitchers were making him hit the ball now instead of giving him a chance to walk, there was nothing left to do but make a change.

Berger Has Driving Power

Berger can hit a ball hard enough for a sacrifice fly if a man should be on third base and a sacrifice fly needed, and it is seldom Rath can drive one out far enough to let a man get home from third. In the Thursday game here Rath went to bat four times and died four times on fly balls to the outfield. Every time the outfielders were playing just a little way back of the infield. Once Rath made Wolter turn and jog back about fifteen yards to get the ball.

On the other hand, Berger can hit 'em hard when he connects, as was shown a couple of times yesterday. Once he smashed one over third base with such speed that Midkiff couldn't head it off and it went for a double. Another time he made Wolter chase far back into left center after a long fly which would have been a home run if Wolter hadn't made a great running catch.

Larry Chappell, the expensive outfielder, looked good again yesterday. Apparently he has recovered from his injury. He made two hits in the game and both were timely. He fanned once, but he breezed swinging at the ball, and as long as he fans that way it shows he's awake.

Cal Planning New Trade?

It is rumored around the camp that Callahan has another big trade planned and wants to turn it before the Sox get back home. He was asked if he were going to try to make a trade, but avoided answering directly by saying he was afraid no other club in the league would trade with him now after reading the stories handed out by Frank Chance on how he [Callahan] had swindled the New York club out of Hal Chase.

The result of that trade has caused a breach between Chance and Callahan. They were close friends before, but they did not speak to each other in the three days they were on the same ball field here. Friends of both have tried to arrange a meeting, feeling sure that if the two got together and had it out, they would be friends again and have a complete understanding of the mess when they parted.

COOMBS TO JOIN MACKS TODAY.

"Iron Man" Ready to Enter Fray Again, but May Not Hurl for Several Days.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Interest at Shibe park tomorrow will extend beyond the outcome of the first tilt of a series of four between the Athletics and the fast going Cleveland Naps. There will be another headliner for the followers of Connie Mack's athletics. Jack Coombs, known in baseball parlance as the "Iron Man," who has gone through two world's series without meeting defeat, will make his first appearance of the season here. Coombs participated in two games early in the season, but they were away from home. Coombs will arrive tomorrow morning from his farm at West Kennebunk, Me., but it is unlikely he will pitch for several days.

"The Best Play I Ever Saw."

Madison, Wis.—[To the Baseball Editor of The Tribune.]—The best play I ever saw occurred in the sixth inning of a game between the Leland Giants of Chicago and the Mineral Point team. With none out and a man on third, a Mineral Point batter sent a short fly to center field. The Leland center fielder ran in at the crack of the bat and got under the ball a few feet back of second base. Just as he was setting himself to make the catch he slipped on the soft field and fell to a sitting position. The ball dropped near him and he made the catch. The runner on third, seeing his predicament, darted for the plate as soon as the ball struck the fielder's hands, but without any attempt to regain his feet the center fielder from his sitting position made a precise throw home, and the runner was an easy out.

NOBLE TAPPINS, 1702 Jefferson street.

QUICK THINKING BY CUBS.

Chicago.—[To the Baseball Editor of The Tribune.]—The best play I ever saw was in a game between Cubs and Giants several years ago. Slagle was on second and Maloney on first. The batter hit a hot grounder to right field. Both runners were off like a shot. By the time Slagle had rounded third base Maloney had caught him and both dug for home. Bowerman, who was catching, got the ball just as Slagle hit the plate. Slagle was out, but Maloney slid under Slagle and was declared safe.

MOORE MAKES DIFFICULT PLAY.

Bloomington, Ind.—[To the Baseball Editor of The Tribune.]—The best play I ever saw occurred at Rochester, Ind., and was made by Moore, present shortstop of the Troy [N. Y.] State league team. Moore was playing second for the home team, which was leading by one run in the last half of the ninth inning. Three visitors were on bases with two out when a sharp grounder was sent through the slab, which the pitcher failed to get. Both shortstop and second baseman started for the ball, but the shortstop gave up. Moore by throwing himself forward on one hand and his knees got the ball, but not being in a position to play on any man, scooped it to the shortstop, whose throw beat the runner to first by a step.

G. C. MANCE, 316 East Second street.

PLAY BY JIGGS DONAHUE.

Chicago.—[To the Baseball Editor of The Tribune.]—The best play I ever saw was made by Jiggs Donahue when he was playing with the White Sox a few years ago. There was a runner on first and one on second. The batter hit the ball straight toward Donahue, who caught the ball by reaching with his famous left hand. He immediately tagged the runner, who was midway between first and second, and ran over and touched the man running to third who was returning to second. The play was pulled off unassisted, and would not have been made if Donahue had not been playing near the second baseman.

IN THE WAKE OF THE NEWS.

BY R. W. LARDNER.

THAT BABY AGAIN.

A column captain, kid, like me?
I think you'd find it easy, quite;
Yes, you could keep a Wake all right.

When you grow up, what will you be?
A football star? It seems to me
You'd learn that pastime mighty quick;
You know already how to kick.

When you grow up what will you be?
A batsman, like Ted Easterly?
You'd never hit 'em in the pinch—
You'd make 'em walk you, it's a cinch.

A Walsh, or Cheney? Probably.
For you already can, I know,
Do what they do before they throw.

When you grow up, will you win fame
At Red McLoughlin's tennis game?
'Twould not surprise me if you did;
You're there with the old racket, kid.

When you grow up what will you be?
At wrestling a celebrity?
It seems to be no trick at all
For you, young man, to get a fall.

When you grow up, you little thing,
Will you shine in the fistic ring?
'Twould make a Fitz or John L. weep
To try to put you, kid, to sleep.

'FEDS' LOSE AT ST. LOUIS, 8-4

Terriers Rout Mitchell with Four Runs in Third.

CLINCH VICTORY IN SIXTH.

Three Errors by Keeleys Help Rivals Secure Trio of Tallies.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—After Chicago had taken the lead in the third inning of today's game the St. Louis Federals fell on Mitchell, the Chicago hurler, driving him from the slab, and the game went to St. Louis, 8 to 4.

Chicago put two runs across in the third and two more in the sixth. A volley of hits in the third round gave the Terriers four tallies, and they scored three more in the sixth and one in the seventh. Three errors by Chicago helped account for the runs in the sixth session. Score:

Billy Mack's winning streak came to a sudden end yesterday when the Gunthers hammered him at Gunther park, and the Logan Squares came out on the short end of an 8 to 1 score in the Lake Shore league.

Mack blew up when a foul tip off Geiser's bat nearly put Camp out of the game. In the fifth round, two hits, a pass, and a hit batsman were followed by a crashing drive by Jake Geiser which cleaned the bases. The drive was one of the longest home runs ever made at the park. Schuler's double play just missed being a triple affair in the fourth inning. Score:

There will be dance music, too, for those who are actively interested in the revival of the polka and the old fashioned waltz. A Persian kitten, donated by Mrs. Victor Falkenau, will add to the evening's proceeds. Ice cream and cake will be served on the lawn.

News of the Theaters.

At the Cort Theater; "The Elixir of Youth."

BY PERCY HAMMOND.

FROM certain evidence attending the exercises at the Cort Saturday night one gathered the impression that the advent of "The Elixir of Youth" was not at all devoid of the omens of popularity. Thus, there were occasional shrieks of laughter from the large band of semi-enthusiasts present, and ever and anon the clapping of hands indicated that happiness had descended upon some pervious soul or other as the result of the more or less excruciating situations depicted by the industrious actors. There were, it is true, no loud cries of "Author! Author!" to be heard, and the manifestations of approval cannot be described with accuracy as frenzied. But there was applause enough to warrant the raising of the curtain at the act ends, and the players had considerable excuse for bowing to one another and to the audience, according to the usual custom.

What, it may be asked, impelled this attitude of polite cordiality on the part of that section of the public which was attracted to the Cort by the lure that "The Elixir of Youth" was a Los Angeles success? Well, according to the composers, Miss Covington and Mr. Simonson, an aged and idiotic scientist of Oneida, N. Y., figured out that he had discovered a tincture three spoonfuls of which would turn the sables of old age into the light and careless livery of youth. By means of various fantastic imbecilities, preposterous misunderstandings, grotesque incredibilities, and unbelievable insanities this amiable simpleton was brought to believe that he had transformed a senile octogenarian into a puling infant. Leaving the old fellow with a vial of the elixir, he returned to find a baby—deposited there by a strange young female who came and went with the blithe insouciance of a wandering wind—engaged in the performance of a vagrant and obstetric symphony. Every time it seemed necessary to give the play a new quirk this young person would appear inexplicably, with and without her progeny, uttering remarks in a strange babel of Spanish and Ute Indian. Two nauseating manikins figured in the complexities, unhappy improvisations like those in the more peppery "Baby Mine," and there were suggestive suggestions which made the more fastidious first-nighters glad that they didn't bring their wives. Even the minor responsibilities of farce were naively pooh-poohed, and the characters arrived and departed with all the untroubled indifference to time and destination of a through route street car. Somewhere in the last act there was a pat line or two that caused legitimate laughter, and no doubt after emerging from the loop crucible there will be many more of them for the entertainment of the transients in New York. For there is in the idea of "The Elixir of Youth" the material for a bully American farce. It is juvenile and inexperienced at present, crudely contrived and written, and perhaps all it needs is the oof-oof of this dog town to make it better behaved for New York.

Mr. Joseph Brennan can be commended for his hard, effective, and consistent labor as the old-young suitor of the story—an impersonation that is obviously a task. Mr. Harry Mestayer, too, is funny now and then in a sterile rôle scarcely worthy of a player of his presence and caliber, and Mr. George Barnum and occasionally Miss Marie Taylor manage to put into the play the only semblance to sanity that it possesses. Mr. Frank Bacon performs lyrically under his customary gray wig, striving, not without success, to give character to a thin, conventional type; and the others are at least eager and conscientious.

Confederate Daughters Plan Outing.

Five hundred members of Chicago chapter, Daughters of the United Confederacy, will participate in the annual outing of the society, consisting of a boat ride to Milwaukee and return on Aug. 18, according to reports made at a meeting of the directors held in the Auditorium hotel on Saturday. There will be a program of music and other features.

The Messrs. Shubert Announce Their Plans.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Plays and players to be presented in New York by the Shuberts during the season soon to open were announced today. There are a number of plays by American authors little known to fame, three Shakspearean revivals, and some foreign successes which will be tried by American companies.

They announce that Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, with a company headed by his wife, will open the new Shubert theater in West Forty-fourth street, New York, early in the season. This will be Forbes-Robertson's farewell tour of America, and after his engagement here he will cross the continent, playing in the principal cities. He will play his Shakspearean repertoire, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," "The Light That Failed," and "Cæsar and Cleopatra."

At the same time it is planned to present E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe at the Manhattan Opera house in a revival of eight Shakspearean plays. They will open on Sept. 22, and will play for five weeks. They will offer these plays:

"Macbeth," "Hamlet," "Romeo and Juliet," "As You Like It," "Much Ado About Nothing," "Taming of the Shrew," "Merchant of Venice," and "Twelfth Night." Later in the season William Faversham, appearing under his own management, at Shubert theaters, will again play "Julius Cæsar," and will add for this season "Othello" and "Romeo and Juliet."

Mr. Faversham will join in producing "Panthea," a new play by Moncton Hoppe.

Of new American plays the Messrs. Shubert announce that they will stage "A Modern Girl," by Ruth C. Mitchell. It is said to be a play of life in America today, and to deal with a young girl reared in luxury. Another American play is "Warning," by Arthur J. Eddy of Chicago, which is to be played before New Yorkers, and still another is "If We Had Only Known."

Two American comedies will be produced, the first a dramatization of the "Pa Flickengers'" folk stories, which appeared in the American Magazine, and were later published by the Harpers. Bessie Hoover is the author of the stories, and they will be put on the stage under the title, "The Winning of Ma." The other comedy, by Albert Lee, is called "Miss Phœnix," and deals with modern New York life.

Louis Mann will be seen in a play by Clara Lipman (Mrs. Louis Mann) and Samuel Shipman. The play is called "Children of Today," and is a satiric comedy. Mr. Mann's leading woman will be Emily Ann Wellman.

The Shuberts will also bring Mme. Bertha Kalich back to the legitimate stage this year from vaudeville, and will present her in a translation of a German play which has already won success in Germany. It is by E. E. Ritter, and is called in the English version, "Her Son's Wife."

A play called "Suttee," by Guy Bolton, to be presented in America this season for the first time, is described by the producers as a problem play, dealing with a woman who is married to a man who has wrecked his life. Guy Scarborough is the author of another play, "At Bay," which is to be presented with Guy Standing and Miss Chrystal Herne in the leading rôles.

Of foreign plays the Shuberts also plan to present Granville Barker and his English company in three plays, including one by himself, one by Shaw, and one by John Galsworthy. With William A. Brady and Comstock and Gest plays have been made for three Drury Lane plays—"Hop O'My Thumb," "Cheer, Boys, Cheer," and "Dreadnought."

The Max Reinhardt spectacle, "Turnadot," which was announced last season, will be presented during the year. A new version of the play has been made by Percy Mackaye. "The Ride to Hell," will also be presented in association with Winthrop Ames. The only French play listed is Lucien Nepoty's "Les Petites," which will be produced as "The Little Ones" here.

"O, I Say!" is another musical play to be seen here, though it was originally a French farce and is now running in London. Sam Bernard will be sent on tour in "All for the Ladies," and James T. Powers is expected to appear again in "The Geisha."

Going to Buy a Home.

I guess there are many young couples in the same boat with us. We have been married three years and until the first of this year we lived up to every cent my husband made and we were always broke the day before pay day, but last fall I went to look at a cottage for rent and that could be bought for a small cash payment, so small that it made me ashamed to think I had not saved a cent in three years. So I made up my mind that in another year we would be paying the rent money on a place that would some day be our own.

In January I started saving. I go downtown every other Wednesday, and my first stop is at the bank. Then I buy canned goods, soap, sugar, and bacon or a small ham and fresh meat for two or three days, as I can keep it this weather, and we are a long ways from a good market.

They send a boy out every day, but if you order a pound of meat they will send a pound and a half and think you have to take it, and it is not so easy to order for two people as for a large family.

I also wish to state that I do not believe in running a bill at the grocery store, for you will get things that add 5 or 10 cents to your bill that you could well do without.

We go to a good show once in a while, but not often, for we both like to read, and as we have a well stocked book case we can pass the long evenings at home and enjoy them.

Watches Bargain Sales.

My husband is a railroad engineer and gets paid but once a month, which I think makes economy harder. We run no monthly accounts, as most railroad men do. I buy all of my staple groceries at the Monday sales at one of the State street department stores. I buy a whole ham and bacon, paying 18 cents a pound, while in my neighborhood I would pay 32 cents. I get twenty pounds of sugar for 95 cents. I have cut my milk bill in two by using condensed milk, and butterine does nicely for cooking and baking. I set a good table on $5 a week. We pay $30 a month for a five room apartment and rent a room for $15, making our rent but $15 a month.

I make all of my own clothes with the exception of one tailor made suit a year, and make my everyday hats. My husband's work does not require good clothes, so he does not spend much on them. We have no debts. My husband's income is $150 a month, and our expenses are $60, leaving $90 for the bank. We have been married three years and have saved nearly $3,000. We take an extensive trip each summer; our traveling on passes makes it possible.

Pleasure in Duties.

It seems to me the best plan in this day of high cost of living is for the wife to have a certain sum each week for household expenses. Above all things, pay cash and do not charge, as in this way you can get best value for your money and know just how much each meal is costing.

Then the next step is to do your own carrying of goods home, except, of course, such as flour, potatoes, etc., but you can get so much fun and enjoyment out of going to your grocer's each day with your market basket and carrying home just what you want.

At the end of the week you can have some more fun adding up expenses and figuring out just what you could have saved by buying in quantities the articles favored by your family.

If the women made pleasure out of their duties we could enjoy life so much better and every one around us would be happier and appreciate us more. Life anyway is just what we make it, so here's to happy housekeepers.

MRS. C. C. VEATCH,
420 West Tenth street, Topeka, Kan.

Be Judicious in Buying.

It seems to me if there were more judgment used in the buying of articles there would not be such a high cost of living. Don't go bargain hunting. So much money is wasted in that way. Things are bought simply because they are cheap, when they are not needed at all. Hence it is wasted. Don't buy in large quantities, especially if your family is small, as there won't be so much waste.

Be judicious in your purchasing instead of paying an exorbitant price to refurnish your bedroom, as this is house cleaning time. Get cheese cloth for 10 cents per yard, stencil a neat, effective border to match your wall paper. Use this for curtains, runners for dresser, chiffonier, and also for bed spread. Stencil a border along the sides and across ends.

Meat is expensive. Use more vegetables and not too much rich pastry. Make your own bread and cake. Roll your stale bread crumbs to use for scalloping things, or in puddings. Save your meat fryings to use again. Do not throw away a small portion of corn that may be left from your dinner. Save it and make fritters with it. Never throw away things you can use again. Pay as you buy, because a bill grows quickly. Be careful of your gas and ice bills. Watch the little things.

I believe if people would go about housework—I mean the managing of it—in a systematic way one could reduce this high cost of living.

Children Should Have Allowance.

Parents should give their children at the age of 11 or 12 a weekly allowance. There is usually something to be bought for school purposes every week or two, besides the books at the beginning of the term.

This allowance ought to be kept track of in a small book by the child. There ought always to be a little set aside, as there are certain times of the year when more books are needed than at other times. They should be made to figure ahead.

All money spent for "sweets" should come out of this, and their church allowance should also be included in it.

At the age of 15 the boy and girl ought to be given an allowance to cover their clothing or at least most of them, and pick them out with the help of their parents.

From the first they should be taught to save a little toward a bank account.

When they do these things for themselves they will think longer before spending their money foolishly.

To the girl and boy starting to work the first pay envelope looks like a small gold mine, and this earlier training will keep them from beginning life "on their own hook" extravagantly.

Does Own Laundry Work.

I was a bride four years ago and thought that of course I had to have a laundress come in every week, as my friends did and are still doing. But I don't. I need the money.

My husband's shirts and collars went to the laundry. The woman I engaged charged $1.25 a day and I willingly gave her dinner and two light lunches—one when she came and the other to speed her on her long trip home. Now I send sheets, slips, towels, and table linen to a first class laundry, also a list of rough dry. We are careful of spreads and they do not require to be washed often when a person stops a bad habit of lounging upon a bed and using it as a couch or chair during the day. My bill for flat work and table linen and towels, bedding, dish towels together with rough dry, never exceeds 15 cents a week. I wash out all handkerchiefs and shirtwaists, also lisle underwear, sending woolen to the laundry, and they have been doing them beautifully (the same ones) for two years.

When the laundress came to the house she used about six bars of soap in three weeks, also washing compounds. She was a splendid worker, but never completed the ironing which I had to finish. Now I dampen four or five large pieces at a time and iron while I feel energetic.

BRILLIANT CHURCH WEDDING FOR PACKER'S SON AND BRIDE.

Clarence John Cudahy, Married at Hartland, Wis., Will Take Wife Abroad on Honeymoon.

Hartland, Wis., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—The marriage of Miss Katherine Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison C. Reed, to Clarence John Cudahy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Cudahy, was solemnized in St. Charles' Catholic church here at 3 o'clock this afternoon by the Rev. Father Keyser.

The bride was given away by her father. She was gowned in white crêpe de chine, trimmed in real lace, and wore a real lace veil. She carried a shower bouquet of swansonia and white sweet peas.

Miss Helen Cudahy, sister of the groom, was maid of honor, and Miss Margaret Reed, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Both wore white lingerie dresses and white tulle caps and carried pink and white swansonia.

Misses Pauline Beck and Marie Reed were flower girls. They wore white dresses with pink sashes and pink tulle caps. They carried baskets of pink sweet peas. Curt Hansen of Milwaukee attended the groom as best man.

After the ceremony the bridal party and immediate relatives were entertained at a wedding dinner at the summer home of the bride's parents at Pine Lake. Mr. Cudahy and bride will go abroad until October, when they will take up their residence in Milwaukee.

Pastor from East Gives Advice to Business Men.

"ADVICE to Business Men," was the theme of a sermon preached yesterday morning in the Fourth Presbyterian church by the Rev. Joseph D. Burrell, pastor of the Classon avenue Presbyterian church of Brooklyn, N. Y.

"The modern business man," Dr. Burrell said, "is governed by circumstances over which he seems to have no control. It is a peculiarity of our age as compared with the life of our predecessors. Life has become so complex that the ordinary business man has lost his personal control over circumtances and has abandoned himself to their domination.

"He eats his breakfast with an irritating sense of hurry. He catches a car and gives himself to the vast detail of the morning newspaper. He sits down to his mail to throw his mind into all sorts of matter thrust upon him from without. He goes through the routine of his day's work submitting because he must. He returns home at night tired and half disgusted and in the evening has brain enough left for only some trivial show or game. When Sunday comes he is too worn out to go to church and kills time in the morning, and in the afternoon takes a whirl in his automobile and goes to rest early in order to begin a new day with the same kind of grind. He doesn't want to lead a futile life like this; no, he leads it because he lacks method and mastery.

"'Clean up' day in our cities brings to light an accumulation of rubbish that exceeds all expectation. If business men would inspect their habits and practices they would likewise find rubbish heaps that they might throw away. The merchant who neglects his business and goes fishing is not choosing a crime, but only the lesser good of two things. A man ought to have a controlling standard and motive and that ought to be to follow the will of God. This will give right direction and dominance to his life."

President Interested in Refrigeration.

President Wilson has been asked by Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, president of the Third International Congress of Refrigeration, to name a senatorial committee to welcome delegates from foreign countries. While the congress is to be held in Chicago Sept. 15 to Oct. 1, the delegates are to hold a brief session in Washington before coming here.

President Wilson, who has accepted the title of sponsor, probably will inaugurate the program with an address of welcome. The president, it is declared, long has been interested in the science of refrigeration from an educational standpoint.

"The science of refrigeration has practically been solved," said Dr. Gunsaulus yesterday, "and with this solution has come the recovery of volatile substances which heretofore have gone to waste. A vast amount of preliminary work has been done in the opening up of productive fields, the exploitation of which was impossible before the advent of refrigeration."

The congress will be formally opened by Dr. Gunsaulus and it is likely he also will open the refrigeration exposition to be held simultaneously with the gathering at the International Livestock Exposition building at the Union stockyards.

Psychology Religion's Hope.

Bethany Park, Ind., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—A storm of protest has been aroused here among the scores of noted evangelists from every state who are attending the national evangelistic congress, as a result of a statement made by the Rev. W. E. Harlow of Springfield, Mo., that evangelists should make use of psychology in conversions.

Mr. Harlow is a close student of the problem of the application of the new thought to religion.

He scored the average evangelist for his use of hypnotism, sensationalism, excitement, and ever persuasion in gaining souls, but declared that psychology, wisely used, was the hope of the church of the future.

Rock River Assembly Loses Money.

Dixon, Ill., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—For the second time since its organization, twenty-seven years ago, the Rock River assembly has lost money. Last year the management reported a deficit of about $2,000. Tonight at the close of the first week's program it is reported that by reason of the extreme hot weather and failure of talent on the program to fill engagements the expenses are $3,000 over receipts. Ex-Gov. J. Frank Hanly of Indiana was the big card today, but failed to draw the big crowd expected.

Philadelphia Minister Pleads for Vacations.

"SMALL talk, nonsense, gossip, and business hustle" are some of the evils of the present day, according to the Rev. Joseph W. Cochran of Philadelphia, secretary of the board of education of the Presbyterian church, who preached yesterday in the Second Presbyterian church, Michigan avenue and Twentieth street. He made a plea for vacations.

"The city dweller must get out into God's out of doors, and stay alone awhile," Dr. Cochran said. "He must come into touch with nature's realities and free himself from the artificial chit chat we are continually surrounded with. The people of Europe make fun of us Americans because of our race for money. Why, the little ragamuffins on the streets of Italian cities know the music of the grand operas and feel the charm of the masterpieces of art and architecture, while so many of us keep our faces on the ground, hustling for the thing that perishes. We need three things—to get near to reality, to link ourselves with the history of the past, and to work out our future according to the plan of God."

Women Man's Equal, Says Pastor.

Women are the equal of men, according to the Rev. F. C. Bruner, who preached yesterday in the Ogden Park Methodist Episcopal church on "The Hilltop of Woman's Achievement."

"Brains are alike to the Creator, whether in Daniel Webster or in Susannah Wesley," Dr. Bruner said.

"Woman has been slow in coming to her emancipation, but there is no field of human endeavor in which she has not achieved a triumph.

"It was once thought the management of national affairs must be isolated from motherhood, but now we find the same qualifications are needed for both spheres. The influence of the ancient Deborah has traveled like light falling snow, until it has built up an avalanche that has plunged down the mountain side and carried all opposition before it.

"Military genius is not a mark of sex. Maria Therese of Austria and Joan of Arc of France are examples of what women can do.

"Christopher Columbus is immortalized as the discoverer of America, but Queen Isabella of Spain by the sacrifice of her jewels made the discovery possible."

Tells of Character Building.

"Goodness must be worked from the spinal column."

This was the assertion of Frank Pierpont Graves, LL. D., professor of the history of education in the University of Ohio, who is one of the visiting professors and lecturers at the University of Chicago.

Dr. Graves spoke yesterday morning in the Green Street Congregational church, of which the Rev. Irving Cobb McGann is pastor. Mr. McGann told the audience that Dr. Graves was not a minister, but a layman who could preach.

"When a man begins to ride a bicycle," Dr. Graves said, "he tries first to work it with his brains, but after he has learned how he works it with his spinal column. Character does not become fixed in goodness until our efforts at right doing become unconscious and we act from habit. When a child takes its first steps it thinks what it is doing, but when it has learned how to walk it does it without thinking.

"We are a bundle of habits. If his habits are good, the man is righteous. If his habits are bad, he is a sinner."

German Old Settlers to Hold Annual Picnic.

A LIST of twelve prizes, mainly for German-Americans of long residence in Chicago, is expected to bring many elderly men and women to Brand's park today, when the Chicago Turngemeinde will hold its thirty-ninth annual old settlers' picnic.

But one of the prizes is going to bring a lot of children, too. It will be awarded the German-American who can bring in his train the largest number of children and grandchildren. It is a part of the plan for encouraging large families.

There are prizes for the oldest settler, man or woman, born in Germany, and for those not born in Germany; for the married couples of German and non-German birth whose combined ages shall be the greatest; for the man and the woman longest in service of one employer; for those who have attended the greatest number of the picnics, and for the oldest United States army veteran living in Chicago and present at the picnic. This was won last year by Capt. Benjamin Hecht, in the registry department of the postoffice.

The Turngemeinde's list of old settlers shows three who date back to 1832—Joseph and Ella Griffin and Mary Strickland.

Youngsters to Have Special Trains.

Special trains will be run every Monday during the remainder of the summer to Oak Forest for the hundreds of poor children who are the summer vacation guests of the county. Supt. Joseph Meyer of the Oak Forest infirmary has made arrangements with the Rock Island railroad whereby a special train will bring the children to and from the outing grounds.

The largest party to be taken out yet is scheduled for today, when 700 poor children and their mothers will be given a week's outing. Baby cabs were provided last week for the camp, and fill a long felt want, according to Mr. Meyer.

Another feature is a force of eighteen play instructors, who teach the children games.

How to Earn Money at Home

Opportunity Impartial; Knocks at Every Door.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

The purpose of this department is to find profitable employment for women in occupations which they can carry on at home without interfering with their domestic duties. To stimulate suggestions The Tribune will award $1 each for every help published.
Address—Sally Joy Brown, care The Tribune, Chicago.
The exhibit room in The Tribune building is open from 9:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. except on Saturday, when it closes at 1 o'clock.

DO you sometimes feel that opportunity has passed you by and that it never has knocked at your door? It's not such a partial personage as you think. Only it doesn't knock loudly, and if you're not eager to hear it you'll never recognize the little tap as the knock of opportunity.

You can't imagine how many women have read about the Home Workers' Market Place and decided to become home workers, too, and then found that they have been entertaining opportunity without their knowing it.

Have you ever stopped to wonder if perhaps you aren't letting opportunity slip away from you by not joining in with the other women who are making a success of their home work?

Perhaps this letter will help you to recognize the opportunity that there is for you to become a successful home worker.

"I'd just sort of been keeping away from the home workers because I was afraid that I'd invest a lot of money and not get anything from it, because the only thing that I did was china painting, and I thought that there wouldn't be a large enough sale to pay me. You know how people will sort of keep away from the things that they'd really like awfully well to do just because it seems a little foolish to them to try.

"Well, one day I just couldn't keep away any more. I thought, 'I've spent many a dollar foolishly, and why shouldn't I do this if I want to? I'll put a little advertisement in the paper and if I don't get any answers I'll just charge it up to profit and loss.' I can't help smiling when I think of the way in which I put that advertisement in. I was so inexperienced that I thought it wouldn't pay. And right away, before the advertisement had been running three days, I had an answer to it and got an order for a plate that gave me exactly 70 cents profit. That paid for my ad, and every order that I have had since then has been pure profit. It doesn't sound possible, but that advertisement which I put in last Christmas is still bringing me answers. The first woman whom I did anything for told her friends and they told theirs, and so on, until now I have so many orders ahead that I can't possibly fill them until Thanksgiving. I have had an order for $200 worth of painting! Of course, that isn't $200 clear profit, because I have to buy all of my materials and my china, but the profits are enough to keep me in spending money and to allow me to buy many little luxuries that I couldn't afford otherwise.

"Perhaps I'm just lucky. But I don't think that I am. I think that any one could do just what I did. I have good designs that I make myself, and I do only the better class of conventional work. There are always people who want good work done for them, because it is so hard to find just the sort of decorated china that you want.

"I'm writing this to you in the hope that my success may help some other woman to get the sort of work that she likes. Wasn't it silly of me to hesitate about advertising? I'll just wager that there are lots of women who are doing just what I did—keeping away."

Isn't that a nice long letter? And doesn't it make each one of you happy to know of the success that her little advertisement brought her? She didn't know that opportunity was knocking at her door until she had opened it with a little fear in her heart and had let him in.

There's a little booklet that tells how a hundred women have entertained opportunity. That maybe will help you to recognize the tap as a real knock at the door. Won't you put your name and address on a post card and ask me for the booklet? I'll send it off to you post haste.

Opportunity is knocking at your door every morning.

Beadwork Pleasant and Profitable.

Beadwork is pleasant and profitable. The profit is great, as the beads are inexpensive, as low as 20 cents for 8,000. Any one, even a child, can make the forget me not and daisy chains and they sell at the rate of $1 a yard and are so pretty with the light summer dresses. They may be made in all blue, pink, or white (daisy), with yellow centers, or alternate blue and white or pink and white, with yellow centers, or eight blue forget me nots, one pink, one blue, one pink, making a chain much admired. Many combinations can be made and in many styles, from the dog chain of three or four strands to the long fan chains. The directions:

First flower—String 8 blue, pass needle outward (from you) through first bead (this forms a ring), one yellow (this forms center). Pass needle outward through fourth bead. This forms the first flower. Do not turn work.

Second flower—String two blue beads, pass needle outward through fifth and fourth beads of first flower, then inward (toward you) through the last two beads threaded. String six blue, pass needle inward through the first bead of the two beads previous to the six just threaded. This forms ring for next flower. String one yellow, pass needle outward through fourth blue bead of the last six blue beads threaded. This completes next flower.

Third flower—String two blue beads, pass needle outward through third and fourth beads of the last six beads threaded in previous flower. Pass needle inward through last two beads threaded. String six blue, pass needle inward through the first bead of the two beads previous to six just threaded, one yellow, pass needle outward through fourth blue bead of the six blue beads threaded. String on buttonhole twist to match beads used.

Takes Care of Children.

A friend of mine earns a nice sum of money by taking care of children for her friends and acquaintances. She has had four children of her own, but they have all grown up and married. Her husband's wages are small and what money she makes in this manner is a great help to her. She charges 50 cents for the afternoon, or for any part of the day after 10 o'clock, and the same amount for the evening. As she is entirely responsible there are a few mothers who leave their children with her rather than take them to the city with them, especially during the hot weather. She will also come to the home and watch over the children during the evening while the parents attend some social function. It is convenient to return from an evening's enjoyment and find the little ones tucked away in their beds. She has customers among people who do not care to put themselves under obligations by requesting relatives to care for their children.

Almost All Profit.

There is always a good market for home made hominy and also a good profit in it. To a bushel of clean, white shelled corn take one can of lye. Place all in a large boiler over the fire. Cover well and boil until the skins slip easily from the grains. Then drain and rinse the corn, rub well through the hands and again boil in plenty of clean water for five minutes. Do this three times, when the lye will be removed. The last time it must be boiled until it is swollen and tender. Drain all the water off and pack in stone jars. A brine will rise on it sufficient to keep it moist. It should be slightly salted during the last boiling. This sells readily at any market or store at 10 cents a quart, and is almost all profit. This is a reliable recipe, because it has been tried and proved a success by many people.

Wool Balls for Babies.

Wool balls for babies are made in this way: Cut out two cardboard disks about four inches in diameter, and cut out circles in the centers about an inch and one-fourth in diameter. Placing the disks one on top of the other, wind yarn around the cardboard, winding from the hole in the center around edge, until the hole is almost closed up. Then cut open the wool at the edge of the circle. This will allow a cord to be slipped between the disks and tied tightly around the wool in the center. This must be done carefully, so the yarn cannot be easily pulled out. Then tear the cardboard disks in two and separate them from the yarn, fluff up the ball, and cut off any ends which may be sticking out. The balls are pretty made of pink, blue, yellow, green, or red yarn, and also mixed colors.

A Puzzle Sum.

Being asked if a knowledge of mathematics was beneficial to a chess player, the champion replied: "It might be very essential. Once I had nothing but a king left, while my opponent had a king and knight, which, of course, cannot win, but he would not call it a draw, and played so slowly that I would have become insane were it not for the mathematical recreation of figuring out the problem: What are the chances that three pieces placed on a chessboard at random will not all be on squares of the same color? It does not require a knowledge of the game to solve the puzzle; it is a mere question of tossing three coins upon a checkerboard and calculating the chances of their not falling on squares of the same color."

Use Your Dreams.

Sleep need not be a waste of precious time if you remember and utilize your dreams. Robert Louis Stevenson was a wonderful dreamer and could dream in sequence, continuing a dream from the point where it had broken off the night before. It was in this way that the greater part of "Jekyll and Hyde" was put together. Dante, too, is said to have dreamed many cantos of "The Divine Comedy," and Voltaire records how the "Henriade" came to him in sleep. "Ideas occurred to me," he wrote, "in spite of myself, and in which I had no part whatever."

Dante's "Divina Commedia" is said to have been suggested by a dream, and there is the well known instance of "Kubla Khan," which Coleridge composed while asleep in a chair. Mrs. Radcliffe, author of the "Mysteries of Udolpho," used deliberately to set a trap for hideous dreams by eating pork chops before retiring for the night.

Musicians also have been inspired by their dreams. Guiseppi Tartini, the Italian composer, had a realistic dream one night in which the evil one appeared to him and compelled him to play on the violin. He awoke in terror with the music ringing in his ears, and sat down and composed the famous piece known as the "Devil's Sonata."

Cat on a Derelict.

The recue of a solitary white cat from the derelict Norwegian bark Glenmark in the Atlantic was reported on the return of the British cruiser Donegal to Plymouth two weeks ago with the bark in tow. The bark, which was abandoned at sea six weeks ago, was found by the cruiser after a four days' search.

Maddened by thirst, the cat bit a bluejacket who tried to stroke it. But after being given milk it became friendly and now is the pet of the Donegal's crew.

BABY CAUSE OF SQUABBLE LEADING TO CAR BLOCKADE.

Father Opens Front Door to Give Child Air—Motorman Protests and Gets Two Blows on the Nose.

A baby suffering from the hot weather was the original cause of a street car blockade that held a score of cars around Monroe and State streets yesterday.

The baby wanted air and announced it with a loud screech. The distressed father bolted for the front platform and asked the motorman to open the door. The motorman refused, and the father did it. The door was closed again, and reopened. The dispute continued and the car stood still. Other passengers made savage remarks and the motorman started for them.

The father laid down the baby and planted both fists in rapid succession on the motorman's nose. Then he picked up the baby and left. The motorman, said to be No. 2261, grabbed his controller, and, seeing a smile on the face of John Hawks, 4159 Princeton avenue, set after him. Hawks leaped out and skipped nimbly through the other street cars yelling for help. Other employés checked the pursuing motorman and put him back on his car and the blockade was ended. Hawks is seeking to punish the combative motorman.

Economical Housekeeping.

By Jane Eddington.

Braised Celery.

"WHAT would you do if you had a husband who did not want to eat anything but meat?" has been asked more than once. "Give him vegetables deliciously cooked in meat juice," is one of the answers that may always be made to this question.

We are so much more used to using a dollar's worth of meat where we might use a dime's worth; we are so little used to utilizing every scrap of the creatures which furnish the meat, by combining any odd fragments with rice, with macaroni, noodles, and other such pastes, that we somehow resent in a recipe the direction, "a cup of stock."

The culinary editor of a leading household magazine recently spoke with scorn of the recipes of a certain famous cook and writer on cookery which contained this direction. A much more famous editor in the same line thinks he is acting up to American sentiment when he refuses to print recipes containing this direction.

Why should we go on doing just as we have done because we have done it? Are we the only people who possess any wisdom? Why should not we learn the lesson, from nations far more economical than ourselves, who are just where we are likely to get with conditions changing as rapidly as they are, especially as the people of these nations are capable of making more palatable and delicious dishes, if they can cook at all, for 5 cents than we can make for 25?

It is not always necessary to make a stock when we want to cook a vegetable in meat juice. Any leftover meat juice may be used, or a pound of meat may be cooked in a casserole with vegetables, for no other purpose than to get the juice for finishing the vegetables. The meat may be cut up in little dice and later used in a diagonal layer across a mold of rice or macaroni. A little meat juice especially prepared in this way is what the Italians call "sugo," and a great many of their dishes are cooked al sugo.

Old and tough meat gives a "sugo" of the finest flavor, and where people are so situated that they can get none but the poorer grade of meats, there is no way of using it that is both so satisfactory and so economical as that of giving their flavor to vegetables.

Celery cooked in meat juice of good flavor, not the least trifle bitter, is a delicious vegetable. Besides being cooked in the meat juice it is often garnished with little parboiled discs of marrow, and thus a desirable fat is added to make it a more complete dish.

"Celery au jus" is the name commonly given to the vegetable cooked in this way, although little additions are made often, and it then has some other name.

CELERY BRAISED AU JUS I.—Prepare a dozen stalks of celery by cutting off the upper part and leaving a portion between four and five inches long. Wash in many waters and brush between the branches with a hard brush of long bristles, in order to clean away all earth and impurities. Blanch in boiling, salted water for five minutes; then drain and cool. Put into a saucepan to braise with a seasoning bouquet, two or three large onions, some salt and bouillon. Cover with strips of larding bacon and let it braise gently until it is perfectly cooked. Drain the celery and keep it hot. Skim off the fat from the bouillon in which it is cooked and let it cook down somewhat. When it is of the right consistency turn over the celery.

It may be prepared in the following manner, although thickening the meat juice with butter and flour does not make as good a sauce to pour over it as one well seasoned with vegetables (a little carrot is good), and then cooked down:

CELERY BRAISED AU JUS II.—Choose the largest and whitest stalks possible. Take off the green branches and clean the rest, which should be about three fingers long. Wash with great care and let lie for a quarter of an hour in salted water, in order to drive out any worms that may have hidden in it. Tie in bundles of three or four pieces in order that the vegetable can be easily handled when cooked. Then blanch and braise. Garnish with carrots and onions in slices and with a seasoning bouquet. When it is cooked take off the fat from the liquid in which it is cooked; reduce it, and, in order to obtain a rich gravy, thicken it with a tablespoon of butter braided with a tablespoon of flour.

Maraschino Cherries.

STONE cherries, saving all the juice that runs from them. Weigh the cherries and allow sugar, pound for pound, to the fruit. Drain cherries in a colander, set the fruit on the ice, and put juice and sugar together in a preserving kettle and cook to a thick sirup; add the cherries and simmer all together for fifteen minutes. At the end of this time drain off half the sirup and supply the place with an equal quantity of Maraschino; bring quickly to the boil, keeping the kettle covered to prevent evaporation of the volatile liquor. As soon as the boil is reached remove instantly from the fire and put at once into glass jars, sealing immediately.—Kindness of Mrs. J. S.

Never Fail White Cake.

One and one-half cups sugar, one-half cup butter (creamed with the sugar), one cup sweet milk, added alternately with two cups flour sifted twice with two teaspoons baking powder; teaspoon vanilla or rose extract, four eggs. Bake in a moderate oven. Use any filling or frosting desired.—Kindness of Mrs. M. W.

To Clean White Voile.

"Will you please tell me how to clean a white embroidered voile dress? I have been told that washing will ruin it. How can a ring be removed from a tan wool coat which was made by cleaning with chloroform?

"DORA B."

As a correspondent has told us lately, voile shrinks woefully when washed. If you wish to clean it at home you may try this method, which I have used successfully upon fine woolen stuffs, as well as upon fabrics of mixed wool and silk: Lay the gown upon a table covered with a white cloth. Taking a breadth at a time, go all over it with a soft brush dipped in a mixture of talcum powder, two-thirds, and fine borax, one-third. Mix well and rub into every thread of the voile, always with the nap. Having gone over the stuff once, shake the powder out gently without beating, and apply a fresh supply in the same way. Leave this on all night, covering to keep out dust. Two days are better than one, if you have time and patience. Then shake and brush out the powder. It should take the grime with it. If the gowns were not embroidered you might clean with the best quality of English magnesia. It has a tendency to dull the luster of silk. The ring is not easily removed. Chloroform should not have left it. Take it to professional cleaner.

Preparing the Hectograph.

"As I often wish to make copies of letters, recipes, etc., could you give me in your Corner a recipe for preparing a gelatin copier? I have seen these where they could make forty or fifty good copies. J. W. A."

What you want is directions for making a hectograph. The writing or drawing to be copied is made upon smooth paper with aniline ink; then pressed, face downward, upon a metal plate coated with gelatin. A number of impressions may be made from one set of the transferred drawing or inscription. We have members who in days gone by sent in exact directions for preparing the hectograph. Watch the letter box for proof that they will do it again to oblige you and myself.

Formula for Curing Meats.

"Will you kindly print in your valued Corner the regulation formula for curing hams and shoulders as practiced in Virginia and Kentucky? ROBERT S."

Mix together four and a half pounds of salt, one pound of brown sugar, one ounce of saltpeter, and three gallons of water. Boil gently for half an hour, skimming the scum off as it rises. Let it get cold; put the ham into a wooden tub or cask and cover with the pickle. Leave it thus covered for ten days. Then wash off the brine, lay the meat upon sticks laid on clean stones in the bottom of the cask, and rub it on all sides with the dry mixture indicated above, leaving out the water. Leave in the cask five days, pouring off the liquid accumulating in the bottom every day or two. Pour this back over the ham, turning it over and over in the liquid. Now take the meat out and wash off the pickle. While it is wet dip it in dry bran. Be sure that it is well coated with the bran and hang it up to smoke, the hock downward. Keep up a steady smudge for three weeks or more, taking care not to heat the meat. Use hickory chips and sawdust for the fire. You need a smokehouse for the work. One sees these still upon Virginia plantations. One may be improvised by building a hut of boards with an earthen floor. If you have room in your back yard or garden, or choose to put up your own hams in the country, there is no reason why you should not gratify your whim. If you suspect insects ("skippers"), before packing down the meat lay in the hot sun for a day, turning often. Then brush off the bran and wrap the ham in stout brown paper. Fit it closely and cover the paper with bees' wax and resin melted together. Lastly, sew up in stout muslin and whitewash the muslin. Hams cured in this way and protected from the air will keep for years. I have eaten ham 20 years old that was sweet and firm. Select young pork for hams, and let it be perfectly fresh when you commence the process.

Caution in Using Gasoline.

"Some time ago I read a well written letter in the Corner, signed Mrs. P. S. C., headed 'An Easy Way to Wash Clothes.' I feel impelled to send a word of warning, as the daughter of a dear friend lost her life through this method. The water was allowed to get too hot over a gasoline stove before the kerosene and turpentine mixture was added, and an explosion followed. The poor girl was horribly burned and died within a week. "MRS. P. E. Z."

Your warning is welcome. We cannot impress upon the housewifely mind too strongly the absolute necessity of using gasoline with the utmost caution. The mixture in question should not have been mixed while the boiler was upon the stove. It should have been taken quite a way from the fire before the turpentine and kerosene were stirred into the water. I doubt if it should ever have gone over a gasoline range.

Skin and Its Care.

[Copyright: 1913: By Lillian Russell.]

JUDGING from the numerous letters which I receive daily from women who declare that they are victims to premature wrinkles I have resolved that wrinkles are no sign of age.

Girls of 20 have written to me that their faces are full of fine lines, which proves my theory that wrinkles are caused by relaxed skin. The cause for this relaxed skin may be from several different sources.

When a young woman has a loose skin her underlying tissues have weakened and become spongy and she needs building up. She should eat nourishing foods and pat her face frequently, causing the blood to circulate through the veins of the face, after which a pure skin food should be patted into the skin. Rubbing the face should be carefully avoided, as the poor flesh needs gentle treatment, not punishment.

Gentle head massage will have a good effect upon the face, from the fact that strengthening the head muscles will draw up the cheek and neck muscles to their proper place. Some specialists insist upon massaging the spine and chest to improve the face. Their theory is that gentle massage over the spine rests one so thoroughly that all muscles relax and the face becomes normal. But to keep the face normal one must have normal thoughts. Some young girls pout, scowl, and frown until their faces become positively lined with those unhappy thoughts.

Reading in a bad light will cause the face to wrinkle around the eyes. Headaches caused by remaining indoors will wrinkle a young face. So for the young wrinkled woman I would advise much exercise, a few good sweat baths, plenty of pure cold cream, and happy thoughts.

For the older woman much the same treatment may be used unless the wrinkles are deep. In that case facial treatments are a necessity to open the pores and loosen the outer skin from the tissues so that the pores will absorb the skin food. Electric vibrators are of great benefit to hard, sallow skins, but the patting of the hand has the same effect when done firmly.

There are many facial specialists and many masseurs, but women should be careful to go to a person who knows the anatomy of the face so thoroughly that she will not make mistakes and rub wrinkles into the face instead of smoothing them out.

When one has a machine to manage it is necessary to become acquainted with the parts and the methods of action of the mechanism. In order to understand the control of the face there should be a proper understanding of muscular action, but how few there are outside of the medical profession who have any idea of the mechanism! All the muscles of the body, with the exception of the heart, are under the control of the will, some actively, others unconsciously so.

If the will acting on a muscle exerts more effort than is necessary the nerve force overflows to the other muscles, which contract in response. Often a person in making a great effort will contract the muscles of the hands and screw up the features. Over each muscle of the body the brain exercises a constant control, which is relaxed only in profound slumber.

Brain controls the muscles. In many cases the muscles become exaggerated and the individual goes about with a tension that entails a great expenditure of nerve force and a great drain upon the system.

A display of this is seen more frequently in the face than elsewhere and results in innumerable inexcusable wrinkles. The jaws are set, the forehead wrinkled, and the eyes squinted. The opposite of this is the complete relaxation of the muscles of the face. The light goes out of the eyes, the cheeks hang flabbily, the corners of the mouth droop and show ugly lines.

Remember: Keep your face and your conscience equally clean and nourish both with the best you can afford.

Lillian Russell's Answers.

A. S.: I am glad to know that my deep breathing exercises have helped you. I can send you instructions for facial massage with the formula for an excellent skin food, also a dietary for gaining flesh, if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

E. J. R.: When washing a switch wash it as you would your own hair. Use a good shampoo and wash it carefully. Do not rub soap on it, but make a suds and wash in this. Be careful you do not get it tangled.

F. L.: I am sorry, but I cannot give you the name of a tooth powder. There are many good ones on the market. Why don't you ask your dentist to recommend one to you?

MRS. A. A. C.: I am sorry, but I cannot give you a remedy for catarrh. I would advise you to consult your physician immediately in regard to it.

Laura Jean Libbey's Advice

By Laura Jean Libbey

When Are Women Most Attractive?

[Copyright: 1913: By Laura Jean Libbey.]

IS there a woman who has reached the age of 30 who has not given much thought in secret to this problem? The girl of 20 who hasn't a beau and sees no prospect of getting one is sure it is a crudeness on her part which seems to cause them to stand aloof from her. She is shy and feels awkward while in the presence of a young man. She lacks confidence in herself and is anything—everything—but her natural self. When he fails to call a second time she ascribes his absence to her lack of knowing how to entertain him. She is sure that she will be more attractive at 23.

When she reaches that age her egotism generally outweighs her judgment. She realizes that she is at the height of her charms, and she exacts homage from all who come in contact with her. She can afford to be independent with young men, as she realizes she is what people call clever. She has been a careful observer of how other girls attracted beaux, and why it was that she invariably lost them; and how some other girls won proposals of marriage. And she acts upon the suggestions that each gave her.

At 25 a girl does not find it difficult to attract admirers and to make a choice in the matrimonial market. She does not feel any qualms over the dropping off of an admirer. She knows that "the losing of one is the choice of two and the pick of half a dozen." She believes in having her fling of pleasure for a decade of years, and she is sure that she can do as well then as at any time of her life.

By the time that a single woman reaches that age—between 25 and 40—she is a philosopher. And if she has not grown careless as to her personal appearance all of her charms, as well as the sweetness of her disposition, have mellowed her into as perfect a woman as she ever will be. Her attractions are at their height. She is wise enough to encourage only the visits of a congenial man.

She understands the hearts of men, knows that their nature craves sympathy from women; wholesomes, genial companionship, frankness. She is not frivolous in dress or ideas, and is willing to settle down to become a splendid home maker when she meets the right man. This is by no means the age limit for a woman to consider marriage when love is weighed in the balance.

As for the widow, no matter what else slips from her, she still retains a firm hold upon her attractiveness. There is always to be found some man who is quite as lonely as she is. He finds that for him her attractions far outweigh the charms of the spinster, the young woman of 25 or the young girl in her teens.

There never was a woman in the world whose face, manner, and conversation are not attractive to some one particular man. And as one man is all that she wants to be pleased with her, or to please, it may be considered that there is no time in life when she should be considered beyond the pale of attractiveness.

The woman who suits one man's fancy does not please another. Nor does the man, for that matter, appeal to each and every woman.

The bringing together of a man and a woman is an important part of Cupid's scheme. They may not fall in love with each other at first sight, but the more they see of each other the stronger becomes the mutual attraction.

Not Interested In Her.

"Dear Miss Libbey: I am 16, considered a very pretty blue eyed blonde. I have known very many boys, but have been attracted to one who is very handsome. I met him at a party. He lives in another town, which is just a few miles from the one I live in. He escorted me home from the party and seemed to be very much attracted with me. I invited him to call on me, but have not heard from him since. Do you think it would be impolite to repeat the invitation? B."

Don't repeat the invitation, Betty! If he were interested in you he would have accepted the first invitation to call.

No, Don't Marry!

"Dear Miss Libbey: I wish to ask your advice in my love affair. I am a young bachelor of 30, engaged to a young lady of 22. My lady friend holds a position that pays her as much as the position I hold pays. I have a friend who has been married about two years. This friend married a lady who holds a position that pays her $100 a month. When my friend married he quit work and has not worked since. When I told him I thought of getting married he told me I was very foolish to marry any woman until I found one with money or one who was capable of making a living for herself and me, as he stated the world has changed the last few years, and at the present day it is just as much a woman's duty to make a living for her husband as it is the husband's to support her. So when my lady friend asks me when we are going to get married I jokingly tell her, 'When we do I will quit work.' She says that will be all right. My married friend says I would be a fool to get married and keep my nose on the grindstone all my life. So I hardly know what to do. Do you think my married friend's advice is right? J. H. B."

No, don't marry! You surely must be bereft of every last instinct of manly decency to entertain such a thought for a minute! I only hope the girl comes to her senses in time to save her from such a dreadful fate as to marry you.

ASSAILS DRASTIC INSURANCE LAWS

Fred W. Potter Deplores Unjust Rates in Several States as Unfair Tax.

OTHER STATES BURDENED

Views Given Before Commissioners Result in Committee to Investigate.

BY C. M. CARTWRIGHT.

Insurance Superintendent Fred W. Potter of Illinois was not able to be present at the annual meeting of the state insurance commissioners during the week, but he sent a paper to the convention which attracted considerable attention.

Some time ago Mr. Potter took up the subject of what attitude the older and larger states should assume in fire insurance toward those states which had adopted rate regulation laws whereby the insurance companies were not able to fix their rates except on approval of the state authorities. He called upon the companies for their loss experience in the rate regulation states and found that there was a large deficit at the end of the year in each state. The companies are unable to charge higher rates to overcome the deficit because the state authorities refuse to allow the schedules to be filed.

Mr. Potter called attention to the fact that the older and larger states, which contribute large sums to the insurance companies, are showing a profit and are making up the deficit in the rate regulation states. For example, he finds that in Texas the companies have lost $3,435,000 during the last five years. In Kansas the loss has been $500,000.

Problem Concerns Many States.

Mr. Potter takes the ground that this question intimately concerns the business of fire insurance in all states and should be the subject of discussion by the supervising officials. He therefore communicated the facts to the commissioners' convention.

He declares in Texas the fire insurance companies have absolutely nothing to say about the way in which their rates are made or the maximum amount that is collected for the indemnity they furnish the people of that state. The insurance companies are powerless to take any steps to equalize their rates or to increase the premium charge.

Practically the same conditions exist in Kansas and Kentucky, and Missouri is confronted with insurance chaos upon this question.

The question Mr. Potter puts to the commissioners is: "Shall the fire insurance companies be permitted to operate in profitable states over long periods of time and collect money from the premium payers of those states for the purpose of distributing the funds so collected in states unprofitable because of statutory conditions?"

Favors Judicious Regulation.

Mr. Potter states in his opinion fire insurance is not strictly a private business exploited by private capital for the benefit only of individuals who invest their money in it. He sees in fire insurance a semi-public business having some of the attributes of a public service and affected by the public use or interest.

He states the tendency of judicial opinion is along the same line, and therefore it is subject to such regulation as a public use as may be appropriate without interfering with the normal functions of the business or denying to the corporations interested a reasonable profit on a hazardous business.

Should this view be sustained by the courts and become the law of the land, Mr. Potter takes the ground that state laws which have the effect of making unwarranted and unfair calls upon the general fund created by the capital, surplus and premium payments into the business, become matters of vital importance to those states not having such enactments.

Wants State Laws Restricted.

Mr. Potter took the ground in his paper that no state has a right by its laws to loot a common fund to which all states have made contribution. States which enact unfair and extortionate laws will gain the most unfair advantage over other states dealing with more fairness and justice.

After much discussion the whole question was referred to a special committee of nine state commissioners who are asked to investigate the rates used by fire insurance companies, the methods of rate making and the effect of anti-trust and rate regulation laws on rate making processes.

New Insurance Head Satisfactory.

Insurance men were divided as to the abilities and accomplishments of the various candidates for state insurance superintendent in Illinois. There were some men whose names were presented to Gov. Dunne and who had influential backing that were experienced in insurance affairs. Underwriters in general hoped that the office might go during Gov. Dunne's administration to some one chosen on his merits as an insurance man rather than be doled out as political patronage.

Gov. Dunne decided to make a compromise in his choice of Judge Rufus M. Potts of Springfield. Mr. Potts cannot be said to be a man of all around insurance experience, but he has more or less knowledge of insurance law, has made some study of insurance questions, and for a number of years acted as general manager of the Reisch Indemnity company of Springfield, which writes dramshop bonds.

A number of insurance men who are acquainted with Judge Potts are pleased with the appointment, knowing he had the strong backing of Mr. Potter.

GREAT BRITAIN TO GET BUSY?

Rumor in Washington Bermuda Islands Will Be Made Great Naval Base to Guard Shipping.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—Keen interest has been aroused in official circles here by a report reaching the state department that Great Britain is contemplating establishing a great naval base in the Bermuda Islands.

It is stated authoritatively that the British government has made inquiry concerning the plans of the United States for the protection of the Panama canal routes, and it has been suggested that this indicates an intention to safeguard British shipping through the isthmus as is done in the Mediterranean.

STATISTICAL REVIEW OF FINANCIAL WEEK THE WORLD OVER

Quiet trading on the stock exchange, majority of price movements being of little account. Only one day when market shows strength, balance of period finding tendency for most part to a lower average level. Buoyant tone of one and two weeks previous entirely absent from last week's operations. European bourses show returning strength, but prices do not advance much. Grain market influenced by reorts of unsatisfactory weather in the corn and wheat belts. Sterling lower.

SECRECY ON TAXES OF CORPORATIONS

McAdoo to Avoid Publicity Except Where Big Concerns Are Willing.

AGAINST INTENT OF LAW.

Only Firms Listed on Exchanges Will Be Obliged to Tell Earnings.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Despite President Wilson's declaration that "pitiless publicity" would be the guiding principle of his administration, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo has decided not to subject unwilling corporations to this requirement.

In administering the publicity provision of the corporation tax law the treasury department will make public the sworn statements of only those corporations which ordinarily give publicity to their annual reports voluntarily.

Some Corporations Immune.

Under this policy not all corporations whose stock is sold on stock exchanges will be subjected to publicity of their statements of income.

On the Chicago stock exchange, for example, both listed and unlisted stocks are bought and sold. The Chicago exchange issues an official bulletin of the transactions in the unlisted as well as in the listed stocks. The corporations whose stocks are listed make reports and otherwise comply with the rules of the exchange. The corporations whose stocks are unlisted make no reports of their finances.

Secretary McAdoo has decided to give publicity only to the statements of corporations whose stocks are listed and which thus signify that they have no objections to publicity.

Elgin Watch Company Shows Gain.

Of the principal corporations whose stocks are listed on the Chicago stock exchange there are only two whose last annual reports have not been published up to date. These are the Elgin National Watch company and the Western Stone company. The sworn statements of these corporations for the last calendar year as submitted to the treasury department follow:

ELGIN NATIONAL WATCH COMPANY.

Total amount of paid up capital stock	$5,000,000
Total amount of bonded and other indebtedness	1,180,000
Gross income	1,118,395
Maintenance and operation expenses	403,707
Depreciation	58,349
Interest on indebtedness	52,065
Taxes	73,321
Net income	535,950

Charles H. Hulburd, president.

WESTERN STONE COMPANY.

Total amount of paid up capital stock	$2,250,000
Total amount of bonded and other indebtedness	1,325,039
Gross income	373,456
Maintenance and operation expenses	405,323
Losses	6
Depreciation	10,714
Interest on indebtedness	3,531
Net loss	46,119

Martin B. Madden, president.

The Elgin National Watch company paid a corporation tax on last year's business amounting to $5,309.50. Inasmuch as the Western Stone company reported a loss it was exempt from taxation.

DR. FREDERICK A. LEUSMAN, HOSPITAL SURGEON, DEAD.

Son of German Baroness and Educated for Profession in United States—Will Be Buried Tomorrow.

Dr. Frederick August Leusman, attending surgeon at the German-American hospital, died yesterday at St. Joseph's hospital. He lived at 19 West Huron street.

He was born at Breslau, Germany, on March 12, 1853, son of the late Baroness von Steinwehr Leusman and nephew of Baron Adolph Wilhelm Steinwehr, a general officer in the union army at Chancellorsville and Gettysburg. Dr. Leusman left the German army after his graduation from the University of Breslau in 1876 and came to this country. His professional education he acquired at the Chicago College of Pharmacy and the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Dr. Leusman was a fellow of the American Academy of Medicine and a member of the American Medical association and the Illinois and Chicago societies. He is survived by Mrs. Leusman. The funeral will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. The burial will be at Graceland.

HUSBAND AND WOMAN DIE RATHER THAN BE PARTED.

New York Couple from Chicago Flee When Man's Wife Appears—Arrest Frustrated by Suicides.

New York, Aug. 3.—After eluding a policeman waiting to arrest him on the complaint of his wife, Harry G. Elliott, a lithographer, accompanied by Miss Ellen Sibley, last night went to a point in Macomb's Dam park known as "lovers' leap," where Elliott killed his companion and ended his own life by shooting. A note found near by signed by both read:

"To whom it may concern: This is to certify that we two, both, have agreed to die together. We have sinned, but we both love each other, and sooner than part we die together. Our wish is that our bodies will not be parted in death."

Elliott and Miss Sibley came here about two weeks ago from Chicago. Yesterday Mrs. Elliott appeared at their boarding house and demanded to see them. While Mrs. Elliott and a policeman waited at the entrance, Elliott and Miss Sibley escaped by way of the roofs of adjoining houses. Mrs. Elliott could not be found today.

Bitten on Hand by Dog.

John Sullivan of 1130 West Jackson boulevard was bitten on the right hand by a dog which sprang at him as he was entering his house. Mrs. W. Brandt of 1128 West Jackson boulevard, owner of the dog, went to the aid of Sullivan and beat off the animal.

MORE ORIGINAL WILSON MEN SOON TO GET ILLINOIS JOBS.

Politicians Expect Future Federal Appointments to Follow Shuman and Brown Selections.

Illinois politicians are expecting the announcement of the appointment of several more "original Wilson men" to federal jobs within the next fortnight, since Irving Shuman received the Chicago subtreasurership. This appointment, following closely that of William Brown Jr., to be naval officer at this port, is supposed to indicate President Wilson does not intend to forget the men who stood by him despite the Clark victory in the Illinois primary.

Shuman and Brown are accounted among half a dozen Illinoisans who are ranked as "Wilson preferred stock."

Shuman is a young man and was efficiency manager at the Democratic western headquarters, giving up much of his time to the campaign and neglecting his business at Sullivan. He was a delegate to the Baltimore convention where he was obliged to vote for Clark for many ballots, like others of Wilson predilections. At Wilson's personal solicitation he campaigned for the then New Jersey governor through a number of western states.

PLANS FURTHER EXHIBITION OF FRAUDS ON VOTE DEVICE.

Prof. De Puy Says "We Have a Few Demonstrations in Reserve" for Butts' Committee Tomorrow.

Further demonstrations of the vulnerability of the Empire voting machines in the hands of possible unscrupulous voters and election officials are expected at this week's sessions of the Butts legislative committee, which will resume its investigation tomorrow morning.

Prof. Clarence E. De Puy of the Lewis institute, who was responsible for last week's illuminating examples of the possibilities of fraud, intimated as much yesterday.

"I cannot say whether there will be any more demonstrations," he said, "but I think we have a few in reserve."

"Occasional Wants"
In the Way of Service
And Who Supply Them

This Tribune department is a real time saver and unique information bureau.

It lists a wide range of home, business and personal services that are needed only once in so often.

Just because the kinds of work and merchandis named below are unusual makes it difficult to secure them when most wanted. You are puzzled to know who is the right man for the job.

In most cases these columns will give the desired information at a glance. They contain the name, address and phone number of reliable tradespeople in over two dozen different lines.

Clip out "Occasional Wants" and keep it for handy reference. It appears—with added names —in Monday issues.

DOES 100 PER CENT Annual Profit Look Too Big?

It sounds impossible to most Northerners and yet you can make it if you give us an opportunity to "show" you.

We will sell you 10 acres Grapefruit and Orange grove, located only one half mile from Haines City, Florida, on the famous Ridge of the Highlands of Polk county. You can easily find out for yourself that this is the absolutely best fruit section, and the most desirable residence section of Florida. This ten acre grove is now three years old; it is in perfect condition; it will begin to bear next year; it will pay for itself within three years, and then you could sell it for at least $10,000. After three years it will yield a net annual income of $4,000, more than 100 per cent on the investment.

You can buy this grove now for $3,750, on terms if you desire. We sell it strictly on its merits and subject to the most rigid investigation and inspection. Come in and talk it over NOW before you forget it. Can you accompany us on our excursion on Aug. 5th, Tuesday?
